Potential for discretionary determinations by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent under the Securities: Depending on the particular terms and conditions of the Securities, following the occurrence of certain events – relating to the Issuer, the Issuer's hedging arrangements, the Underlying Asset(s), taxation, the relevant currency or other matters – outside of the Issuer's control, the Issuer or the Calculation Agent may determine in its discretion to take one of the actions available to it in order to deal with the impact of such event on the Securities or the Issuer or both. These actions may include (i) adjustment to the terms and conditions of the Securities, (ii) substitution of the Underlying Asset(s) or (iii) early redemption or exercise of the Securities. Any such discretionary determination by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent could have a negative impact on the value of the Securities. See, in particular,

"Risk Factors" - risk factor 8 (Risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of Securities and discretionary powers of the Issuer and the Calculation Agent including in relation to our hedging arrangements) below.

Important - EEA Retail Investors: Unless the Issue Terms in respect of the Securities specifies "Prohibition of Sales to EEA Retail Investors" as "Not Applicable", the Securities are not intended to be offered, sold or otherwise made available to, and should not be offered, sold or otherwise made available to, any retail investor in the European Economic Area. For these purposes, a retail investor means a person who is one (or more) of: (i) a retail client as defined in point (11) of Article 4(1) of Directive 2014/65/EU (as amended, "MiFID II"); (ii) a customer within the meaning of Directive (EU) 2016/97, as amended, where that customer would not qualify as a professional client as defined in point (10) of Article 4(1) of the MiFID II; or (iii) not a qualified investor as defined in the EU Prospectus Regulation. Consequently no key information document required by Regulation (EU) No 1286/2014 (as amended, the "EU PRIIPs Regulation") for offering or selling the Securities or otherwise making them available to retail investors in the European Economic Area has been prepared and therefore offering or selling the Securities or otherwise making them available to any retail investor in the European Economic Area may be unlawful under the EU PRIIPs Regulation.

Notwithstanding the above paragraph, in the case where the Issue Terms in respect of any Securities include a legend entitled "Prohibition of Sales to EEA Retail Investors" but where the Issuer subsequently prepares and publishes a key information document under the EU PRIIPs Regulation in respect of such Securities, then following such publication, the prohibition on the offering, sale or otherwise making available the Securities to a retail investor in the EEA as described in the above paragraph and in such legend shall no longer apply in relation to any member state whose requirements for a key information document in relation to the relevant Securities have been satisfied.

Important - UK Retail Investors: Unless the Issue Terms in respect of the Securities specifies "Prohibition of Sales to UK Retail Investors" as "Not Applicable", the Securities are not intended to be offered, sold or otherwise made available to, and should not be offered, sold or otherwise made available to, any retail investor in the United Kingdom. For these purposes, a retail investor means a person who is one (or more) of: (i) a retail client, as defined in point (8) of Article 2 of Regulation (EU) No 2017/565 as it forms part of domestic law by virtue of the EUWA; or (ii) a customer within the meaning of the provisions of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (as amended, the "FSMA") and any rules or regulations made under the FSMA to implement Directive (EU) 2016/97, where that customer would not qualify as a professional client, as defined in point (8) of Article 2(1) of Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 as it forms part of domestic law by virtue of the EUWA; or (iii) not a qualified investor as defined in Article 2 of Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 as it forms part of domestic law by virtue of the EUWA and regulations made thereunder (the "UK Prospectus Regulation"). Consequently no key information document required by Regulation (EU) No 1286/2014 as it forms part of domestic law by virtue of the EUWA (the "UK PRIIPs Regulation") for offering or selling the Securities or otherwise making them available to retail investors in the United Kingdom has been prepared and therefore offering or selling the Securities or otherwise making them available to any retail investor in the United Kingdom may be unlawful under the UK PRIIPs Regulation.

Notwithstanding the above paragraph, in the case where the Issue Terms in respect of any Securities include a legend entitled "Prohibition of Sales to UK Retail Investors" but where the Issuer subsequently prepares and publishes a key information document under the UK PRIIPs Regulation in respect of such Securities, then following such publication, the prohibition on the offering, sale or otherwise making available the Securities to a retail investor in the United Kingdom as described in the above paragraph and in such legend shall no longer apply.

Important U.S. Legal Notices: None of the Securities, the Guarantees and any securities to be delivered upon exercise or settlement of the Securities have been, nor will be, registered under the United States Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), or any state securities laws; and trading in the Securities has not been and will not be approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"), any state securities commission in the United States, an exchange or board of trade or otherwise by the United States Commodity Futures Trading Commission (the "CFTC") under the United States Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended (the "Commodity Exchange Act"), nor has the SEC, any state securities commission, exchange or board of trade or the CFTC passed upon the accuracy or the adequacy of the Base Prospectus. Any representation to the contrary is a criminal offence in the United States. The Base Prospectus may not be used in the United States and may not be delivered in the United States or to a U.S. person. Except as provided below, Securities and the Guarantees may not be directly or indirectly offered, sold, traded or delivered within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons (as defined in Regulation S under the Securities Act ("Regulation S")). The Issue Terms relating to an Instrument (but not a Note) may provide for an offer and sale of the whole or a portion of a Series of Instruments issued by GSI (but not any other Issuer) to qualified institutional buyers ("QIBs") (as defined in Rule 144A under the Securities Act ("Rule 144A")) within the United States in reliance on an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act for transactions not involving any public offering ("Private Placement Exemption"). In addition, GSI may from time to time issue Warrants that will be represented by a Regulation S/Rule 144A Global Warrant which can be (a) offered and sold to QIBs in reliance on the Private Placement Exemption and (b) offered and sold to investors who are located outside the United States and are not "US persons" as defined in Regulation S (each, a "Regulation S/Rule 144A Warrant"). Each purchaser of Instruments offered within the United States is hereby notified that the offer and sale of such Instruments to it is made in reliance upon the Private Placement Exemption and that such Instruments are not transferable except as provided under "Selling Restrictions" below. Rights arising under the Instruments will be exercisable by the Holder only upon certification as to non-U.S. beneficial ownership, unless the Issue Terms relating to an Instrument expressly provide otherwise in connection with an offering of the Instruments that may be resold pursuant to Rule 144A under the Securities Act. Hedging transactions involving an Instrument may not be concluded other than in compliance with the Securities Act or the Commodity Exchange Act, as applicable.

Securities issued by GSI, GSW or GSBE relating to commodities and commodities futures (within the meaning of the Commodity Exchange Act and the rules and regulations of the CFTC thereunder), or securities issuable upon exercise of certain of the Securities, may not be offered, sold or resold in or into the United States without an applicable exemption under the Commodity Exchange Act. Unless otherwise stated in the relevant Issue Terms, such Securities may not be offered, sold or resold in the United States and GSI, GSW or GSBE, as applicable, and the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) reserve the right not to make payment or delivery in respect of such a Security to a person in the United States if such payment or delivery would constitute a violation of U.S. law. Securities issued by GSFCI relating to commodities and commodities futures (within the meaning of the Commodity Exchange Act and the rules and regulations of the CFTC thereunder), or securities issuable upon exercise of certain of the Securities, may not be offered, sold or resold in or into the United States at any time. Such Securities may not be offered, sold or resold in the United States and GSFCI and GSG, as Guarantor, reserve the right not to make payment or delivery in respect of such a Security to a person in the United States.

Persons into whose possession this Base Prospectus or any Issue Terms comes are required by the Issuers and the Guarantors to inform themselves about and to observe any such restrictions. For a description of certain restrictions on offers, sales and deliveries of Securities and the distribution of this Base Prospectus, any Issue Terms and other offering material relating to the Securities, see "Selling Restrictions" below.

Neither this Base Prospectus nor any Issue Terms may be used for the purpose of an offer or solicitation by anyone in any jurisdiction in which such offer or solicitation is not authorised or to any person to whom it is unlawful to make such offer or solicitation, and no action has been taken or will be taken to permit an offering of the Securities or the distribution of this Base Prospectus in any jurisdiction where any such action is required.

EU Benchmarks Regulation: Amounts payable under the Securities or assets deliverable under the Securities may be calculated or otherwise determined by reference to a reference rate, an index or a price source. Any such reference rate, index or price source may constitute a benchmark for the purposes of Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 (as amended, the "EU Benchmarks Regulation"). If any such reference rate, index or price source does constitute such a benchmark then (as applicable) (i) the Final Terms will, or (ii) the Pricing Supplement may, indicate whether or not the benchmark is included, or is provided by an administrator that is included, in the register of administrators and benchmarks established and maintained by the European Securities and Markets Authority ("ESMA") (the "ESMA Register"). Not every index will fall within the scope of the EU Benchmarks Regulation. Furthermore, transitional provisions in the EU Benchmarks Regulation may have the result that the administrator of a particular benchmark is not required to appear in the relevant register of administrators and benchmarks at the date of the relevant Issue Terms. As at the date of this Base Prospectus, European Money Markets Institute (the administrator of EURIBOR) is included in the ESMA Register. Also, none of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York (the administrator of SOFR), the Bank of England (the administrator of SONIA), the European Central Bank (the administrator of €STR) or the Bank of Japan (the administrator of TONA) is included in the ESMA Register, but the EU Benchmarks Regulation does not apply to central banks or to public authorities providing benchmarks for public policy purposes. The registration status of any administrator under the EU Benchmarks Regulation is a matter of public record and, save where required by applicable law, the relevant Issuer does not intend to update the relevant Issue Terms to reflect any change in the registration status of the administrator.

Stabilisation: In connection with the issue of any Tranche of Notes, the person or persons (if any) acting as the stabilising manager(s) (the "Stabilising Manager(s)") (or persons acting on behalf of any Stabilising Manager(s)) may over-allot Notes or effect transactions with a view to supporting the market price of the Notes at a level higher than that which might otherwise prevail. However, stabilisation may not necessarily occur. Any stabilisation action may begin on or after the date on which adequate public disclosure of the terms of the offer of the relevant Tranche of Notes is made and, if begun, may cease at any time, but it must end no later than the earlier of 30 days after the issue date of the relevant Tranche of Notes and 60 days after the date of the allotment of the relevant Tranche of Notes. Any stabilisation action or over-allotment must be conducted by the relevant Stabilising Manager(s) (or person(s) acting on behalf of any Stabilising Manager(s)) in accordance with all applicable laws and rules.

Consent of the Jersey Financial Services Commission and the Jersey Registrar of Companies: The Jersey Financial Services Commission (the "Commission") has given, and has not withdrawn, its consent under Article 4 of the Control of Borrowing (Jersey) Order 1958 to the issue of the Securities by GSFCL. A copy of this Base Prospectus has been delivered to the Jersey registrar of companies in accordance with Article 5 of the Companies (General Provisions) (Jersey) Order 2002, and he has given, and has not withdrawn, his consent to its circulation. It must be distinctly understood that, in giving these consents, neither the registrar of companies nor the Commission takes any responsibility for the financial soundness of GSFCL or GSG, as Guarantor, or for the correctness of any statements made, or opinions expressed, with regard to them.

Certain defined terms: In this Base Prospectus, references to:

- "U.S.$", "$", "U.S. dollars", "dollars", "USD" and "cents" are to the lawful currency of the United States of America;
- "€", "euro" and "EUR" are to the lawful single currency of the member states of the European Union that have adopted and continue to retain a common single currency through monetary union in accordance with European Union treaty law (as amended from time to time);
- "£" are to Sterling, the lawful currency of the United Kingdom;
- "BRL" are to Brazilian Real, the lawful currency of the Federative Republic of Brazil (including any lawful successor to the BRL); and
- "CNY" are to Chinese Renminbi, the lawful currency of the People's Republic of China (including any lawful successor to the CNY).

Any other currency referred to in any Issue Terms will have the meaning specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

An Index of Defined Terms is set out on pages 1364 to 1383 of this Base Prospectus.

Such recognition will depend upon satisfaction of the Eurosystem eligibility criteria as specified by the European Central Bank. However, there is no guarantee that such Notes will be recognised as eligible collateral. Any other Notes are not intended to be recognised as eligible collateral for Eurosystem monetary policy and intra-day operations by the Eurosystem.

Goldman Sachs Sustainability Issuances

Issuances under the Goldman Sachs Sustainability Issuance Framework

Introduction

Under the Programme, if so specified in the "Use of Proceeds" in the relevant Issue Terms, any of the Issuers may from time to time undertake the issuance of Securities from time to time under the terms of the Goldman Sachs Sustainability Issuance Framework (the "Sustainability Issuance Framework"). In such case, the relevant Issuer will (subject as provided in "Management of Proceeds" below) allocate an amount equal to the net proceeds from each such issuance to loans and investments in projects and assets which meet the relevant eligibility criteria ("Eligibility Criteria") and are included in one or more of the categories in each case specified in the Sustainability Issuance Framework ("Eligible Investments").

The information in this section Issuances under the Goldman Sachs Sustainability Issuance Framework is a summary only of the Sustainability Issuance Framework, and reflects the most recent version thereof as at the date of this Base Prospectus (being the version dated 8 February 2021): the Sustainability Issuance Framework is subject to change at any time without notice, and (subject to the requirements of Article 23(1) of the EU Prospectus Regulation) none of the Issuers, Guarantors, Dealers or Agents assumes any responsibility or obligation to update or revise the statements contained herein, regardless of whether the Sustainability Issuance Framework is amended and updated or whether any information in it is affected by the results of new information, future events or otherwise. The most recent version of the Sustainability Issuance Framework is available on the Goldman Sachs Investor Relations website at <https://www.goldmansachs.com/investor-relations/creditor-information/gs-sustainability-issuance-framework.pdf> (or its successor website). Information contained on such website or the website of Goldman Sachs' second party opinion provider is not incorporated by reference herein and does not form part of this Base Prospectus.

Eligibility Criteria

The proceeds from each issuance under the Sustainability Issuance Framework will be used exclusively to finance or refinance loans and investments that meet, respectively, the GS Group's Green and Social Issuance Eligibility Criteria. 'Sustainability' issuance proceeds may finance or refinance a combination of projects and assets that are eligible under either Green or Social Eligibility Criteria.

The Eligibility Criteria are aligned with the four common core components of the International Capital Market Association's ("ICMA") Green Bond Principles 2018, Social Bond Principles 2020 and Sustainability Bond Guidelines 2018 (together, the "ICMA Principles"), which are (1) use of proceeds, (2) process for project evaluation and selection, (3) management of proceeds and (4) reporting. Goldman Sachs has worked with Morningstar Sustainalytics, a globally-recognized provider of ESG research, ratings and data to (i) assess the Eligibility Criteria and processes for alignment with the ICMA Principles, and (ii) obtain and make publicly available a second party opinion from Morningstar Sustainalytics in respect of our alignment with such criteria. In connection with its second party opinion, Morningstar Sustainalytics evaluated: (i) the Sustainability Issuance Framework's alignment with the Green Bond Principles 2018, Social Bond Principles 2020, and Sustainability Bond Guidelines 2018, as administered by ICMA, (ii) the credibility and potential positive impacts of the use of proceeds, and (iii) the alignment of the relevant Issuer's sustainability strategy and performance and sustainability risk management in relation to the use of proceeds.

Goldman Sachs have established a Sustainable Asset Working Group which will review and select Eligible Investments.

In respect of 'Green' issuance, categories of investments that support the natural environment and help address climate transition may include: clean energy, sustainable transport, sustainable food and agriculture, waste and materials and ecosystem services.

In respect of 'Social' issuance, categories of investments that provide clear social benefits and help build more inclusive and strengthened communities may include: accessible and innovative healthcare, financial inclusion, accessible and affordable education and/or communities. These investments will focus especially but not exclusively on target populations which may include low and moderate income individuals, vulnerable, excluded and / or marginalized populations, unemployed / underemployed, underserved / underbanked micro, small and medium size businesses and/or businesses owned, managed or controlled by vulnerable, excluded and / or marginalised populations.

In respect of 'Sustainability' issuance, proceeds from the Securities may be allocated across a combination of both environmentally and socially-focused Eligible Investments.

Please see risk factor 1.7 (Considerations Relating to Securities Whose Issue Terms Indicate an Amount Equal to the Net Proceeds Will be Allocated to Respond to Environmental, Social and/or Sustainability Issues).

Eligible Investments by any of Goldman Sachs' subsidiaries are eligible for inclusion in the allocation of proceeds from the Securities.

Management of Proceeds

Goldman Sachs will prioritise the use of proceeds from each issuance of Securities under the Sustainability Issuance Framework to finance new projects or assets that meet the Eligibility Criteria of the respective type of issuance and will aim to allocate all proceeds within two years following the issuance. Loans and investments that qualify under the relevant criteria made up to one year prior to the issuance are also eligible for refinancing with its proceeds.

Goldman Sachs will track and manage an amount equivalent to the proceeds of each issuance of Securities under the Sustainability Issuance Framework via a separate internal ledger. Any portion of proceeds unallocated against Eligible Investments will be allocated against highly liquid instruments, such as (i) U.S. government and agency obligations, (ii) certain non-US government obligations and (iii) U.S. and non-US dollar deposits until such amount can be allocated against Eligible Investments. During the term of the relevant Securities, if an asset that has been funded with the proceeds of such Securities either matures or is sold, Goldman Sachs will seek to reallocate the equivalent amount of proceeds into eligible projects and assets, where possible and feasible as described in Sustainability Issuance Framework.

Reporting

Goldman Sachs will publish reports on an annual basis and the information will be updated annually until the proceeds of the Securities are fully allocated to Eligible Investments and as promptly as practicable in case of any material changes in the proceeds allocation thereafter. The most recent reports will be available at <https://www.goldmansachs.com/investor-relations/creditor-information/index.html>. Information contained on such website and such reports are not incorporated by reference herein and does not form part of this Base Prospectus. Each report will include a brief description of categories of Eligible Investments to which proceeds have been allocated, the total amount of proceeds allocated to such Eligible Investments and the total amount of unallocated proceeds (if any), and, to the extent feasible, the expected and realised environmental and/or social impact of the allocated Eligible Investments. Information about the allocation and impact of projects and assets may be presented on an aggregated basis due to applicable confidentiality obligations and the large number of Eligible Investments that may be allocated proceeds from the Securities.

Monitoring

Goldman Sachs will engage an independent auditor to provide external assurance of Goldman Sachs' allocation of proceeds on an annual basis until the proceeds of the Securities are fully allocated to Eligible Investments. The auditor's responsibilities will include assurance that Eligible Investments have been appropriately identified and verification that the allocation of funds from the proceeds of the Securities conforms with the ICMA Principles.

Important information

The cash proceeds from the issuance of Securities under the Sustainability Issuance Framework will not be segregated from other funds of Goldman Sachs, and Goldman Sachs is under no obligation to use the specific cash proceeds from this offering to finance or refinance Eligible Investments. Further, Goldman Sachs has significant flexibility in allocating the net proceeds from the Securities, including determining in its discretion what constitutes an Eligible Investment, whether to apply proceeds against new Eligible Investments or those already made by Goldman Sachs before the issue date, and whether to re-allocate net proceeds away from Eligible Investments when such investments mature or are divested.

No assurances can be provided by us or any dealer or underwriter that the use of proceeds from the Securities, nor the expected or actual sustainable impact of such investments will satisfy any present or future investor expectations or requirements regarding sustainability performance. Furthermore, no assurance is given that the Securities will satisfy, in whole or in part, any present or future taxonomies, standards and/or other regulatory or index inclusion criteria or voluntary guidelines with which such investor or its investments may be expected to comply. For example, and without limitation, the Securities are not Green Bonds and/or Social Bonds as defined under the International Capital Market Association's Green Bond Principles and/or Social Bond Principles and the Securities do not take into account any of the European Union criteria for environmentally sustainable investments, including as set out under the Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on the Establishment of a Framework to Facilitate Sustainable Investment (Regulation (EU) 2020/852).

No assurance or representation is given as to the suitability or reliability for any purpose whatsoever of any opinion or certification (whether or not solicited by us) made available in connection with the Securities. No such opinion or certification is, nor should it be deemed to be, a recommendation by us, any dealer or underwriter or any other person to buy, sell or hold the Securities. No such opinion or certification is, nor shall it be deemed to be, incorporated into this Base Prospectus or considered to be an offer or advertisement to buy a security, solicitation of votes or proxies, investment advice, expert opinion or negative assurance letter.

Any failure in applying an amount equal to the net proceeds from the Securities to Eligible Investments, failure of those Eligible Investments to achieve the expected outcomes, and/or change or withdrawal of any third party certification or opinion may have a material adverse effect on the value of the Securities and/or result in adverse consequences for certain investors with portfolio mandates to invest in securities identified as sustainable. In addition, other investments we make or other aspects of our business may be criticized by activist groups or other stakeholders focused on sustainability issues, which could have a negative effect on the value of the Securities.

Delay or failure to allocate or manage the proceeds from the Securities or to meet the reporting schedule as described under "Use of Proceeds" in the relevant Issue Terms shall not constitute an Event of Default under the Securities.

RISK FACTORS

An investment in your Securities is subject to the risks described below, together with any risk factors set out in any documents incorporated by reference. You should carefully review these risks as well as the terms and conditions of the Securities described herein and in the related Issue Terms. Your Securities may be a riskier investment than ordinary debt or most other securities. Also, your Securities are not equivalent to investing directly in the Underlying Asset(s) – i.e. the ordinary share, preference share, equity index, commodity, commodity index, foreign exchange rate, inflation index, interest rate, swap rate, fund, the credit risk of a reference entity or a basket of reference entities, credit index or some or a combination of these assets to which the return on your particular Securities depends. You should carefully consider whether the Securities are suited to your particular circumstances, including to consult your own professional advisers as necessary. We do not give to you as a prospective purchaser of Securities any assurance or guarantee as to the merits, performance or suitability of such Securities, and you should be aware that we act as an arm's length contractual counterparty and not as an advisor or fiduciary.

In these Risk Factors, "Goldman Sachs" or the "GS Group" means The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. and its consolidated subsidiaries, "we" and "our" mean Goldman Sachs and "Underlying Asset" means each Underlying Asset specified in the relevant Issue Terms or, if no Underlying Asset is specified in the Issue Terms, the rate(s) or other financial metric(s) to which the Securities are linked.

RISK WARNING OF POTENTIAL LOSS OF SOME OR ALL OF YOUR INVESTMENT

You may lose some or all of your investment in the Securities where:

- The Issuer or (if applicable) the Guarantor fails or goes bankrupt or enters into resolution proceedings or is otherwise unable to meet its payment or delivery obligations: The payment of any amount due on, or an asset deliverable under, the Securities is subject to the credit risk of the Issuer, and (if applicable) the credit risk of the relevant Guarantor. The Securities and the Guarantees are our unsecured obligations. Investors are dependent on our ability to pay all amounts due on the Securities, and therefore investors are subject to the Issuer's credit risk and to changes in the market's view of the Issuer's creditworthiness. Similarly, investors are dependent on the ability of the relevant Guarantor to pay all amounts due on the Securities, and therefore are also subject to the credit risk of the relevant Guarantor and to changes in the market's view of the creditworthiness of the relevant Guarantor. Neither the Securities nor the Guarantees are bank deposits, and neither are insured or guaranteed by the UK Financial Services Compensation Scheme, the Jersey Depositors Compensation Scheme, the United States Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the U.S. Deposit Insurance Fund or any other government or governmental or private agency or deposit protection scheme in any jurisdiction.

Investors in Securities issued by GSW should carefully review the relevant Issue Terms to determine whether the Securities have the benefit of the GSG Guaranty, the GSI Guarantee or the GSI (Cayman) Guarantee.

Investors in Securities issued by GSI should carefully review the relevant Issue Terms to determine whether the Securities have the benefit of the GSG Guaranty.

Unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms, Securities issued by GSI will not have the benefit of a Guarantee. Securities issued by GSBE will not have the benefit of a Guarantee.

- The final redemption amount of the Securities is less than the purchase price, due to the performance of the Underlying Asset(s): In the case of Securities linked to Underlying Asset(s), where the terms of your Securities do not provide for scheduled minimum payment of the face value or issue price of the Securities at maturity, whether you receive some or all of your money back at maturity (and any positive return) will depend on the performance of the Underlying Asset(s). Therefore, depending on the performance of the Underlying Asset(s), you may lose some or all of your investment.
- The secondary sale price is less than the original purchase price: The market price of your Securities prior to maturity may be significantly lower than the purchase price you pay for them. Consequently, if you sell your Securities before the stated scheduled redemption date, you may receive far less than your original invested amount.
- The Securities are redeemed early due to an unexpected event and the amount you receive is less than the original purchase price: Your Securities may be redeemed in certain extraordinary circumstances as described in this Base Prospectus prior to scheduled maturity and, in such case, the early redemption amount paid to you may be less than the amount you paid for the Securities.
- Where applicable, the relevant Guarantor (if any) fails or goes bankrupt or enters into resolution proceedings but the Issuer does not: The bankruptcy or resolution of the relevant Guarantor (if any) will not constitute an event of default in relation to your Securities. There is no automatic default or acceleration upon the bankruptcy or resolution of the relevant Guarantor (if any). In the event that the relevant Guarantor (if any) becomes subject to bankruptcy or resolution proceedings (but the Issuer does not), you will not be able to declare the Securities to be immediately due and repayable.

The return you receive on the Securities in this particular circumstance could be significantly less than what you would have otherwise received had you been able to declare the Securities immediately due and repayable upon the bankruptcy or resolution of the relevant Guarantor (if any).

These circumstances are more fully described below.

A. FACTORS THAT MAY AFFECT OUR ABILITY TO FULFIL OUR OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE SECURITIES

Credit Risks – applicable to all Securities

The relevant Issuer may partially or wholly fail to meet its obligations under the Securities. Investors should therefore take the creditworthiness of the relevant Issuer, as well as the creditworthiness of the relevant Guarantor (if any) of the Securities, into account in their investment decision. Credit risk means the risk of insolvency or illiquidity of the relevant entity, i.e. a potential, temporary or final inability to fulfil its interest and repayment obligations on time. An increased insolvency risk is typical of entities that have a low creditworthiness.

Although the return on your Securities will be based on the performance of the Underlying Asset(s) (if applicable), the payment of any amount due on, or delivery of any asset(s) deliverable under, the Securities is subject to the credit risk of the relevant Issuer, and (if applicable) the credit risk of the relevant Guarantor. This is also the case for Securities not linked to any Underlying Asset. The Securities and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantee are our unsecured obligations. Investors are dependent on our ability to pay all amounts due on, or deliver any asset(s) deliverable under, the Securities, and therefore investors are subject to our credit risk and to changes in the market's view of our creditworthiness. Similarly, if the Securities have the benefit of one of the Guarantees, investors are dependent on the ability of the relevant Guarantor, to pay all amounts due on the Securities, and therefore are also subject to its credit risk and to changes in the market's view of its creditworthiness.

Because the assets of GSG consist principally of interests in the subsidiaries through which GSG conducts its businesses, its right to participate as an equity holder in any distribution of assets of any of its subsidiaries upon the subsidiary's liquidation or otherwise, and thus the ability of the security holders of the relevant Issuer as the beneficiaries of the GSG Guaranty (if applicable to the Securities), to benefit from the distribution, is junior to creditors of the subsidiary, except to the extent that any claims GSG may have as a creditor of the subsidiary are recognised. In addition, dividends, loans and advances to GSG from some of its subsidiaries are restricted by net capital requirements under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and under rules of securities exchanges and other regulatory bodies. Furthermore, because some of the subsidiaries of GSG are partnerships in which GSG is a general partner or the sole limited partner, GSG may be liable for their obligations. GSG also guarantees many of the obligations of its subsidiaries other than the relevant Issuer. Any liability GSG may have for its subsidiaries' obligations could reduce its assets that are available to satisfy its obligations under the GSG Guaranty (if applicable to the Securities) to the investors in Securities of the relevant Issuer.

The Securities are not bank deposits and are not insured or guaranteed by the UK Financial Services Compensation Scheme, the Jersey Depositors Compensation Scheme, the U.S. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the U.S. Deposit Insurance Fund or any other government or governmental or private agency or deposit protection scheme in any jurisdiction. Investors are dependent on our ability to pay all amounts due on the Securities, and therefore investors are subject to our credit risk and to changes in the market's view of our creditworthiness.

Where applicable, the bankruptcy or resolution of the relevant Guarantor (if any) will not constitute an event of default in relation to the Securities. There is no automatic default or acceleration upon the bankruptcy or resolution of the relevant Guarantor (if any). In the event that the relevant Guarantor (if any) becomes subject to bankruptcy or resolution proceedings (but the Issuer does not), you will not be able to declare the Securities to be immediately due and repayable. Instead, you will need to wait until the earlier of the time that (i) the Issuer itself becomes bankrupt or otherwise defaults on the terms of the Securities and (ii) the time the Securities become due and repayable at their maturity. Therefore, the return you receive on the Securities in this particular circumstance could be significantly less than what you would have otherwise received had you been able to declare the Securities immediately due and repayable upon the bankruptcy or resolution of the relevant Guarantor (if any). Unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms, Securities issued by GSI will not have the benefit of a Guarantee. Securities issued by GSBE will not have the benefit of a Guarantee.

2. Risks relating to GSI

GSI faces a variety of risks that are substantial and inherent in its businesses. The principal risks and uncertainties that GSI faces are: market risk, liquidity risk, credit risk, operational risk, legal and regulatory risk, competition risk, and market developments and general business environment risk.

2.1 Liquidity Risks

(a) GSI's liquidity, profitability and businesses may be adversely affected by an inability to access the debt capital markets or to sell assets

Liquidity is essential to GSI's businesses. It is of critical importance to GSI, as most of the failures of financial institutions have occurred in large part due to insufficient liquidity. GSI's liquidity may be impaired by an inability to access secured and/or unsecured debt markets, an inability to access funds from GSG or other GS Group affiliates, an inability to sell assets or redeem investments, lack of timely settlement of transactions, or other unforeseen outflows of cash or collateral. This situation may arise due to circumstances that GSI may be unable to control, such as a general market or economic disruption or an operational problem that affects third parties or GSI or its affiliates or even by the perception among market participants that GSI, or other market participants, are experiencing greater liquidity risk.

GSI employs structured products to benefit its clients and hedge its own risks. The financial instruments that GSI holds and the contracts to which it is a party are often complex, and these complex structured products often do not have readily available markets to access in times of liquidity stress. GSI's investing and financing activities may lead to situations where the holdings from these activities represent a significant portion of specific markets, which could restrict liquidity for GSI's positions.

Further, GSI's ability to sell assets may be impaired if there is not generally a liquid market for such assets, as well as in circumstances where other market participants are seeking to sell similar otherwise generally liquid assets at the same time, as is likely to occur in a liquidity or other market crisis or in response to changes to rules or regulations. For example, in 2021, an investment management firm with large positions with several financial institutions defaulted, resulting in rapidly declining prices in the securities underlying those positions. In addition, clearing houses, exchanges and other financial institutions with which GSI interacts may exercise set-off rights or the right to require additional collateral, including in difficult market conditions, which could further impair GSI's liquidity.

Numerous regulations have been adopted that impose more stringent liquidity requirements on large financial institutions, including us. These regulations require GSI to hold large amounts of highly liquid assets and reduce GSI's flexibility to source and deploy funding.

(b) GSI's businesses have been and may in the future be adversely affected by disruptions or lack of liquidity in the credit markets, including reduced access to credit and higher costs of obtaining credit

Widening credit spreads for GSI or GSG, as well as significant declines in the availability of credit, have in the past adversely affected GSI's ability to borrow on a secured and unsecured basis and may do so in the future. GSI obtains the majority of its unsecured funding indirectly from GSG, which funds itself on an unsecured basis by issuing long-term debt, by raising deposits at its bank subsidiaries, by issuing hybrid financial instruments and by obtaining bank loans or lines of credit. GSI seeks to finance many of its assets on a secured basis. Any disruptions in the credit markets may make it harder and more expensive to obtain funding for businesses. If GSI's available funding is limited or GSI is forced to fund operations at a higher cost, these conditions may require curtailment of business activities and increase the cost of funding, both of which could reduce profitability, particularly in businesses that involve investing and market making.

Clients engaging in mergers, acquisitions and other types of strategic transactions often rely on access to the secured and unsecured credit markets to finance their transactions. A lack of available credit or an increased cost of credit can adversely affect the size, volume and timing of clients' merger and acquisition transactions, particularly large transactions, and adversely affect GSI's advisory and underwriting businesses.

GSI's credit businesses have been and may in the future be negatively affected by a lack of liquidity in credit markets. A lack of liquidity reduces price transparency, increases price volatility and decreases transaction volumes and size, all of which can increase transaction risk or decrease the profitability of these businesses.

(c) Reductions in GSI's and/or GSG's credit ratings or an increase in its credit spreads may adversely affect its liquidity and cost of funding

GSI is an indirect, wholly-owned operating subsidiary of GSG and depends on GSG for capital and funding. The credit ratings of GSI and those of GSG are important to GSI's liquidity. A reduction in GSI's and/or GSG's credit ratings could adversely affect GSI's liquidity and competitive position, increase borrowing costs, limit access to the capital markets or funding from GSG or trigger obligations under certain provisions in some trading and collateralised financing contracts. Under these provisions, counterparties could be permitted to terminate contracts with GSI or GSG or require additional collateral. Termination of trading and collateralised financing contracts could cause losses and impair liquidity by requiring GSG or GSI to find other sources of financing or to make significant cash payments or securities movements.

GSI's cost of obtaining long-term unsecured funding is directly related to both the credit spreads (the amount in excess of the interest rate of benchmark securities that GSI or GSG (as applicable) need to pay) of GSI and GSG increases in the credit spreads of GSI and/or GSG can significantly increase the cost of this funding. Changes in credit spreads are continuous, market-driven, and subject at times to unpredictable and highly volatile movements. The credit spreads of GSI and/or GSG are also influenced by market perceptions of GSI's and/or GSG's creditworthiness and movements in the costs to purchasers of credit default swaps referenced to GSG's long-term debt. The market for credit default swaps has proven to be extremely volatile and at times has lacked a high degree of transparency or liquidity.

2.2 Market Risks

(a) GSI's businesses have been and may in the future be adversely affected by conditions in the global financial markets and broader economic conditions

GSI's businesses, by their nature, do not produce predictable earnings and are materially affected by conditions in the global financial markets and economic conditions generally, both directly and through their impact on client activity levels and creditworthiness. These conditions can change suddenly and negatively.

GSI's financial performance is highly dependent on the environment in which its businesses operate. A favourable business environment is generally characterised by, among other factors, high global gross domestic product growth, regulatory and market conditions that result in transparent, liquid and efficient capital markets, low inflation, business, consumer and investor confidence, stable geopolitical conditions and strong business earnings.

Unfavourable or uncertain economic and market conditions can be caused by: low levels of or declines in economic growth, business activity or investor, business or consumer confidence; concerns over a potential recession; changes in consumer spending or borrowing patterns; pandemics; limitations on the availability or increases in the cost of credit and capital; illiquid markets; increases in inflation, interest rates, exchange rate or basic commodity price volatility or default rates; high levels of inflation or stagflation; concerns about sovereign defaults; uncertainty concerning fiscal or monetary policy; the extent of and uncertainty about potential increases in tax rates and other regulatory changes; limitations on international trade and travel; laws and regulations that limit trading in, or the issuance of, securities of issuers outside their domestic markets; outbreaks or worsening of domestic or international tensions or hostilities, terrorism, nuclear proliferation, cybersecurity threats or attacks and other forms of disruption to or curtailment of global communication, energy transmission or transportation networks or other geopolitical instability or uncertainty; corporate, political or other scandals that reduce investor confidence in capital markets; extreme weather events or other natural disasters; or a combination of these or other factors.

Risk Factors

The financial services industry and the securities and other financial markets have been materially and adversely affected in the past by significant declines in the values of nearly all asset classes, by a serious lack of liquidity and by high levels of borrower defaults. In addition, concerns about actual or potential increases in interest rates, inflation and other borrowing costs, public health emergency, sovereign debt risk and its impact on the relevant sovereign banking system, and limitations on international trade, have, at times, negatively impacted the levels of client activity.

General uncertainty about economic, political and market activities, and the scope, timing and impact of regulatory reform, as well as weak consumer, investor and chief executive officer confidence resulting in large part from such uncertainty, has in the past negatively impacted client activity, which has in the past adversely affected and could in the future adversely affect many of GSI's businesses. Periods of low volatility and periods of high volatility combined with a lack of liquidity, have at times had an unfavourable impact on GSI's market-making businesses.

Changes, or proposed changes, to U.S. international trade and investment policies, particularly with important trading partners, have in recent years negatively impacted financial markets. Continued or escalating tensions may result in further actions taken by the U.S. or other countries that could disrupt international trade and investment and adversely affect financial markets. Those actions could include, among others, the implementation of sanctions, tariffs or foreign exchange measures, the large-scale sale of U.S. Treasury securities or other restrictions on cross-border trade, investment, or transfer of information or technology. Such developments have in the past affected and could in the future adversely affect GSI or GSI's clients' businesses.

Financial institution returns may be negatively impacted by increased funding costs due in part to the lack of perceived government support of such institutions in the event of future financial crises relative to financial institutions in countries in which governmental support is maintained. In addition, liquidity in the financial markets has in the past been, and could in the future be negatively impacted as market participants and market practices and structures adjust to evolving regulatory frameworks.

In June 2023, the U.S. federal government suspended the federal debt limit until 2025. If Congress does not raise the debt ceiling prior to 2025, the U.S. could default on its obligations, including Treasury securities that play an integral role in financial markets. A default by the U.S. could result in unprecedented market volatility and illiquidity, heightened operational risks relating to the clearance and settlement of transactions, margin and other disputes with clients and counterparties, an adverse impact to investors including money market funds that invest in U.S. Treasuries, downgrades in the U.S. credit rating, further increases in interest rates and borrowing costs and a recession in the U.S. or other economies. Continued uncertainty relating to the debt ceiling could result in downgrades of the U.S. credit rating, which could adversely affect market conditions, lead to margin disputes, further increases in interest rates and borrowing costs and necessitate significant operational changes among market participants, including us. A downgrade of the U.S. federal government's credit rating could also materially and adversely affect the market for repurchase agreements, securities borrowing and lending, and other financings typically collateralised by U.S. Treasury or agency obligations. Further, the fair value, liquidity and credit ratings of securities issued by, or other obligations of, agencies of the U.S. government or related to the U.S. government or its agencies, as well as municipal bonds could be similarly adversely affected. An increasing frequency of government shutdowns, or near shutdowns, in the U.S. could also lead to uncertainty as to the continued funding of the U.S. government, which could, in turn, adversely affect the credit ratings of the U.S. and the market for U.S. Treasury or agency obligations.

In the current year, numerous elections have been and further elections will be held globally. As a result, there may be a significant market uncertainty in the periods leading up to the elections and this could cause higher volatility, lower levels of market activity and other adverse conditions for GSI's businesses.

The outcomes of the elections could also result in significant changes in policy, which could also have adverse effects on GSI or the business environment in which GSI operates more generally.

- (b) GSI's businesses have been and may in the future be adversely affected by declining asset values, particularly where GSI has net "long" positions, receives fees based on the value of assets managed, or receives or posts collateral

Many of GSI's businesses have net "long" positions in debt securities, loans, derivatives, mortgages, equities (including private equity) and most other asset classes. These include positions taken when GSI acts as a principal to facilitate clients' activities, including exchange-based market-making activities, or commits large amounts of capital to maintain positions in interest rate and credit products, as well as through currencies, commodities, equities and mortgage-related activities. In addition, GSI invests in similar asset classes. Substantially all of GSI's investing and market-making positions are marked-to-market on a daily basis and declines in asset values directly and immediately impact earnings, unless GSI has effectively "hedged" its exposures to those declines.

In certain circumstances (particularly in the case of credit products and private equities or other securities that are not freely tradable or lack established and liquid trading markets), it may not be possible or economic for GSI to hedge its exposures and to the extent that this is done the hedge may be ineffective or may greatly reduce GSI's ability to profit from increases in the values of the assets. Sudden declines and significant volatility in the prices of assets have in the past substantially curtailed or eliminated, and may in the future substantially curtail or eliminate, the trading markets for certain assets, which may make it difficult to sell, hedge or value such assets. GSI may incur losses from time to time as trading markets deteriorate or cease to function, including with respect to securities offerings GSI has underwritten. The inability to sell or effectively hedge assets reduces GSI's ability to limit losses in such positions and the difficulty in valuing assets has in the past negatively affected, and may in the future negatively affect, GSI's capital, liquidity or leverage ratios, its funding costs and its ability to deploy capital.

In GSI's exchange-based market-making activities, GSI is obligated by stock exchange rules to maintain an orderly market, including by purchasing securities in a declining market. In markets where asset values are declining and in volatile markets, this results in losses and an increased need for liquidity.

Collateral is posted to support obligations of GSI and received that supports the obligations of clients and counterparties. When the value of the assets posted as collateral or the credit ratings of the party posting collateral decline, the party posting the collateral may need to provide additional collateral or, if possible, reduce its trading position. An example of such a situation is a "margin call" in connection with a brokerage account. Therefore, declines in the value of asset classes used as collateral mean that either the cost of funding positions is increased or the size of positions is decreased. If GSI is the party providing collateral, this can increase costs and reduce profitability and if GSI is the party receiving collateral, this can also reduce profitability by reducing the level of business done with clients and counterparties.

In addition, volatile or less liquid markets increase the difficulty of valuing assets which can lead to costly and time-consuming disputes over asset values and the level of required collateral, as well as increased credit risk to the recipient of the collateral due to delays in receiving adequate collateral. In cases where GSI forecloses on collateral, sudden declines in the value or liquidity of the collateral have in the past resulted in and may in the future, result in significant losses to GSI, especially where there is a single type of collateral supporting the obligation. In addition, GSI may be subject to claims that the foreclosure was not permitted under the legal documents, was conducted in an improper manner, including in violation of law, or caused a client or counterparty to go out of business.

- (c) GSI's market-making activities have been and may in the future be affected by changes in the levels of market volatility

Certain of GSI's market-making activities depend on market volatility to provide trading and arbitrage opportunities to our clients, and decreases in volatility have reduced and may in the future reduce these opportunities and the level of client activity associated with them and have adversely affected and may in the future adversely affect the results of these activities. Increased volatility, while it can increase trading volumes and spreads, also increases risk as measured by Value-at-Risk (VaR) and increases risks in connection with GSI's market-making activities and can cause GSI to reduce its inventory. Limiting the size of GSI's market-making positions can adversely affect GSI's profitability. In periods when volatility is increasing, but asset values are declining significantly, it may not be possible to sell assets at all or it may only be possible to do so at steep discounts. In those circumstances, GSI has been and may in the future be forced to either take on additional risk or to realize losses in order to decrease its VaR. In addition, increases in volatility increase the level of GSI's RWAs, which increases the amount of capital that GSI is required to hold, and this can reduce GSI's profitability and reduce its ability to distribute capital to its shareholders.

- (d) GSI's investment banking and client intermediation businesses have been adversely affected and may in the future be adversely affected by market uncertainty or lack of confidence among investors and chief executive officers due to declines in economic activity and other unfavourable economic, geopolitical or market conditions

GSI's investment banking business has been and may in the future be adversely affected by market conditions. Poor economic conditions and other uncertain geopolitical conditions may adversely affect and have in the past adversely affected investor and CEO confidence, resulting in significant industry-wide declines in the size and number of underwritings and of advisory transactions, which would likely have and have in the past had an adverse effect on GSI's revenues and profit margins. In particular, because a significant portion of GSI's investment banking revenues is derived from GSI's participation in large transactions, a decline in the number of large transactions has in the past and would in the future adversely affect GSI's investment banking business. Similarly, in recent years, cross-border initial public offerings and other securities offerings have accounted for a significant proportion of new issuance activity. Legislative, regulatory or other changes that limit trading in, or the issuance of, securities outside the issuers' domestic markets, that result in or could result in the delisting or removal of securities from exchanges or indices, have in the past adversely affected and would in the future adversely affect GSI's underwriting and client intermediation businesses. Furthermore, changes, or proposed changes, to international trade and investment policies of the U.S. and other countries could negatively affect market activity levels and GSI's revenues.

In certain circumstances, market uncertainty or general declines in market or economic activity may adversely affect GSI's client intermediation businesses by decreasing levels of overall activity or by decreasing volatility.

- (e) Inflation has had, and could continue to have, a negative effect on GSI's business, results of operations and financial condition

Inflationary pressures have affected economies, financial markets and market participants worldwide. Inflationary pressures have increased certain of GSI's operating expenses, and have adversely affected consumer sentiment and CEO confidence. Central bank responses to inflationary pressures have also resulted in higher market interest rates, which, in turn, have contributed to lower activity levels across financial markets, in particular for debt underwriting transactions and mortgage originations, and resulted in lower values for certain financial assets which have adversely affected GSI's equity and debt investments. Higher interest rates increase GSI's borrowing costs. If inflationary pressures persist, GSI's expenses may increase further; activity levels for certain of GSI's businesses, in particular debt underwriting, may decline; GSI's interest expense could increase faster than GSI's interest income, reducing GSI's net interest income and net interest margin; certain of GSI's investments could continue to incur losses or generally low levels of returns; assets under supervision could decline, reducing management and other fees; economies worldwide could experience recessions; and GSI could continue to operate in a generally unfavourable economic and market environment.

2.3 Credit Risks

- (a) GSI's businesses, profitability and liquidity may be adversely affected by deterioration in the credit quality of or defaults by third parties

GSI is exposed to the risk that third parties who owe money, securities or other assets will not perform their obligations. These parties may default on their obligations to GSI due to bankruptcy, lack of liquidity, operational failure or other reasons. A failure of a significant market participant, or even concerns about a default by such an institution, has in the past and could in the future lead to significant liquidity problems, losses or defaults by other institutions, which in turn could adversely affect GSI.

GSI is also subject to the risk that its rights against third parties may not be enforceable in all circumstances. In addition, deterioration in the credit quality of third parties whose securities or obligations are held by GSI, including a deterioration in the value of collateral posted by third parties to secure their obligations to GSI under derivatives contracts and loan agreements, could result in losses and/or adversely affect GSI's ability to rehypothecate or otherwise use those securities or obligations for liquidity purposes.

A significant downgrade in the credit ratings of GSI's counterparties could also have a negative impact on GSI's results. While in many cases GSI is permitted to require additional collateral from counterparties that experience financial difficulty, disputes may arise as to the amount of collateral GSI is entitled to receive and the value of pledged assets. The termination of contracts and the foreclosure on collateral may subject GSI to claims for the improper exercise of its rights. Default rates, downgrades and disputes with counterparties as to the valuation of collateral typically increase significantly in times of market stress, increased volatility and illiquidity.

As part of GSI's clearing and prime financing activities, GSI finances its clients' positions, and GSI could be held responsible for the defaults or misconduct of GS's clients. Default risk may arise from events or circumstances that are difficult to detect or foresee.

(b) Concentration of risk increases the potential for significant losses in GSI's market-making, underwriting, investing and financing activities

Concentration of risk increases the potential for significant losses in market-making, underwriting, investing and financing activities. The number and size of these transactions has affected and may in the future affect GSI's results of operations in a given period. Moreover, because of concentrated risk, GSI may suffer losses even when economic and market conditions are generally favourable for competitors. Disruptions in the credit markets can make it difficult to hedge these credit exposures effectively or economically.

In the ordinary course of business, GSI is at times subject to a concentration of credit risk to a particular counterparty, borrower, issuer (including sovereign issuers), or geographic area or group of related countries, such as the E.U., and a failure or downgrade of, or default by, such entities could negatively impact GSI's businesses, perhaps materially, and the systems by which GSI sets limits and monitors the level of its credit exposure to individual entities, industries, countries and regions may not function as anticipated. Regulatory reforms, including the European Market Infrastructure Regulation and the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act have led to increased centralisation of trading activity through particular clearing houses, central agents or exchanges, which has significantly increased GSI's concentration of risk with respect to these entities. While GSI's activities expose it to many different industries, counterparties and countries, GSI routinely executes a high volume of transactions with counterparties engaged in financial services activities, including brokers and dealers, commercial banks, clearing houses and exchanges. This has resulted in significant credit concentration with respect to these counterparties.

(c) Derivative transactions and delayed documentation or settlements may expose GSI to credit risk, unexpected risks and potential losses

GSI is party to a large number of derivative transactions, including credit derivatives. Many of these derivative instruments are individually negotiated and non-standardised, which can make exiting, transferring or settling positions difficult. Many credit derivatives require that GSI deliver to the counterparty the underlying security, loan or other obligation in order to receive payment. In a number of cases, GSI does not hold the underlying security, loan or other obligation and may not be able to obtain the underlying security, loan or other obligation. This could cause GSI to forfeit the payments due under these contracts or result in settlement delays with the attendant credit and operational risk as well as increased costs to GSI.

Derivative transactions also involve the risk that documentation has not been properly executed, that executed agreements may not be enforceable against the counterparty, or that obligations under such agreements may not be able to be "netted" against other obligations with such counterparty. In addition, counterparties may claim that such transactions were not appropriate or authorized.

As a signatory to the International Swaps and Derivatives Association Universal Resolution Stay Protocol (the "ISDA Universal Protocol") and the International Swaps and Derivatives Association 2018 U.S. Resolution Stay Protocol (collectively, the "ISDA Protocols"), GSI may not be able to exercise termination rights and other remedies against counterparties and, as this regime has not yet been tested, GSI may suffer risks or losses that it would not have expected to suffer if it could immediately close out transactions upon a termination event. The ISDA Protocols and these rules and regulations extend to repurchase agreements and other instruments that are not derivative contracts.

Derivative contracts and other transactions entered into with third parties are not always confirmed by the counterparties or settled on a timely basis. While the transaction remains unconfirmed or during any delay in settlement, GSI is subject to heightened credit and operational risk and in the event of a default may find it more difficult to enforce its rights.

In addition, as new complex derivative products are created, covering a wider array of underlying credit and other instruments, disputes about the terms of the underlying contracts could arise, which could impair GSI's ability to effectively manage its risk exposures from these products and subject it to increased costs. The provisions of legislation requiring central clearing of credit derivatives and other over-the-counter derivatives, or a market shift toward standardised derivatives, could reduce the risk associated with these transactions, but under certain circumstances could also limit GSI's ability to develop derivatives that best suit the needs of clients and to hedge its own risks, and could adversely affect GSI's profitability. In addition, these provisions have increased credit exposure to central clearing platforms.

2.4 Operational Risks

- (a) A failure in GSI's operational systems or human error, malfeasance or other misconduct, could impair its liquidity, disrupt its businesses, result in the disclosure of confidential information, damage its reputation and cause losses

GSI's businesses are highly dependent on its ability to process and monitor, on a daily basis, a very large number of transactions, many of which are highly complex, and occur at high volumes and frequencies, across numerous and diverse markets in many currencies. These transactions, as well as the information technology services provided to clients, often must adhere to client-specific guidelines, as well as legal and regulatory standards.

Many rules and regulations worldwide govern GSI's obligations to execute transactions and report such transactions and other information to regulators, exchanges and investors. Compliance with these legal and reporting requirements can be challenging, and GSI has been, and may in the future be, subject to regulatory fines and penalties for failing to follow these rules or to report timely, accurate and complete information in accordance with these rules.

As the volume, speed, frequency and complexity of transactions, especially electronic transactions (as well as the requirements to report such transactions on a real-time basis to clients, regulators and exchanges) increase, developing and maintaining GSI's operational systems and infrastructure has become more challenging, and the risk of systems or human error in connection with such transactions has increased, as have the potential consequences of such errors due to the speed and volume of transactions involved and the potential difficulty associated with discovering errors quickly enough to limit the resulting consequences. These risks are exacerbated in times of increased volatility.

GSI's financial, accounting, data processing or other operational systems and facilities have in the past not operated properly in certain respects and may in the future not operate properly or become disabled as a result of events that are wholly or partially beyond GSI's control, such as a spike in transaction volume, adversely affecting GSI's ability to process these transactions or provide these services. GSI must continuously update these systems to support its operations and growth and to respond to changes in regulations and markets, and invest heavily in systemic controls and training to pursue GSI's objective of ensuring that such transactions do not violate applicable rules and regulations or, due to errors in processing such transactions, adversely affect markets, GSI's clients and counterparties or GSI. Enhancements and updates to systems, as well as the requisite training, including in connection with the integration of new businesses, entail significant costs and create risks associated with implementing new systems and integrating them with existing ones.

The use of computing devices and phones is critical to the work done by GSI's employees and the operation of GSI's systems and businesses and those of its clients and third-party service providers and vendors. Their importance has continued to increase, in particular in light of hybrid work arrangements. Computers and computer networks are subject to various risks, including, among others, cyber attacks, inherent technological defects, system failures and human error. For example, fundamental security flaws in computer chips found in many types of these computing devices and phones have been reported in the past and may occur in the future. The use of personal devices by GSI's employees or by GSI's vendors for work-related activities also presents risks related to potential violations of record retention and other requirements. Cloud technologies are also critical to the operation of GSI's systems and platforms and GSI's reliance on cloud technologies is growing. Service disruptions have resulted, and may result in the future, in delays in accessing, or the loss of, data that is important to GSI's businesses and may hinder GSI's clients' access to GSI's platforms. There have been a number of widely publicised cases of outages in connection with access to cloud computing providers. Addressing these and similar issues could be costly and affect the performance of these businesses and systems. Operational risks may be incurred in applying fixes and there may still be residual security risks.

Notwithstanding the proliferation of technology and technology-based risk and control systems, GSI's businesses ultimately rely on people as its greatest resource, and, from time to time, they have in the past and may in the future make mistakes or engage in violations of applicable policies, laws, rules or procedures that are not always caught immediately by GSI's technological processes or by GSI's controls and other procedures, which are intended to prevent and detect such errors or violations. These have in the past and may in the future include calculation errors, mistakes in addressing emails, errors in software or model development or implementation, or simple errors in judgment, as well as intentional efforts to ignore or circumvent applicable policies, laws, rules or procedures. Human errors, malfeasance and other misconduct, including the intentional misuse of client information in connection with insider trading or for other purposes, even if promptly discovered and remediated, has in the past resulted and may in the future result in reputational damage and losses and liabilities for GSI.

The majority of GSI's employees are based in London and work in close proximity to one another. They are subject to potential catastrophic events, including, but not limited to, terrorist attacks, extreme weather, or other hostile events that could negatively affect GSI's business. Notwithstanding GSI's efforts to maintain business continuity, business disruptions impacting GSI's offices and employees could lead to GSI's employees' inability to occupy the offices, communicate with or travel to other office locations or work remotely. As a result, GSI's ability to service and interact with clients may be adversely impacted, due to GSI's failure or inability to successfully implement business contingency plans.

- (b) A failure or disruption in GSI's infrastructure, or in the operational systems or infrastructure of third parties, could impair GSI's liquidity, disrupt GSI's businesses, damage GSI's reputation and cause losses

GSI faces the risk of operational failure or significant operational delay, termination or capacity constraints of any of the clearing agents, exchanges, clearing houses or other financial intermediaries that it uses to facilitate securities and derivatives transactions, and as interconnectivity with clients grows, GSI will increasingly face the risk of operational failure or significant operational delay with respect to clients' systems.

Risk Factors

There has been significant consolidation among clearing agents, exchanges and clearing houses and an increasing number of derivative transactions are cleared on exchanges, which has increased GSI's exposure to operational failure or significant operational delay, termination or capacity constraints of the particular financial intermediaries that GSI uses and could affect GSI's ability to find adequate and cost-effective alternatives in the event of any such failure, delay, termination or constraint. Industry consolidation, whether among market participants or financial intermediaries, increases the risk of operational failure or significant operational delay as disparate complex systems need to be integrated, often on an accelerated basis.

The interconnectivity of multiple financial institutions with central agents, exchanges and clearing houses, and the increased centrality of these entities, increases the risk that an operational failure at one institution or entity may cause an industry-wide operational failure that could materially impact GSI's ability to conduct business. Interconnectivity of financial institutions with other companies through, among other things, application programming interfaces or APIs presents similar risks. Any such failure, termination or constraint could adversely affect GSI's ability to effect transactions, service GSI's clients, manage GSI's exposure to risk or expand GSI's businesses or result in financial loss or liability to GSI's clients, impairment of GSI's liquidity, disruption of GSI's businesses, regulatory intervention or reputational damage.

Despite GSI's resiliency plans and facilities, its ability to conduct business may be adversely impacted by a disruption in the infrastructure that supports its businesses and the communities where GSI is located. This may include a disruption involving electrical, satellite, undersea cable or other communications, internet, transportation or other facilities used by GSI, its employees or third parties with which GSI conducts business, including cloud service providers. These disruptions may occur as a result of events that affect only GSI's buildings or systems or those of such third parties, or as a result of events with a broader impact globally, regionally or in the cities where those buildings or systems are located, including, but not limited to, natural disasters, war, civil unrest, terrorism, economic or political developments, pandemics and weather events.

In addition, although GSI seeks to diversify its third-party vendors to increase its resiliency, GSI is also exposed to the risk that a disruption or other information technology event at a common service provider to GSI's vendors could impede their ability to provide products or services to GSI, including in connection with GSI's new business initiatives. GSI may not be able to effectively monitor or mitigate operational risks relating to its vendors' use of common service providers.

Additionally, although the prevalence and scope of applications of distributed ledger technology, cryptocurrency and similar technologies is growing, the technology is nascent and may be vulnerable to cyber attacks or have other inherent weaknesses. GSI is exposed to risks, and may become exposed to additional risks, related to distributed ledger technology, including through GSI's facilitation of clients' activities involving financial products that use distributed ledger technology, such as blockchain, or other digital assets, GSI's investments in companies that seek to develop platforms based on distributed ledger technology, the use of distributed ledger technology by third-party vendors, clients, counterparties, clearing houses and other financial intermediaries, and the receipt of digital assets as collateral.

Market volatility of financial products using distributed ledger technology may increase these risks.

(c) The development and use of artificial intelligence (AI) presents risks and challenges that may adversely impact GSI's business

GSI or GSI's third-party vendors, clients or counterparties may develop or incorporate AI technology in certain business processes, services or products. The development and use of AI present a number of risks and challenges to GSI's business. The legal and regulatory environment relating to AI is uncertain and rapidly evolving, and includes regulation targeted specifically at AI as well as provisions in intellectual property, privacy, consumer protection, employment and other laws applicable to the use of AI. These evolving laws and regulations could require changes in GSI's implementation of AI technology and increase GSI's compliance costs and the risk of non-compliance. AI models, particularly generative AI models, may produce output or take action that is incorrect, that result in the release of private, confidential or proprietary information, that reflect biases included in the data on which they are trained, infringe on the intellectual property rights of others, or that is otherwise harmful. In addition, the complexity of many AI models makes it challenging to understand why they are generating particular outputs. This limited transparency increases the challenges associated with assessing the proper operation of AI models, understanding and monitoring the capabilities of the AI models, reducing erroneous output, eliminating bias and complying with regulations that require documentation or explanation of the basis on which decisions are made. Further, GSI may rely on AI models developed by third parties, and, to that extent, would be dependent in part on the manner in which those third parties develop and train their models, including risks arising from the inclusion of any unauthorized material in the training data for their models, and the effectiveness of the steps these third parties have taken to limit the risks associated with the output of their models, matters over which GSI may have limited visibility. Any of these risks could expose GSI to liability or adverse legal or regulatory consequences and harm GSI's reputation and the public perception of GSI's business or the effectiveness of GSI's security measures.

In addition to GSI's use of AI technologies, GSI is exposed to risks arising from the use of AI technologies by bad actors to commit fraud and misappropriate funds and to facilitate cyberattacks. Generative AI, if used to perpetrate fraud or launch cyberattacks, could result in losses, liquidity outflows or other adverse effects at a particular financial institution or exchange.

- (d) A failure to protect GSI's computer systems, networks and information, and its clients' information, against cyber attacks and similar threats could impair its ability to conduct its businesses, result in the disclosure, theft or destruction of confidential information, damage its reputation and cause losses

GSI's operations rely on the secure processing, storage and transmission of confidential and other information in GSI's computer systems and networks and those of GSI's vendors. There have been a number of highly publicised cases involving financial services companies, consumer-based companies, software and information technology service providers, governmental agencies and other organisations reporting the unauthorized access or disclosure of client, customer or other confidential information in recent years, as well as cyber attacks involving the dissemination, theft and destruction of corporate information or other assets, as a result of inadequate procedures or the failure to follow procedures by employees or contractors or as a result of actions by third parties, including actions by foreign governments. There have also been a number of highly publicised cases where hackers have requested "ransom" payments in exchange for not disclosing customer information or for restoring access to information or systems.

GSI is regularly the target of attempted cyber attacks, including denial-of-service attacks, and must continuously monitor and develop its systems to protect the integrity and functionality of its technology infrastructure and access to and the security of its data. Further, the use of AI by cybercriminals may increase the frequency and severity of cybersecurity attacks against GSI or GSI's third-party vendors and clients. The migration of GSI's communication from devices GSI provides to employee-owned devices presents additional risks of cyber attacks, as do hybrid work arrangements. In addition, due to the interconnectivity with third-party vendors (and their respective service providers), central agents, exchanges, clearing houses and other financial institutions, GSI could be adversely impacted if any of them is subject to a successful cyber attack or other information security event. These impacts could include the loss of access to information or services from the third party subject to the cyber attack or other information security event or could result in unauthorised access to or disclosure of client, customer or other confidential information, which could, in turn, interrupt certain of GSI's businesses.

Despite GSI's efforts to ensure the integrity of its systems and information, it may not be able to anticipate, detect or implement effective preventive measures against all cyber threats, including because the techniques used are increasingly sophisticated, change frequently and are often not recognised until launched. Cyber attacks can originate from a variety of sources, including third parties who are affiliated with or sponsored by foreign governments or are involved with organised crime or terrorist organisations. Third parties may also attempt to place individuals in GSI's office or induce employees, clients or other users of GSI's systems to disclose sensitive information or provide access to GSI's data or that of its clients, and these types of risks may be difficult to detect or prevent.

Although GSI takes protective measures proactively and endeavours to modify them as circumstances warrant, its computer systems, software and networks may be vulnerable to unauthorised access, misuse, computer viruses or other malicious code, cyber attacks on GSI's vendors and other events that could have a security impact. Risks relating to cyber attacks on GSI's vendors have been increasing given the greater frequency and severity in recent years of supply chain attacks affecting software and information technology service providers. Due to the complexity and interconnectedness of GSI's systems, the process of enhancing protective measures can itself create a risk of systems disruptions and security issues. In addition, protective measures that GSI employs to compartmentalise its data may reduce its visibility into, and adversely affect its ability to respond to, cyber threats and issues within its systems.

If one or more of these types of events occur, it potentially could jeopardise GSI or its clients' or counterparties' or third parties' confidential and other information processed, stored in or transmitted through GSI's computer systems and networks, or otherwise cause interruptions or malfunctions in GSI's operations or those of its clients, its counterparties or third parties, which could impact their ability to transact with GSI or otherwise result in legal or regulatory action, significant losses or reputational damage. In addition, such an event could persist for an extended period of time before being properly detected or escalated, and, following detection or escalation, it could take considerable time for GSI to obtain full and reliable information about the extent, amount and type of information compromised. During the course of an investigation, GSI may not know the full impact of the event and how to remediate it, and actions, decisions and mistakes that are taken or made may further increase the negative effects of the event on GSI's business, results of operations and reputation. Moreover, new regulations require GS Group to disclose information on a timely basis about material cybersecurity incidents, including those that may not have been resolved or fully investigated at the time of disclosure.

GSI has expended, and expects to continue to expend, significant resources on an ongoing basis to modify its protective measures and to investigate and remediate vulnerabilities or other exposures, but these measures may be ineffective and GSI may be subject to legal or regulatory action, as well as financial losses that are either not insured against or not fully covered through any insurance it maintains. Regulatory agencies have become increasingly focused on cybersecurity incidents.

GSI's confidential information may also be at risk from the compromise of clients' personal electronic devices or as a result of a data security breach at an unrelated company. Losses due to unauthorised account activity could harm GSI's reputation and may have adverse effects on its business, financial condition and results of operations.

The increased use of mobile and cloud technologies heightens these and other operational risks, as can hybrid work arrangements. Certain aspects of the security of these technologies are unpredictable or beyond GSI's control, and the failure by mobile technology and cloud service providers to adequately safeguard their systems and prevent cyber attacks could disrupt GSI's operations and result in misappropriation, corruption or loss of confidential and other information. In addition, there is a risk that encryption and other protective measures, despite their sophistication, may be defeated, particularly to the extent that new computing technologies vastly increase the speed and computing power available.

GSI routinely transmits and receives personal, confidential and proprietary information by email and other electronic means. GSI has discussed and worked with clients, vendors, service providers, counterparties and other third parties to develop secure transmission capabilities and protect against cyber attacks, but does not have, and may be unable to put in place, secure capabilities with all of its clients, vendors, service providers, counterparties and other third parties and it may not be able to ensure that these third parties have appropriate controls in place to protect the confidentiality of the information. An interception, misuse or mishandling of personal, confidential or proprietary information being sent to or received from a client, vendor, service provider, counterparty or other third party could result in legal liability, regulatory action and reputational harm.

(e) GSI may incur losses as a result of ineffective risk management processes and strategies

GSI seeks to monitor and control its risk exposure through a risk and control framework encompassing a variety of separate, but complementary financial, credit, operational, compliance and legal reporting systems, internal controls, management review processes and other mechanisms. GSI's risk management process seeks to balance its ability to profit from market-making positions and underwriting activities with its exposure to potential losses. Whilst GSI employs a broad and diversified set of risk monitoring and risk mitigation techniques, those techniques and the judgements that accompany their application cannot anticipate every economic and financial outcome or the specifics and timing of such outcomes. Thus, in the course of its activities, GSI has incurred and may in the future incur losses. Market conditions in recent years have involved unprecedented dislocations and highlight the limitations inherent in using historical data to manage risk.

The models that GSI uses to assess and control its risk exposures reflect assumptions about the degrees of correlation or lack thereof among prices of various asset classes or other market indicators. In times of market stress or other unforeseen circumstances, previously uncorrelated indicators may become correlated, or conversely previously correlated indicators may move in different directions. These types of market movements have at times limited the effectiveness of GSI's hedging strategies and have caused it to incur significant losses, and they may do so in the future. These changes in correlation have been and may in the future be exacerbated where other market participants are using risk or trading models with assumptions or algorithms that are similar to GSI's. In these and other cases, it may be difficult to reduce GSI's risk positions due to the activity of other market participants or widespread market dislocations, including circumstances where asset values are declining significantly or no market exists for certain assets.

In addition, the use of models in connection with risk management and numerous other critical activities presents risks that the models may be ineffective, either because of poor design, ineffective testing or improper or flawed inputs, as well as unpermitted access to the models resulting in unapproved or malicious changes to the model or its inputs.

To the extent that GSI has positions through its market-making or origination activities or it makes investments directly through its investing activities, including private equity, that do not have an established liquid trading market or are otherwise subject to restrictions on sale or hedging, GSI may not be able to reduce its positions and therefore reduce its risk associated with those positions.

Prudent risk management, as well as regulatory restrictions, may cause GSI to limit its exposure to counterparties, geographic areas or markets, which may limit its business opportunities and increase the cost of funding or hedging activities.

(f) GSI is reliant on GSG and other GS Group affiliates for client business, various services and capital

GSI is a wholly-owned subsidiary of GSG. As a wholly-owned subsidiary, GSI relies on various business relationships of GSG and other GS Group affiliates generally, including the ability to receive various services, as well as, in part, the capital and liquidity of GSI's ultimate parent, GSG, as well as the liquidity of Goldman Sachs Funding LLC ("Funding IHC"), a wholly-owned, direct subsidiary of GSG that facilitates the execution of GS Group's preferred resolution strategy. Although GSI has taken steps to reduce its reliance on other GS Group affiliates, it remains an operating subsidiary of a larger organisation and therefore its interconnectedness within the organisation will continue. Because GSI's business relies upon GSG and other GS Group affiliates to a significant extent, risks that could affect these entities could also have a significant impact on GSI.

Furthermore, GSI relies upon certain GS Group affiliates for various support services, including, but not limited to, trade execution, relationship management, settlement and clearing, risk management and other technical, operational and administrative services. Such services are provided to GSI pursuant to the intercompany services agreement, which is generally terminable upon mutual agreement of GSG and its subsidiaries, subject to certain exceptions, including material breach of the agreement.

As a consequence of the foregoing, in the event GSI's relationships with other GS Group affiliates are not maintained, for any reason, including as a result of possible strategic decisions that GSG may make from time-to-time or as a result of material adverse changes in GSG's performance, GSI's net revenues may decline, the cost of operating and funding its business may increase and GSI's business, financial condition and profitability may be materially and adversely affected.

Furthermore, GSI receives a portion of its funding in the form of unsecured funding indirectly from GSG and from Funding IHC, and collateralised financings from other GS Group affiliates. To the extent such funding is not available to GSI, its growth could be constrained and/or its cost of funding could increase.

2.5 Legal and Regulatory Risks

(a) GSI's businesses and those of its clients are subject to extensive and pervasive regulation around the world

As a participant in the financial services industry and a subsidiary of a systemically important financial institution, GSI is subject to extensive regulation, principally in the U.K., and the E.U. more generally, but also in the U.S. as a subsidiary of GSG and in certain other jurisdictions. GSI faces the risk of significant intervention by law enforcement, regulatory and tax authorities, as well as private litigation, in all jurisdictions in which it conducts its businesses. In many cases, GSI's activities have been and may continue to be subject to overlapping and divergent regulation in different jurisdictions. Among other things, as a result of law enforcement authorities, regulators or private parties challenging GSI's compliance with laws and regulations, GSI or its employees have been and could be fined, criminally charged or sanctioned, prohibited from engaging in certain business activities, subjected to limitations or conditions on its business activities including higher capital requirements, or subjected to new or substantially higher taxes or other governmental charges in connection with the conduct of its businesses or with respect to its employees. These limitations or conditions may limit business activities and negatively impact GSI's profitability.

In addition to the impact on the scope and profitability of GSI's business activities, day-to-day compliance with laws and regulations has involved and will continue to involve significant amounts of time, including that of GSI's senior leaders and that of a large number of dedicated compliance and other reporting and operational personnel, in connection with which GSI expects to continue to add personnel, all of which may negatively impact GSI's profitability.

GSI's revenues and profitability and those of its competitors have been and will continue to be impacted by requirements relating to capital, leverage, liquidity and long-term funding levels, requirements related to resolution and recovery planning, derivatives clearing and margin rules and levels of regulatory oversight, as well as limitations on which and, if permitted, how certain business activities may be carried out by financial institutions. The laws and regulations that apply to GSI's businesses are often complex and, in many cases, GSI must make interpretive decisions regarding the application of those laws and regulations to its business activities. Changes in interpretations, whether in response to regulatory guidance, industry conventions, GSI's own reassessments or otherwise, could adversely affect its businesses, results of operations or ability to satisfy applicable regulatory requirements, such as capital or liquidity requirements.

If there are new laws or regulations or changes in the interpretation or enforcement of existing laws or regulations applicable to GSI, GSI's businesses or those of GSI's clients, including changes to the U.K. capital framework under the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision's ("Basel Committee") capital framework for strengthening internal capital standards ("Basel

III"), including changes to minimum capital requirements, liquidity, leverage, long-term debt, margin requirements, restrictions on other business practices, reporting requirements, the application of regulatory strategies and requirements to facilitate the orderly resolution of large financial institutions, tax burdens and compensation restrictions, that are imposed on a limited subset of financial institutions (whether based on size, method of funding, activities, geography or other criteria) which may include GSI or GS Group, compliance with these new laws and regulations, or changes in the enforcement of existing laws or regulations, could adversely affect GSI's ability to compete effectively with other institutions that are not affected in the same way. In addition, regulation imposed on financial institutions or market participants generally, such as taxes on stock transfers, share repurchases and other financial transactions, could adversely impact levels of market activity more broadly, and thus impact GSI's businesses. Changes to laws and regulations, such as tax laws, could also have a disproportionate impact on GSI, based on the way those laws or regulations are applied to financial services and financial firms or due to its corporate structure or how we provide these services.

These developments could impact GSI's profitability in the affected jurisdictions, or even make it uneconomic to continue to conduct all or certain businesses in those jurisdictions, or could result in GSI incurring significant costs associated with changing business practices, restructuring businesses, moving all or certain businesses and employees to other locations or complying with applicable capital requirements, including liquidating assets or raising capital in a manner that adversely increases GSI's funding costs or otherwise adversely affects its shareholder and creditors.

U.S. and non-U.S. regulatory developments, in particular the Dodd-Frank Act and Basel III, have significantly altered the regulatory framework within which GS Group operates and have adversely affected and may in the future adversely affect GS Group's profitability. Among the aspects of the Dodd-Frank Act that have affected or may in the future affect GS Group's businesses are: increased capital, liquidity and reporting requirements; limitations on activities in which GS Group may engage; increased regulation of and restrictions on OTC derivatives markets and transactions; limitations on incentive compensation; limitations on affiliate transactions; requirements to reorganize or limit activities in connection with recovery and resolution planning; increased deposit insurance assessments; and increased standards of care for broker-dealers and investment advisers in dealing with clients.

In July 2023, the U.S. federal bank regulatory authorities proposed a rule implementing the Basel Committee's finalisation of the Basel III post-crisis regulatory reforms (the "Basel III Revisions"). Among other changes, this rule includes provisions that set a floor on internally modelled capital requirements at a percentage of the capital requirements under the standardised approach (known as the 'output floor'). The U.K.'s Prudential Regulatory Authority's (the "PRA") proposed Basel III Revisions exclude U.K. subsidiaries of overseas banking groups that are subject to the output floor on a global consolidated basis from a standalone output floor requirement. As such, GSI does not expect to be subject to this requirement on a standalone basis in the U.K., however the impact of the proposed rules is subject to uncertainty until they are finalised by U.S. regulators and the PRA and corresponding legislation is implemented. In September 2023, the PRA announced a delay in the proposed effective date of the Basel III Revisions by six months to July 1, 2025 and announced that it will publish near-final policy statements on market risk, credit valuation adjustment risk, counterparty credit risk and operational risk in the fourth quarter of 2023 and near-final policy statements on credit risk, the output floor, and reporting and disclosure requirements in the second quarter of 2024. GSI is also subject to laws and regulations, such as the General Data Protection Regulation ("GDPR"), relating to the privacy of the information of clients, employees or others, and any failure to comply with these laws and regulations could expose GSI to liability and/or reputational damage. As new privacy-related laws and regulations are implemented, the time and resources needed for GSI to comply with such laws and regulations, as well as GSI's potential liability for non-compliance and reporting obligations in the case of data breaches, may significantly increase.

In addition, GSI's businesses are increasingly subject to laws and regulations relating to surveillance, encryption and data on-shoring in the jurisdictions in which GSI operates. Compliance with these laws and regulations may require GSI to change its policies, procedures and technology for information security, which could, among other things, make GSI more vulnerable to cyber attacks and misappropriation, corruption or loss of information or technology.

Increasingly, regulators and courts have sought to hold financial institutions liable for the misconduct of their clients where they have determined that the financial institution should have detected that the client was engaged in wrongdoing, even though the financial institution had no direct knowledge of the activities engaged in by its client. Regulators and courts have also increasingly found liability as a "control person" for activities of entities in which financial institutions or funds controlled by financial institutions have an investment, but which they do not actively manage. In addition, regulators and courts continue to seek to establish "fiduciary" obligations to counterparties to which no such duty had been thought to exist. To the extent that such efforts are successful, the cost of, and liabilities associated with, engaging in brokerage, clearing, market-making, prime financing, investing and other similar activities could increase significantly. To the extent that GSI has fiduciary obligations in connection with acting as a financial advisor or investment advisor or in other roles for individual, institutional, sovereign or investment fund clients, any breach, or even an alleged breach, of such obligations could have materially negative legal, regulatory and reputational consequences.

Further, we are subject to regulatory settlements, orders and feedback that require significant remediation activities, which require us to commit significant resources, including hiring, as well as testing the operation and effectiveness of new controls, policies and procedures.

(b) A failure to appropriately identify and address potential conflicts of interest could adversely affect GSI's businesses

Due to the broad scope of GS Group's businesses and client base, GSI regularly addresses potential conflicts of interest, including situations where services to a particular client or GS Group's own investments or other interests conflict, or are perceived to conflict, with the interests of that client or another client, as well as situations where one or more of its businesses have access to material non-public information that may not be shared with other businesses within GS Group and situations where it may be a creditor of an entity with which GS Group also has an advisory or other relationship.

Extensive procedures and controls are in place that are designed to identify and address conflicts of interest, including those designed to prevent the improper sharing of information among businesses. However, appropriately identifying and dealing with conflicts of interest is complex and difficult, and GSI's reputation, which is one of its most important assets, could be damaged and the willingness of clients to enter into transactions with GSI may be adversely affected if it fails, or appears to fail, to identify, disclose and deal appropriately with conflicts of interest. In addition, potential or perceived conflicts could give rise to litigation or regulatory enforcement actions. Additionally, GS Group's One Goldman Sachs initiative aims to increase collaboration amongst its businesses, which may increase the potential for actual or perceived conflicts of interest and improper information sharing. The realignment of GS Group's businesses and segments presents similar risks.

(c) Substantial civil or criminal liability or significant regulatory action against GSI could have material adverse financial effects, or cause it significant reputational harm, which in turn could seriously harm its business prospects

GSI faces significant legal risks in its businesses, and the volume of claims and amount of damages and penalties claimed in litigation and regulatory proceedings against financial institutions remain high. GSI is, from time to time, subject to a number of other investigations and reviews by, and in some cases has received requests for documents and information from, various governmental and regulatory bodies and self-regulatory organisations relating to various aspects of GSI's businesses and operations. GSI has seen legal claims by clients increase in a market downturn and employment-related claims increase following periods of headcount reduction. Additionally, governmental entities have been plaintiffs and are parties in certain of GSI's legal proceedings, and it may face future civil or criminal actions or claims by the same or other governmental entities, as well as follow-on civil litigation that is often commenced after regulatory settlements.

Significant settlements by large financial institutions with governmental entities have become common. The trend of large settlements with governmental entities may adversely affect the outcomes for other financial institutions, including, in some cases, GSI, or GS Group, in similar actions, especially where governmental officials have announced that the large settlements will be used as the basis or a template for other settlements. The uncertain regulatory enforcement environment makes it difficult to estimate probable losses, which can lead to substantial disparities between legal reserves and subsequent actual settlements or penalties.

GSI is subject to laws and regulations worldwide, including the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and the U.K. Bribery Act, relating to corrupt and illegal payments to, and hiring practices with regard to, government officials and others. Violation of these or similar laws and regulations have in the past resulted in and could in the future result in significant monetary penalties. Such violations could also result in severe restrictions on GSI's activities and damage to its reputation.

Resolution of a criminal matter involving GSI or its employees could lead to increased exposure to civil litigation, could adversely affect GSI's reputation, could result in penalties or limitations on GSI's ability to conduct its activities generally or in certain circumstances and could have other negative effects.

(d) In conducting its business around the world, GSI is subject to political, legal, regulatory and other risks that are inherent in operating in many countries

In conducting GSI's businesses and supporting its global operations, GSI is subject to risks of possible nationalisation, expropriation, price controls, capital controls, exchange controls, communications and other content restrictions and other restrictive governmental actions, as well as the outbreak of hostilities or acts of terrorism. For example, sanctions have been imposed by the U.S. and the E.U. on certain individuals and companies in Russia and Venezuela. In many countries, the laws and regulations applicable to the securities and financial services industries and many of the transactions in which GSI is involved are uncertain and evolving, and it may be difficult to determine the exact requirements of local laws in every market. GSI has been in some cases subject to divergent and conflicting laws and regulations across markets, and is increasingly subject to the risk that the jurisdictions in which it operates have implemented or may implement laws and regulations that directly conflict with those of another jurisdiction. Any determination by local regulators that GSI has not acted in compliance with the application of local laws in a particular market or a failure to develop effective working relationships with local regulators could have a significant and negative effect not only on GSI's businesses in that market, but also on its reputation generally. Further, in some jurisdictions a failure, or alleged failure, to comply with laws and regulations have subjected and may in the future subject GSI and its personnel not only to civil actions but also criminal actions and other sanctions. GSI is also subject to the enhanced risk that transactions it structures might not be legally enforceable in all cases.

While business and other practices throughout the world differ, GSI is subject in its operations worldwide to rules and regulations relating to corrupt and illegal payments, hiring practices and money laundering, as well as laws relating to doing business with certain individuals, groups and countries, such as the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the U.S. Bank Secrecy Act, as amended, and the U.K. Bribery Act. While GSI has invested and continues to invest significant resources in training and in compliance monitoring, the geographical diversity of its operations, employees, and clients, as well as the vendors and other third parties that GSI deals with, greatly increases the risk that GSI may be found in violation of such rules or regulations and any such violation could subject it to significant penalties or adversely affect its reputation.

In addition, there have been a number of highly publicised cases around the world, involving actual or alleged fraud or other misconduct by employees in the financial services industry in recent years, and GSI has had, and may in the future have, employee misconduct. This misconduct has included and may also in the future include intentional efforts to ignore or circumvent applicable policies, rules or procedures or misappropriation of funds and the theft of proprietary information, including proprietary software. It is not always possible to deter or prevent employee misconduct and the precautions taken to prevent and detect this activity have not been and may not be effective in all cases, as reflected by the settlements relating to 1Malaysia Development Berhad ("1MDB").

(e) The application of regulatory strategies and requirements to facilitate the orderly resolution of large financial institutions could create greater risk of loss for GSI's security holders

The circumstances in which a resolution authority would exercise its "bail-in" powers to recapitalise a failing entity by writing down its unsecured debt or converting it into equity are uncertain. If these powers were to be exercised (or if there was a suggestion that they could be exercised) in respect of GSI, such exercise would likely have a material adverse effect on the value of debt investments in GSI, including a potential loss of some or all of such investments.

The EU Bank Recovery and Resolution Directive ("BRRD") entered into force on 2 July 2014. EU member states were required to adopt and publish the laws, regulations and administrative provisions necessary to comply with the BRRD. Its stated aim is to provide national "resolution authorities" with powers and tools to address banking crises pre-emptively in order to safeguard financial stability and minimise taxpayers' exposure to losses.

The majority of the requirements of the BRRD have been implemented in the UK through the UK Banking Act 2009, as amended, and related statutory instruments (together, the "UK Banking Act"). The UK Banking Act provides for a "resolution regime" granting substantial powers to the Bank of England (or, in certain circumstances, HM Treasury), to implement resolution measures (in consultation with other UK authorities) with respect to a UK financial institution (such as GSI) where the resolution authority considers that the relevant institution is failing or is likely to fail, there is no reasonable prospect of other measures preventing the failure of the institution and resolution action is necessary in the public interest.

The resolution powers available to the resolution authority include powers to: write down the amount owing, including to zero, or convert the relevant securities into other securities, including ordinary shares of the relevant institution (or a subsidiary) – the so-called "bail-in" tool; transfer all or part of the business of the relevant institution to a "bridge bank"; transfer impaired or problem assets to an asset management vehicle; and sell the relevant institution to a commercial purchaser.

In addition, the resolution authority is empowered to modify contractual arrangements, suspend enforcement or termination rights that might otherwise be triggered and disapply or modify laws in the UK (with possible retrospective effect) to enable the recovery and resolution powers under the UK Banking Act to be used effectively.

You should assume that, in a resolution situation, financial public support will only be available to GSI (or any member of Goldman Sachs) as a last resort after the relevant resolution authorities have assessed and used, to the maximum extent practicable, the resolution tools, including the bail-in tool.

In the event that GSI, or any of its affiliates, becomes subject to a proceeding under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act or Title II of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (together, the "U.S. Special Resolution Regimes"), default rights against GSI in relation to the Instruments or (if applicable) to the relevant Guarantee given by GSI (as Guarantor) in relation to any Instruments issued by GSI, are permitted to be exercised to no greater extent than such default rights could be exercised under such U.S. Special Resolution Regime if the Instruments were governed by the laws of the United States or a state of the United States.

You should be aware that the exercise of any such resolution power or even the suggestion of any such potential exercise in respect of GSI (or any member of Goldman Sachs) could have a material adverse effect on the rights of holders of Securities and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantee given by GSI (as Guarantor), and could lead to a loss of some or all of the investment. The resolution regime is designed to be triggered prior to insolvency of the relevant institution, and holders of securities issued by such institution may not be able to anticipate the exercise of any resolution power (including exercise of the "bail-in" tool) by the resolution authority. Further, holders of securities issued by an institution which has been taken into a resolution regime will have very limited rights to challenge the exercise of powers by the resolution authority, even where such powers have resulted in the write down of the securities or conversion of the securities to equity.

Acknowledgement of bail-in power in respect of Swiss Securities issued by GSI: if you purchase Swiss Securities issued by GSI, you shall be deemed to have agreed to be bound by the exercise of any UK Bail-In Power by the Relevant UK Resolution Authority. See General Instrument Condition 7 (Contractual acknowledgement of bail-in in respect of Swiss Securities, French Law Instruments and Italian Law Instruments issued by GSI) and General Note Condition 7 (Contractual acknowledgement of bail-in in respect of Swiss Securities, French Law Notes and Italian Law Notes issued by GSI).

Acknowledgement of bail-in power in respect of French Law Instruments and French Law Notes issued by GSI: if you purchase French Law Instruments or French Law Notes issued by GSI, you shall be deemed to have agreed to be bound by the exercise of any UK Bail-In Power by the Relevant UK Resolution Authority. See General Instrument Condition 7 (Contractual acknowledgement of bail-in in respect of Swiss Securities, French Law Instruments and Italian Law Instruments issued by GSI) and General Note Condition 7 (Contractual acknowledgement of bail-in in respect of Swiss Securities, French Law Notes and Italian Law Notes issued by GSI).

Acknowledgement of bail-in power in respect of Italian Law Instruments and Italian Law Notes issued by GSI: if you purchase Italian Law Instruments or Italian Law Notes issued by GSI, you shall be deemed to have agreed to be bound by the exercise of any UK Bail-In Power by the Relevant UK Resolution Authority. See General Instrument Condition 7 (Contractual acknowledgement of bail-in in respect of Swiss Securities, French Law Instruments and Italian Law Instruments issued by GSI) and General Note Condition 7 (Contractual acknowledgement of bail-in in respect of Swiss Securities, French Law Notes and Italian Law Notes issued by GSI).

- (f) GSI's commodities activities, particularly GSI's physical commodities activities, subject GSI to extensive regulation and involve certain potential risks, including environmental, reputational and other risks that may expose GSI to significant liabilities and costs

As part of GSI's commodities business, GSI purchases and sells certain physical commodities, arranges for their storage and transport, and engages in market making of commodities. The commodities involved in these activities may include crude oil, refined oil products, natural gas, liquefied natural gas, electric power, agricultural products, metals (base and precious), minerals (including unenriched uranium), emission credits, coal, freight and related products and indices.

GSI makes investments in and finances entities that engage in the production, storage and transportation of numerous commodities, including many of the commodities referenced above. These activities subject GSI and/or the entities in which GSI invests to extensive and evolving national, regional and local energy, environmental, antitrust and other governmental laws and regulations worldwide, including environmental laws and regulations relating to, among others, air quality, water quality, waste management, transportation of hazardous substances, natural resources, site remediation and health and safety. Additionally, rising climate change concerns have led to additional regulation, regulatory scrutiny and disclosure obligations that have increased and could further increase the operating costs and could adversely affect the profitability of certain of our investments and activities.

There may be substantial costs in complying with current or future laws and regulations relating to GSI's commodities- related activities and investments. Compliance with these laws and regulations could require significant commitments of capital toward environmental monitoring, renovation of storage facilities or transport vessels, payment of emission fees and carbon or other taxes, and application for, and holding of, permits and licenses.

Commodities involved in GSI's intermediation activities and investments are also subject to the risk of unforeseen or catastrophic events, which are likely to be outside of GSI's control, including those arising from the breakdown or failure of transport vessels, storage facilities or other equipment or processes or other mechanical malfunctions, fires, leaks, spills or release of hazardous substances, performance below expected levels of output or efficiency, terrorist attacks, extreme weather events or other natural disasters or other hostile or catastrophic events. In addition, GSI relies on third-party suppliers or service providers to perform GSI's contractual obligations and any failure on their part, including the failure to obtain raw materials at reasonable prices or to safely transport or store commodities, could expose GSI to costs or losses. Also, while GSI seeks to insure against potential risks, GSI does not have insurance to cover some of these risks and the insurance that GSI has may be inadequate to cover our losses.

The occurrence of any of such events may prevent GSI from performing under its agreements with clients, may impair GSI's operations or financial results and may result in litigation, regulatory action, negative publicity or other reputational harm.

GSI has made changes to and may also be required to divest or discontinue certain of these activities for regulatory or legal reasons or due to the transition to a less carbon- dependent economy in response to climate change.

2.6 Competition Risks

(a) GSI's results have been and may in the future be adversely affected by the composition of its client base

GSI's client base is not the same as that of its major competitors. GSI's businesses may have a higher or lower percentage of clients in certain industries or markets than some or all of its competitors. Therefore, unfavourable industry developments or market conditions affecting certain industries or markets have resulted in the past and may result in the future in GSI's businesses underperforming relative to similar businesses of a competitor if its businesses have a higher concentration of clients in such industries or markets. For example, GSI's market-making businesses has a higher percentage of clients with actively managed assets than some of its competitors and such clients have in the past been and may in the future be disproportionately affected by low volatility.

Correspondingly, favourable or simply less adverse developments or market conditions involving industries or markets in a business where GSI has a lower concentration of clients in such industry or market have also resulted in the past and may result in the future in GSI underperforming relative to a similar business of a competitor that has a higher concentration of clients in such industry or market. For example, GSI has a smaller corporate client base in its market-making businesses than some of its peers and therefore GSI's competitors may benefit more from increased activity by corporate clients. Similarly, GSI has not historically engaged in retail equities intermediation to the same extent as other financial institutions, which has in the past affected and could in the future adversely affect its market share in equities execution.

(b) The financial services industry is highly competitive

The financial services industry and all of GSI's businesses are intensely competitive, and GSI expects them to remain so. GSI competes on the basis of a number of factors, including transaction execution, our products and services, innovation, reputation, creditworthiness and price. There has been substantial consolidation and convergence among companies in the financial services industry. This has hastened the globalization of the securities and other financial services markets. As a result, GSI has had to commit capital to support its international operations and to execute large global transactions. To the extent GSI expands into new business areas and new geographic regions, it will face competitors with more experience and more established relationships with clients, regulators and industry participants in the relevant market, which could adversely affect its ability to expand.

Governments and regulators have adopted regulations, imposed taxes, adopted compensation restrictions or otherwise put forward various proposals that have impacted or may impact GSI's ability to conduct certain of its businesses in a cost-effective manner or at all in certain or all jurisdictions, including proposals relating to restrictions on the type of activities in which financial institutions are permitted to engage. These or other similar rules, many of which do not apply to all GSI's competitors, could impact its ability to compete effectively.

Pricing and other competitive pressures in GSI's businesses have continued to increase, particularly in situations where some competitors may seek to increase market share by reducing prices. For example, in connection with investment banking and other engagements, in response to competitive pressure GSI has experienced, GSI has extended and priced credit at levels that in some cases have not fully compensated it for the risks it has undertaken.

The financial services industry is highly interrelated in that a significant volume of transactions occur among a limited number of members of that industry. Many transactions are syndicated to other financial institutions and financial institutions are often counterparties in transactions. This has led to claims by other market participants and regulators that such institutions have colluded in order to manipulate markets or market prices, including allegations that antitrust laws have been violated. While GSI has extensive procedures and controls that are designed to identify and prevent such activities, they may not be effective. Allegations of such activities, particularly by regulators, can have a negative reputational impact and can subject GSI to large fines and settlements, and potentially significant penalties, including treble damages.

(c) The growth of electronic trading and the introduction of new products and technologies, including trading and distributed ledger technologies, including cryptocurrencies, has increased competition

Technology is fundamental to GSI's business and industry. The growth of electronic trading and the introduction of new technologies is changing GSI's businesses and presenting GSI with new challenges. Securities, futures and options transactions are increasingly occurring electronically, both on GSI's own systems and through other alternative trading systems, and it appears that the trend toward alternative trading systems will continue. Some of these alternative trading systems compete with GSI, particularly GSI's exchange-based market-making activities, and GSI may experience continued competitive pressures in these and other areas. In addition, the increased use by GSI's clients of low-cost electronic trading systems and direct electronic access to trading markets has caused and could continue to cause a reduction in commissions and spreads. As GSI's clients increasingly use GSI's systems to trade directly in the markets, GSI may incur liabilities as a result of their use of GSI's order routing and execution infrastructure.

GSI has invested significant resources into the development of electronic trading systems and expect to continue to do so, but there is no assurance that the revenues generated by these systems will yield an adequate return, particularly given the generally lower commissions arising from electronic trades.

In addition, the emergence, adoption and evolution of new technologies, including distributed ledgers, such as digital assets and blockchain, and AI, have required GSI to invest resources to adapt its existing products and services, and GSI expects to continue to make such investments, which could be material. The adoption and evolution of such new technologies may also increase GSI's compliance and regulatory costs. Further, technologies, such as those based on distributed ledgers, that do not require intermediation could also significantly disrupt payments processing and other financial services. Regulatory limitations on GSI's involvement in products and platforms involving digital assets and distributed ledger technologies may not apply equally or in some cases at all to certain of GSI's competitors. GSI may not be as timely or successful in developing or integrating, or even able to develop or integrate, new products and technologies, such as those built on distributed ledgers or AI technologies, into GSI's existing products and services, adapting to changes in client preferences or achieving market acceptance of GSI's products and services, any of which could affect GSI's ability to attract or retain clients, cause GSI to lose market share or result in service disruptions and in turn reduce GSI's revenues or otherwise adversely affect GSI.

(d) GSI's businesses would be adversely affected if it is unable to hire and retain qualified employees

GSI's performance is largely dependent on the talents and efforts of highly skilled people; therefore, GSI's continued ability to compete effectively in its businesses, to manage its businesses effectively and to expand into new businesses and geographic areas depends on its ability to attract new talented and diverse employees and to retain and motivate existing employees. Factors that affect GSI's ability to attract and retain such employees include the level and composition of compensation and benefits, and a reputation as a successful business with a culture of fairly hiring, training and promoting qualified employees. As a significant portion of the compensation that GSI pays to its employees is paid in the form of year-end discretionary compensation, a significant portion of which is in the form of deferred equity-related awards, declines in the GS Group's profitability, or in the outlook for its future profitability, as well as regulatory limitations on compensation levels and terms, can negatively impact GSI's ability to hire and retain highly qualified employees.

Competition from within the financial services industry and from businesses outside the financial services industry, including the technology industry, for qualified employees has often been intense. GSI has experienced increased competition in hiring and retaining employees to address the demands of new regulatory requirements and GSI's technology initiatives. This is also the case in emerging and growth markets, where GSI is often competing for qualified employees with entities that have a significantly greater presence or more extensive experience in the region.

Laws or regulations in jurisdictions in which GSI's operations are located that affect taxes on GSI's employees' income or the amount or composition of compensation, or that require GSI to disclose its competitors' compensation practices may also adversely affect GSI's ability to hire and retain qualified employees in those jurisdictions.

GSI's compensation practices are subject to review by, and the standards of, the Prudential Regulation Authority ("PRA") and the Financial Conduct Authority ("FCA"). As a large financial institution, GSI is subject to limitations on compensation practices (which may or may not affect the companies with which GSI competes for talent) by the PRA and the FCA and other regulators worldwide. These limitations have shaped GSI's compensation practices, which has in some cases adversely affected GSI's ability to attract and retain talented employees, in particular in relation to companies not subject to these limitations, and future legislation or regulation may have similar adverse effects.

2.7 Market Developments and General Business Environment Risks

(a) GSI's businesses, financial condition, liquidity and results of operations have been and may in the future be adversely affected by unforeseen or catastrophic events, including pandemics, terrorist attacks, wars, extreme weather events or other natural disasters

The occurrence of unforeseen or catastrophic events, including pandemics or other widespread health emergencies (or concerns over the possibility of such an emergency), terrorist attacks, wars, extreme weather events, solar events or other natural disasters, could adversely affect GSI's business, financial condition, liquidity and results of operations. These events could have such effects through economic or financial market disruptions or challenging economic or market conditions more generally, the deterioration of GSI's creditworthiness or that of GSI's counterparties, changes in consumer sentiment and consumer borrowing, spending and savings patterns, liquidity stress, or operational difficulties (such as travel limitations and limitations on occupancy in GSI's offices) that impair GSI's ability to manage GSI's businesses.

- (b) Climate change could disrupt GS Group's businesses and adversely affect client activity levels and the creditworthiness of GSI's clients and counterparties, and GSI's actual or perceived action or inaction relating to climate change could result in damage to GSI's reputation

Climate change may cause extreme weather events that disrupt operations one or more of our or GS Group's primary locations, which may negatively affect GSI's ability to service and interact with GSI's clients, adversely affect the value of GSI's investments, and reduce the availability or increase the cost of insurance. Climate change and the transition to a less carbon-dependent economy may also have a negative impact on the operations or financial condition of GSI's clients and counterparties, which may decrease revenues from those clients and counterparties and increase the risk and other exposures to those clients and counterparties. In addition, climate change may impact the broader economy.

GSI is also exposed to risks resulting from changes in public policy, laws and regulations, or market and public perceptions and preferences in connection with the transition to a less carbon-dependent economy. These changes could adversely affect GSI's business, results of operations and reputation. For example, GSI's reputation and client relationships may be damaged as a result of GSI's or GSI's clients' involvement in, or decision not to participate in, certain industries or projects perceived to be associated with causing or exacerbating climate change, as well as any decisions we make to continue to conduct or change GSI's activities in response to considerations relating to climate change. If GS Group is unable to achieve its objectives relating to climate change or GS Group's response to climate change is perceived to be ineffective, insufficient or otherwise inappropriate, GSI's business, reputation and efforts to recruit and retain employees may suffer.

New regulations or guidance relating to climate change, as well as the perspectives of government officials, regulators, employees and other stakeholders regarding climate change, may affect whether and on what terms and conditions GSI engages in certain activities or offer certain products. Banking regulators and supervisory authorities, shareholders and other stakeholders have increasingly viewed financial institutions as playing an important role in helping to address risks related to climate change, both directly and with respect to their clients, which may result in financial institutions coming under increased requirements and expectations regarding the disclosure and management of their climate risks and related lending, investment and advisory activities. In the E.U., the CSRD will become effective beginning with year-end 2024 reporting. The CSRD expands the scope of ESG disclosure required under E.U. rules. These regulations, guidance and expectations, as well as any additional or heightened requirements, could result in increased regulatory, compliance or other costs or higher capital requirements. The risks associated with, and the perspective of regulators, employees and other stakeholders regarding, climate change are continuing to evolve rapidly, which can make it difficult to assess the ultimate impact on GSI of climate change-related risks and uncertainties, but GSI expects that climate change-related risks will increase over time.

- (c) GSI's business, financial condition, liquidity and results of operations have been adversely affected by disruptions in the global economy caused by conflicts, and related sanctions and other developments

The conflict between Russia and Ukraine has negatively affected the global economy. Governments around the world have responded to Russia's invasion by imposing economic sanctions and export controls on certain industry sectors, including price caps on Russian oil, and on Russian businesses and persons. Compliance with economic sanctions and restrictions imposed by governments has increased GSI's costs and otherwise adversely affected GSI's business and may continue to do so. Russia has responded with its own restrictions against investors and countries outside Russia and has proposed additional measures aimed at non-Russian owned businesses. Businesses globally have experienced shortages in materials and increased costs for transportation, energy, and raw materials due in part to the negative effects of the conflict on the global economy.

The conflicts in the Middle East could also affect and harm GSI's business and increase market uncertainty. The impact of these conflicts on GSI's business and operations is uncertain and therefore cannot be predicted.

Risk Factors

The escalation or continuation of these conflicts or other hostilities could result in, among other things, further increased risk of cyber attacks, an increased frequency and volume of failures to settle securities transactions, supply chain disruptions, higher inflation, lower consumer demand and increased volatility in commodity, currency and other financial markets.

The extent and duration of the conflicts, sanctions and resulting market disruptions are impossible to predict, and the consequences for GSI's business could be significant. If international political instability and geopolitical tensions continue or increase in any region in which GSI does business, GSI's business and results of operations could be harmed.

(d) GSI may be adversely affected by negative publicity

The financial services industry generally and GSI's businesses in particular have been subject to negative publicity. GSI's reputation and businesses may be adversely affected by negative publicity or information regarding its business and personnel, whether or not accurate or true, that may be posted on social media or other internet forums or published by news organisations. Postings on these types of forums may also adversely impact risk positions of GSI's clients and other parties that owe it money, securities or other assets and increase the chance that they will not perform their obligation to the firm or reduce the revenues received from their use of GSI's services. The speed and pervasiveness with which information can be disseminated through these channels, in particular social media, may magnify risks relating to negative publicity.

(e) Certain of GSI's businesses and its funding instruments may be adversely affected by changes in reference rates, currencies, indices, baskets or exchange-traded funds ("ETFs") to which products GSI offers or funding that GSI raises are linked

Many of the products that GSI owns or that it offers, such as structured notes, warrants, swaps or security-based swaps, pay interest or determine the principal amount to be paid at maturity or in the event of default by reference to rates or by reference to an index, currency, basket, ETF or other financial metric (the underlier). In the event that the composition of the underlier is significantly changed, by reference to rules governing such underlier or otherwise, the underlier ceases to exist (for example, in the event that a country withdraws from the Euro or links its currency to or delinks its currency from another currency or benchmark, an index or ETF sponsor materially alters the composition of an index or ETF, or stocks in a basket are delisted or become impermissible to be included in the index or ETF), the underlier ceases to be recognised as an acceptable market benchmark or there are legal or regulatory constraints on linking a financial instrument to the underlier, GSI may experience adverse effects.

(f) GSI's business, financial condition, liquidity and results of operations may be adversely affected by disruptions in the global economy caused by escalating tensions between the U.S. and China

Continued or escalating tensions between the U.S. and China have resulted in and may result in additional changes to U.S. international trade and investment policies, which could disrupt international trade and investment, adversely affect financial markets, including market activity levels, and adversely impact GSI's revenues. Continued or escalating tensions may also lead to the U.S., China or other countries taking other actions, which could include the implementation of sanctions, tariffs or foreign exchange measures, the largescale sale of U.S. Treasury securities or restrictions on cross border trade, investment or transfer of information or technology. Any such developments could adversely affect GSI's or GSI's clients' businesses, as well as GSI's financial condition, liquidity and results of operations, possibly materially.

A conflict, or concerns about a potential conflict, involving China and Taiwan, the U.S. or other countries could negatively impact financial markets and GSI's or GSI's clients' businesses. Trade restrictions by the U.S. or other countries in response to a conflict or potential conflict involving China, including financial and economic sanctions and export controls against certain organisations or individuals, or actions taken by China in response to trade restrictions, could negatively impact GSI's or GSI's clients' ability to conduct business in certain countries or with certain counterparties and could negatively impact regional and global financial markets and economic conditions. Any of the foregoing could adversely affect GSI's business, financial condition, liquidity and results of operations, possibly materially.

- (g) GSI faces enhanced risks as GSG operates in new locations, and the company transacts with a broader array of clients and counterparties

GSI's businesses, have in the past, and may in the future, bring GSI into contact, directly or indirectly, with individuals and entities that are not within GSI's traditional client and counterparty base, expose GSI to new asset classes and new markets, and present GSI with integration challenges. For example, GSI continues to transact business and invest in new regions, including a wide range of emerging and growth markets, and GSI expects this trend to continue. Various emerging and growth market countries have experienced severe economic and financial disruptions, including significant devaluations of their currencies, defaults or threatened defaults on sovereign debt, capital and currency exchange controls, and low or negative growth rates in their economies. The possible effects of any of these conditions include an adverse impact on GSI's businesses and increased volatility in financial markets generally.

New business initiatives expose GSI to new and enhanced risks, including risks associated with dealing with governmental entities, reputational concerns arising from dealing with different types of clients, business partners, counterparties and investors, greater regulatory scrutiny of these activities, increased credit-related, market, sovereign and operational risks, risks arising from accidents or acts of terrorism, and reputational concerns with the manner in which certain assets are being operated or held or in which GSI interacts with these clients, business partners, counterparties and investors. Legal, regulatory and reputational risks may also exist in connection with activities and transactions involving new products or markets where there is regulatory uncertainty or where there are different or conflicting regulations depending on the regulator or the jurisdiction involved, particularly where transactions in such products may involve multiple jurisdictions.

3. Risks relating to GSW

Risk factors relating to GSW have been incorporated by reference into this Base Prospectus – see "Documents Incorporated by Reference" (Goldman Sachs & Co. Wertpapier GmbH).

Risk of Creditworthiness

See the following risk factors as incorporated by reference from the GSW 2024 Registration Document in the following order:

- (a) Risks relating to the creditworthiness of GSW due to the nature of GSW as an issuance vehicle with limited assets (pages 3-4 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document)
- (b) Risks relating to the creditworthiness of GSW due to the dependency of GSW on hedging and related lending arrangements (page 4 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document);
- (c) Risks relating to the creditworthiness of GSW as a subsidiary of GSG (page 4 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document);
- (d) Risks relating to the lack of a rating of GSW (page 5 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document); and
- (e) Risks relating due to the lack of a protection by a deposit fund (page 5 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document).

Business Risks

- (a) Business risks (page 5 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document).

Operational Risks

(a) Operational risks (page 5 of the GSW 2024 Registration Document).

4. Risks relating to GSFCI

The following are further specific risks relating to GSFCI.

4.1 Risks relating to economic and market conditions

GSFCI is primarily involved in the issuance of debt securities in a number of markets and the proceeds from these debt securities are lent to affiliates. GSFCI also enters into derivative transactions with affiliates for hedging purposes. The activity of GSFCI and its annual issuance volume is affected both by positive and negative developments in the markets where it carries out its business activity. A difficult general economic situation may lead to a lower issuance volume. The market of these debt securities depends particularly on the development of capital markets, which are in turn affected by the general situation of the world economy, as well as the economic and political conditions in the respective countries.

4.2 Risks relating to the commercial activity of GSFCI

GSFCI was established only for the purpose of issuing debt securities, lending these proceeds to affiliates and entering into derivative transactions with affiliates for hedging purposes, and does not carry out any other operating business activities. You will therefore be exposed to a significantly greater credit risk by purchasing the Securities compared to securities issued by an issuer equipped with significantly more capital.

GSFCI is an indirect, wholly-owned subsidiary of GSG and depends on GSG for capital. All of GSFCI's unsecured debt issuances are guaranteed by GSG. If GSFCI fails or goes bankrupt, an investment in a Security may mean a complete loss of the invested amount if the loss cannot be satisfied by the GSG Guaranty. You should note the Securities are not covered by a deposit protection fund or similar safety system in relation to the claims of holders of Securities in the case of an insolvency of GSFCI.

There is no rating of GSFCI regarding its credit risk by renowned rating agencies such as Moody's or Standard and Poor's.

In the event that GSFCI, or any of its affiliates, becomes subject to a proceeding under the U.S. Special Resolution Regimes, the transfer of Instruments issued by GSFCI, and any interest and obligation in or under such Instruments, from GSFCI will be effective to the same extent as the transfer would be effective under such U.S. Special Resolution Regime if such Instruments, and any interest and obligation in or under such Instruments, were governed by the laws of the United States or a state of the United States.

4.3 Risks relating to liquidity

The credit ratings of GSG are important to GSFCI's liquidity. A reduction in GSG's credit ratings could adversely affect GSFCI's liquidity and competitive position, increase borrowing costs or limit access to the capital markets. There is no rating of GSFCI regarding its credit risk by renowned rating agencies such as Moody's Investors Service or Standard & Poor's Ratings Services.

GSFCI's liquidity could be impaired by an inability to access unsecured debt markets, an inability to access funds from GSG, or unforeseen outflows of cash.

4.4 Risks relating to credit markets

Widening credit spreads for GSG, as well as significant declines in the availability of credit, could adversely affect GSFCI's ability to borrow on an unsecured basis. GSFCI issues securities, the proceeds of which are onward lent to GSG and/or GS Group affiliates. Any disruptions in the credit markets may make it harder and more expensive to obtain funding for the GS Group's businesses.

4.5 Risks relating to reliance on GSG

GSFCI is a wholly-owned subsidiary of GSG. As a wholly-owned subsidiary, GSFCI relies on various business relationships of GSG and other GS Group affiliates generally, including the ability to receive various services, as well as, in part, the capital and liquidity of GSFCI's ultimate parent, GSG. GSFCI remains an operating subsidiary of a larger organisation and therefore its interconnectedness within the organisation will continue. Because GSFCI's business relies upon GSG and other GS Group affiliates to a significant extent, risks that could affect these entities could also have a significant impact on GSFCI.

Furthermore, GSFCI relies upon certain GS Group affiliates for various support services, including, but not limited to, trade execution, relationship management, settlement and clearing, risk management and other technical, operational and administrative services.

As a consequence of the foregoing, in the event GSFCI's relationships with other GS Group affiliates are not maintained, for any reason, including as a result of possible strategic decisions that GSG may make from time-to-time or as a result of material adverse changes in GSG's performance, GSFCI's net revenues may decline, the cost of operating and funding its business may increase and GSFCI's business, financial condition and profitability may be materially and adversely affected.

4.6 Risks relating to changes in Underlying Assets

Many of the products that GSFCI issues, such as structured notes or warrants, pay interest or determine the principal amount to be paid at maturity or in the event of default by reference to rates or by reference to an index, currency, basket, exchange traded fund ("ETF") or other financial metric ("Underlying Asset(s)"). In the event that (i) the composition of the Underlying Asset(s) is significantly changed, by reference to rules governing such Underlying Asset(s) or otherwise, (ii) the Underlying Asset(s) ceases to exist (for example, in the event that a country withdraws from the Euro or links its currency to or delinks its currency from another currency or benchmark), (iii) an index or ETF sponsor materially alters the composition of an index or ETF, or stocks in a basket are delisted or become impermissible to be included in the index or ETF, (iv) the Underlying Asset(s) ceases to be recognised as an acceptable market benchmark, or (v) there are legal or regulatory constraints on linking a financial instrument to the underlier, GSFCI may experience adverse effects consistent with those described below for Interbank Offered Rates ("IBORs").

See also Risk Factor 4.7 (Risks associated with benchmark reform) below.

B. FACTORS WHICH ARE MATERIAL FOR THE PURPOSES OF ASSESSING THE MARKET RISKS IN RELATION TO THE SECURITIES

1. Risks associated with the value, liquidity and offering of your Securities

1.1 The estimated value of your Securities (as determined by reference to pricing models used by us) at the time the terms and conditions of your Securities are set on the trade date, will be less than the original issue price of your Securities

The original issue price for your Securities will exceed the estimated value of your Securities as from the trade date, as determined by reference to our pricing models and taking into account our credit spreads. The difference between the estimated value of your Securities as of the time the terms and conditions of your Securities were set on the trade date and the original issue price is a result of many factors, including among others on issuance (the underwriting discount and commissions where permitted by applicable law), the expenses incurred in creating, documenting and marketing the Securities and our own internal funding costs (being an amount based on what we would pay to holders of a non-structured security with a similar maturity). The difference may be greater when the Securities are initially traded on any secondary markets and may gradually decline in value during the term of the Securities. Information with respect to the amount of these inducements, commissions and fees will be included in the Issue Terms and may be obtained from the Issuer upon request.

In estimating the value of your Securities as of the time the terms and conditions of your Securities were set on the trade date, our pricing models consider certain variables, including principally our credit spreads, interest rates (forecasted, current and historical rates), volatility, price-sensitivity analysis and the time to maturity of the Securities. These pricing models are proprietary and rely in part on certain assumptions about future events, which may prove to be incorrect. As a result, the actual value you would receive if you sold your Securities in the secondary market, if any, to others may differ, perhaps materially, from the estimated value of your Securities determined by reference to our models due to, among other things, any differences in pricing models or assumptions used by others. Accordingly, the issue price of the Securities as at the trade date is likely to be more than the initial market value of the Securities, and this could result in a loss if you sell the Securities prior to their scheduled redemption.

Risk Factors

1.2 The value and quoted price of your Securities (if any) at any time will reflect many factors and cannot be predicted

The value and quoted price of your Securities (if any) at any time will reflect many factors and cannot be predicted. The following factors, amongst others, many of which are beyond our control, may influence the market value of your Securities:

- the volatility — i.e. the frequency and magnitude of changes — of the levels of the Underlying Asset or basket of Underlying Assets;
- whether your Securities are linked to a single Underlying Asset or a basket of Underlying Assets;
- the level, price, value or other measure of the Underlying Asset(s) to which your Securities are linked, the participation rate, the weighting multipliers, the cap level and/or the buffer level and/or other payout term, as applicable;
- the dividend rates of the stocks underlying the Underlying Asset(s);
- economic, financial, regulatory, political, military and other events that affect stock markets generally and the stocks underlying the Underlying Asset(s) or basket of Underlying Asset(s), and which may affect the closing level of the Underlying Asset(s) or the basket closing level;
- economic, financial, regulatory, geographic, judicial, political and other developments that affect the level, value or price of the Underlying Asset(s), and real or anticipated changes in those factors;
- interest rates and yield rates in the market;
- the time remaining until your Securities mature; and
- our creditworthiness, whether actual or perceived, and including actual or anticipated upgrades or downgrades in our credit ratings or changes in other credit measures.

If we make a market in the Securities, the price quoted by us would reflect any changes in market conditions and other relevant factors, including any deterioration in our creditworthiness or perceived creditworthiness. These changes may adversely affect the value of your Securities, including the price you may receive for your Securities in any market making transaction. To the extent that we make a market in the Securities, the quoted price will reflect the estimated value determined by reference to our pricing models at that time, plus or minus its customary bid and ask spread for similar sized trades of structured securities and subject to the declining excess amount described in risk factor 1.1 (The estimated value of your Securities (as determined by reference to pricing models used by us) at the time the terms and conditions of your Securities are set on the trade date, will be less than the original issue price of your Securities) above.

Further, if you sell your Securities, you will likely be charged a commission for secondary market transactions, or the price will likely reflect a dealer discount. This commission or discount will further reduce the proceeds you would receive for your Securities in a secondary market sale.

If you sell your Securities prior to maturity, you may receive less than the face amount or initial purchase price of your Securities. You cannot predict the future performance of the applicable Underlying Asset(s) based on its historical performance.

You should note that the issue price and/or offer price of the Securities may include subscription fees, placement fees, direction fees, structuring fees and/or other additional costs. Any such fees and costs may not be taken into account for the purposes of determining the price of such Securities on the secondary market and could result in a difference between the original issue price and/or offer price, the theoretical value of the Securities, and/or the actual bid/offer price quoted by any intermediary in the secondary market. Any such difference may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities, particularly immediately following the offer and the issue date relating to such Securities, where any such fees and/or costs may be deducted from the price at which such Securities can be sold by the initial investor in the secondary market.

There is no assurance that we or any other party will be willing to purchase your Securities at any price and, in this regard, we are not obligated to make a market in the Securities. See risk factor 1.4 (Your Securities may not have an active trading market; the aggregate nominal amount or number of Securities outstanding at any time may be significantly less than that outstanding on the issue date, and this could have a negative impact on your ability to sell your Securities in the secondary market) below.

1.3 The Securities may lose value if interest rates increase

Particularly in relation to Fixed Rate Notes that are not linked to an Underlying Asset and have a term of ten years or more, in most cases an increase in interest rates during the term of the Securities will cause their value to decrease and if you sell the Securities prior to maturity you will receive less than the face amount of the Securities.

1.4 Your Securities may not have an active trading market; the aggregate nominal amount or number of Securities outstanding at any time may be significantly less than that outstanding on the issue date, and this could have a negative impact on your ability to sell your Securities in the secondary market

Unless we expressly tell you otherwise, or to the extent that the rules of any stock exchange on which the Securities are listed and admitted to trading require us to provide liquidity in respect of the Securities, there may be little or no secondary market for your Securities and you may be unable to sell them.

If we do make a market for the Securities, we may cease to do so at any time without notice to you and we are not obligated to provide any quotation of bid or offer price(s) of the Securities which is favourable to you.

For those Securities for which an application will be or has been made to be listed and admitted to trading on a stock exchange, we give no assurance that such application will be accepted, that any particular Securities will be so admitted, or that an active trading market in the Securities will develop. We may discontinue any such listing at any time.

Even if a secondary market for your Securities develops, it may not provide significant liquidity and transaction costs in any secondary market could be high. As a result, the difference between bid and asked prices for your Securities in any secondary market could be substantial. See also risk factor 1.2 (The value and quoted price of your Securities (if any) at any time will reflect many factors and cannot be predicted) above. There may be less liquidity in the secondary market for the Securities also if they are exclusively offered to retail investors without any offer to institutional investors.

If so indicated in the Issue Terms, on the issue date a specified amount of Securities will be issued to and made available for sale by GSI (or any other appropriately licensed affiliate), acting as dealer, and may be listed and admitted to trading on one or more regulated markets of any European Economic Area member state for purchase by investors. However, the Issuer and GSI (or any other appropriately licensed affiliate), acting as dealer, reserve the right to cancel some or all of the Securities held by GSI (or any other appropriately licensed affiliate) at any time prior to the final maturity of the Securities. Accordingly, the aggregate nominal amount or number of Securities outstanding at any time may be significantly less than that outstanding on the Issue Date, and this could have a negative impact on your ability to sell the Securities in the secondary market. While this risk applies to all Securities, it may be particularly the case with regard to Securities to be listed on Borsa Italiana S.p.A. ("Borsa Italiana") and admitted to trading on Borsa Italiana's MOT (electronic bond market). Any such right of cancellation by GSI (or any other appropriately licensed affiliate), acting as dealer, shall be exercised in accordance with applicable laws, the terms and conditions of the Securities and the applicable rules of the relevant stock exchange(s) and markets, including as to notification.

You should therefore not assume that the Securities can be sold at a specific time or at a specific price during their life, and you should assume that you may need to hold them until they mature. The availability of any secondary market may be limited or non-existent and, if you are able to sell your Securities, you may receive significantly less than you would otherwise receive by holding the Securities to their scheduled maturity.

1.5 Certain specific information may not be known at the beginning of an offer period

The Final Terms of your Securities may provide that certain specific information relating to your Securities (such as certain amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable) used to determine or calculate amounts payable or assets deliverable in respect of the Securities) may not be fixed or determined until the end of the offer period. In such case, the Final Terms will specify in place of the relevant amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable), such indicative amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable), or an indicative range thereof, which may be subject to a minimum or maximum amount, level, percentage, price, rate or value (as applicable).

The actual amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable) will be determined based on market conditions by the Issuer on or around the end of the offer period and may be the same as or different from any indicative amount specified in the Final Terms, provided that such actual amounts will not be less than any indicative minimum amount specified therein and will not be more than any indicative maximum amount specified therein.

You will be required to make your investment decision based on the indicative amounts or indicative range rather than the actual amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable), which will only be fixed or determined at the end of the offer period after their investment decision is made but will apply to the Securities once issued.

If the Final Terms of your Securities provides that an indicative range of amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable), you should, for the purposes of evaluating the risks and benefits of an investment in the Securities, assume that the actual amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable) fixed or determined at the end of the offer period may have a negative impact on the amounts payable or assets deliverable in respect of the Securities and consequently, have an adverse impact on the return on the Securities (when compared with other amounts, levels, percentages, prices, rates or values (as applicable) within any indicative range, or less than any indicative maximum amount, or greater than any indicative minimum amount). You should therefore make your decision to invest in the Securities on that basis.

1.6 Certain considerations relating to public offers of the Securities

If the Securities are distributed by means of a public offer, under certain circumstances indicated in the relevant Final Terms, the Issuer and/or the other entities indicated in the relevant Final Terms will have the right to withdraw or revoke the offer, and the offer will be deemed to be null and void according to the terms indicated in the relevant Final Terms.

The Issuer and/or the other entities specified in the relevant Final Terms may also terminate the offer early by immediate suspension of the acceptance of further subscription requests and by giving notice to the public in accordance with the relevant Final Terms. Any such termination may occur even where the maximum amount for subscription in relation to that offer (as specified in the relevant Final Terms), has not been reached. In such circumstances, the early closing of the offer may have an impact on the aggregate number of Securities issued and, therefore, may have an adverse effect on the liquidity of the Securities.

Furthermore, under certain circumstances indicated in the relevant Final Terms, the Issuer and/or the other entities indicated in the relevant Final Terms will have the right to extend the offer period and/or to postpone the originally designated issue date, and related interest payment dates and the maturity date. For the avoidance of doubt, this right applies also in the event that the Issuer publishes a supplement to the Base Prospectus in accordance with the provisions of the EU Prospectus Regulation.

In addition, you should note that if it is indicated in the Final Terms that the Issuer will adopt the distribution process on the MOT described in article 2.4.3, paragraph 7 of the Rules of the Markets organised and managed by Borsa Italiana, the circumstance that, pursuant to this distribution process, potential investors can monitor (via market operators) the progress of the proposed purchases of the Securities during the offer period, may have an impact on the progress and results of the offer. You should also note that, pursuant to distribution process on the MOT indicated above, the proposed acquisition of the Securities during the offer period does not constitute conclusion of the contract, which remains subject to confirmation of the correct execution of the order and the issuance of the Securities.

If the relevant Final Terms provide that the Issuer or the placer, as applicable, will apply or has applied for admission to trading of the Instruments on SeDeX, a multilateral trading facility organised and managed by Borsa Italiana ("SeDeX"), or admission to trading of the Instruments on the EuroTLX market, a multilateral trading facility organised and managed by EuroTLX SIM S.p.A., then the relevant Final Terms may also provide that the effectiveness of the offer of such Instruments will be conditional upon such admission to trading occurring by the Issue Date. In such case, in the event that admission to trading of the Instruments does not take place by the Issue Date for whatever reason, the Issuer will withdraw the offer, the offer will be deemed to be null and void and the relevant Instrument will not be issued. As a consequence, you will not receive any Instruments, any subscription rights you have for the Instruments will be cancelled and you will not be entitled to any compensation thereof.

1.7 Considerations Relating to Securities Whose Issue Terms Indicate an Amount Equal to the Net Proceeds Will be Allocated to Respond to Environmental, Social and/or Sustainability Issues

The use of proceeds of the Securities may not be suitable for all investors and may not meet investor expectations.

If so indicated in the applicable Issue Terms of an issue of the Securities, we intend to apply an amount equal to the net proceeds from such offering towards financing or refinancing investments made or held by any GS Group member that respond to critical environmental, social and/or sustainability issues, as further specified in such Issue Terms. The cash proceeds from any such offering will not be segregated from our other funds, and we are under no obligation to use the specific cash proceeds from any such offering to finance or refinance such investments as described in the applicable Issue Terms. Furthermore, we will have significant flexibility in allocating the net proceeds from such Securities, including determining in our discretion what constitutes an eligible investment as defined in the applicable Issue Terms for such Securities, whether to apply proceeds against new such eligible investments or those already made by us before the issue date, and whether to re-allocate net proceeds away from eligible investments when such investments mature or are divested.

No assurances can be provided by us or any underwriter, dealer or agent that the use of proceeds from any such Securities, nor the expected or actual sustainable impact of such investments, will satisfy any present or future investor expectations or requirements regarding sustainability performance. Furthermore, no assurance is given that any such Securities will satisfy, in whole or in part, any present or future taxonomies, standards and/or other regulatory or index inclusion criteria or voluntary guidelines with which such investor or its investments may be expected to comply. For example, and without limitation, any such Securities are not Green Bonds and/or Social Bonds as defined under the International Capital Market Association's Green Bond Principles and/or Social Bond Principles and any such Securities do not take into account any of the European Union criteria for environmentally sustainable investments, including as set out under the Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on the Establishment of a Framework to Facilitate Sustainable Investment (Regulation (EU) 2020/852).

No assurance or representation is given as to the suitability or reliability for any purpose whatsoever of any opinion or certification (whether or not solicited by us) made available in connection with any such Securities. No such opinion or certification is, nor should it be deemed to be, a recommendation by us, any underwriter, dealer or agent or any other person to buy, sell or hold the Securities. No such opinion or certification is, nor shall it be deemed to be, incorporated into this prospectus supplement or the accompanying prospectus.

Any failure in applying an amount equal to the net proceeds from any Tranche of Securities to eligible investments as defined in the applicable Issue Terms of such Securities, failure of those investments to achieve the expected outcomes, and/or change or withdrawal of any third party certification or opinion may have a material adverse effect on the value of such Securities and/or result in adverse consequences for certain investors with portfolio mandates to invest in securities identified as sustainable. In addition, other investments we make or other aspects of our business may be criticized by activist groups or other stakeholders focused on sustainability issues, which could have a negative effect on the value of such Securities.

Delay or failure to allocate or manage the proceeds from any such Securities or to meet any reporting schedule as described in such Securities' applicable Issue Terms shall not constitute an event of default under such Securities.

1.8 Risks associated with inflation

The real return (or yield) on an investment in Securities will be reduced by inflation. Consequently, the higher the rate of inflation, the lower the real yield on a security will be.

If the terms and conditions of the Securities provide that some or all of the principal shall be repaid at maturity, such scheduled principal repayment will not provide protection from the effect of inflation. After adjustment for inflation, the real return (or yield) on the Securities at maturity could be negative.

More generally, if the inflation rate is equal to or greater than the yield under a Security, the real yield a holder of such Security will achieve will be zero or even negative.

Accordingly, inflation may have a negative effect on the value of and return on the Securities. You should consider the potential impact of inflation (including if the rate of inflation is anticipated to rise over the term of the Securities) before purchasing Securities.

See also 5.10 (Risks associated with Inflation Indices and other inflation measurements as Underlying Assets).

2. Risks associated with certain products or product features

2.1 If your Securities include a leverage factor of over 100 per cent. there may be a higher risk of loss

If the terms and conditions of your Securities provide that the amount payable (or deliverable) on the Securities is based upon the performance, price, value or level of the Underlying Asset(s) multiplied by a factor which is over 100 per cent., the Securities may have a disproportionate exposure to any negative performance of the Underlying Asset(s). In such circumstances, the Securities will represent a very speculative and risky form of investment, since any loss in the value of the Underlying Asset(s) carries the risk of a disproportionately higher loss in the value of and return on the Securities.

2.2 The return on your Securities may be linked to the level, price, rate or other applicable value of the Underlying Asset(s) on a number of averaging dates

The terms and conditions of your Securities may provide that the amount payable (or deliverable) on the Securities (whether at maturity or otherwise) will be based on the arithmetic average of the applicable levels, prices, rates or other applicable values of the Underlying Asset(s) on each of the specified averaging dates, and not the simple performance of the Underlying Asset(s) over the term of the Securities. An averaging feature could result in a lower value of and return on the Securities than if there was no averaging feature. For example, if the applicable level, price, rate or other applicable value of the particular Underlying Asset(s) dramatically increases on an averaging date (but not the other averaging dates), the return on your Securities may be significantly less than it would have been had it been linked only to the applicable level, price, rate or other value of the Underlying Asset(s) on that single date.

2.3 The potential for the value of your Securities to increase may be limited

If the terms and conditions of your Securities provide that the Securities are subject to a cap, your ability to participate in any change in the value of the Underlying Asset(s) over the term of the Securities will be limited, no matter how much the level, price, rate or other applicable value of the Underlying Asset(s) may rise beyond the cap level over the life of the Securities. Accordingly, the return on your Securities may be significantly less than if you had purchased the Underlying Asset(s) directly.

In addition, if the participation rate on your Securities is less than 100 per cent. and, at maturity, the final level, price, rate or other applicable value of the Underlying Asset(s) exceeds the initial level, price, rate or other applicable value of the Underlying Asset(s), the return on your Securities may be significantly less than had you purchased the Underlying Asset(s) or an investment linked to the Underlying Asset(s) on a leveraged or one to one basis. This is because a participation rate of less than 100 per cent. will have the effect of reducing your exposure to any positive return on the Underlying Asset(s).

2.4 The "Worst-of" ("Minimum Performance", "Barrier Worst Closing Price" and "Barrier Worst Asset Performance") feature means that you will be exposed to the performance of each Underlying Asset and, in particular, to the Underlying Asset which has the worst performance

If the terms and conditions of your Securities provide that the return on the Securities depends on the 'worst-of' performance of the basket of Underlying Assets, you will be exposed to the performance of each Underlying Asset and, in particular, to the Underlying Asset which has the worst performance. This means that, irrespective of how the other Underlying Assets perform, if any one or more Underlying Assets fails to meet a relevant threshold or barrier for the payment of interest or the calculation of any redemption amount, you may receive no interest payments and/or could lose some or all of your initial investment.

2.5 The return on your Securities may be linked to the lowest or highest level or price of the Underlying Asset(s) on a number of entry level observation dates

The terms and conditions of your Securities may provide that the amount payable (or deliverable) on the Securities (whether at maturity or otherwise) will be based on the performance of the Underlying Asset(s) compared to the highest or lowest (as specified in the relevant Issue Terms) levels or prices of the Underlying Asset(s) observed across each of the specified entry level observation dates, and not just the price or level of the Underlying Asset(s) on a single initial date. Such a feature could result in a lower value of and return on the Securities than if there was no entry level feature. For example, if the applicable level or price of the particular Underlying Asset(s) increased significantly across the entry level observation dates, the value of and return on your Securities may be significantly less than it would have been had the return been determined by reference to only the applicable level or price of the Underlying Asset(s) on a single initial date.

2.6 The Fixed Coupon Payment Dates may be delayed if the corresponding Coupon Reference Date is adjusted

The Fixed Coupon Payment Date(s) will be postponed if the Coupon Reference Date corresponding to such Fixed Coupon Payment Date is not a day on which we would usually value the Underlying Asset (despite the fact that no value of any Underlying Asset is being taken on such Coupon Reference Date), and this may result in Holders suffering a delay in the payment of the relevant Fixed Coupon Amount until after the date on which such Fixed Coupon Payment Date is scheduled to fall.

3. Risks associated with certain terms of the Securities, including adjustment, early redemption, substitution, Issuer call option, exercise, amendments and foreign exchange rates

3.1 Your Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity due to a Change in Law Event, and you may lose some or all of your investment

Where, due to a Change in Law Event, (i) the Issuer's performance under the Securities or the relevant Guarantor's performance under the relevant Guarantee in whole or in part or (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) the Issuer's performance or that of any of its affiliates under any related hedge positions (whether with respect to the Underlying Asset(s) or any constituent thereof) or (ii) (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) the performance of any of the Issuer's affiliates under the Securities had such affiliate been an issuer of the Securities or under any related hedge positions (whether with respect to the Underlying Asset(s) or any constituent thereof) had such affiliate been a party to any such hedging arrangement, as result of (a) the adoption of, or any change in, any relevant law, rule, regulation, judgment, order, sanction or directive of any governmental, administrative, legislative or judicial authority or power (including any tax law) or (b) the promulgation of, or any change in, the interpretation by any court, tribunal, governmental, administrative, legislative, regulatory or judicial authority or power with competent jurisdiction of any applicable law or regulation (including any tax law) (each of (a) and (b), a "Change in Law Event") has or will become unlawful or (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) impractical or there is a substantial likelihood of the same in the immediate future, we may, in our discretion, adjust the terms of the Securities or redeem the Securities.

If we elect to early redeem the Securities, if permitted by applicable law, we shall pay to you an amount equal to the non-scheduled early repayment amount of such Securities. Unless the terms of your Securities provide that "Par plus accrued", "Linearly Accreted Value" (in respect of "Redemption at the option of the Issuer"), "Accreted Value" (in respect of Zero Coupon Notes) or "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, the non-scheduled early repayment amount will be an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the fair market value of such Securities on the second Business Day prior to the date of such early redemption or settlement, determined by reference to such factors as the Calculation Agent considers to be appropriate, and (if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Adjusted for Issuer Expenses and Costs" as applicable) adjusted to account fully for any of our reasonable expenses and costs including, those relating to the unwinding of any underlying and/or our related hedging arrangements (if any). The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your initial investment and you may therefore lose some or all of your investment.

Following any such early redemption of the Securities, you may not be able to reinvest the proceeds from such redemption at a comparable return and/or with a comparable interest rate for a similar level of risk. You should consider such reinvestment risk in light of other available investments when you purchase the Securities.

3.2 Your Securities may be redeemed early if the Issuer has a call option and exercises it

Where the terms of your Securities provide that we have the right to call the Securities, following the exercise by the Issuer of such option, you will no longer be able to realise your expectations for a gain in the value of such Securities and, if applicable, will no longer participate in the performance of the Underlying Assets.

Also, an optional redemption feature of Securities is likely to limit the market value of your Securities. During any period when we may elect to redeem Securities, the market value of the Securities generally will not rise above the price at which they can be redeemed. This also may be true prior to the beginning of any redemption period.

Further, we may be expected to redeem Securities when our cost of borrowing is lower than the interest rate on the Securities. At those times, you generally would not be able to reinvest the redemption proceeds at an effective interest rate as high as the interest rate on the Securities being redeemed and may only be able to do so at a significantly lower rate. You should consider such reinvestment risk in light of other available investments.

3.3 Your Securities may be redeemed early or adjusted if a Hedging Disruption Event has occurred

Where the relevant Issue Terms provide that Hedging Disruption is applicable, we may, in our discretion, adjust the terms of the Securities or redeem the Securities in the event that the Issuer or any of its affiliates is unable, wholly or partially, after using commercially reasonable efforts and acting in good faith, to (a) hold, acquire, establish, re-establish, substitute, maintain, unwind or dispose of any Hedge Positions or (b) realise, recover or remit the proceeds of any such Hedge Positions, as determined by the Issuer. Either such action could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities. Further, if we elect to redeem the Securities, you may not be able to reinvest the proceeds from such redemption at a comparable return and/or with a comparable interest rate for a similar level of risk. You should consider such reinvestment risk in light of other available investments when you purchase the Securities.

3.4 The Issuer of your Securities may be substituted with another company

The Issuer may be substituted as principal obligor under the Securities by (if applicable) the relevant Guarantor or another wholly-owned subsidiary of GSG. Whilst the new issuer will provide an indemnity in your favour in relation to any additional tax or duties (and, in the case of Securities the terms of which provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, any losses suffered by the holders of the Securities due to a different regulatory regime of the new issuer) that become payable solely as a result of such substitution, you will not have the right to consent to such substitution.

The Issuer shall not be obliged to have regard to tax, legal or regulatory consequences resulting from your being for any purpose domiciled or resident in, or otherwise connected with or subject to the jurisdiction of, any particular jurisdiction or territory, and you shall not be entitled to claim from the Issuer or the substituting entity or any Guarantor any indemnification or payment in respect of any tax, legal or regulatory consequence of any such substitution upon you.

3.5 You may be exposed to foreign exchange risk on your Securities

Where the terms of your Securities provide that payments will be made in a currency which is different from the currency of the Underlying Asset(s), and the Securities do not have a 'quanto' feature (as described in the next paragraph), or in the case of Underlying Asset(s) that themselves contain currency conversions (such as a global equity index that converts all stock prices to a single currency for purposes of calculating the index level), you may be exposed not only to the performance of the Underlying Asset(s) but also to the performance of such foreign currency, which cannot be predicted. Depreciation of the currency in which the payments under the Securities is denominated or the currency of the Underlying Asset(s) could result in a decrease in the value of and return on your Securities.

If the Underlying Asset(s) are not denominated in the currency of the Securities and at the same time only the performance of the Underlying Asset(s) in their denominated currency is relevant to the payout on the Securities, the Securities are referred to as currency-protected Securities or Securities with a 'quanto' feature. Under such "quanto" feature, any change in the rate of exchange between the currency of the Underlying Asset(s) and the Securities is disregarded for the purposes of determining the return on the Securities. Accordingly, a 'quanto' feature means that you will not have the benefit of any change in the rate of exchange between the currency of the Underlying Asset(s) and the Securities that would otherwise increase the performance of the Underlying Asset(s) in the absence of such 'quanto' feature. In addition, changes in the relevant exchange rate may indirectly influence the level, price, rate or other applicable value of the relevant Underlying Asset(s) which, in turn, could have a negative effect on the value of and return on the Securities and may lead to the loss of some or all of your initial investment.

Further, foreign exchange fluctuations between your home currency and the currency in which payments under the Securities is denominated may affect you if you intend to convert gains or losses from the exercise or sale of Securities into your home currency.

Foreign exchange rates are, and have been, highly volatile and determined by supply and demand for currencies in the international foreign exchange markets; such fluctuations in rates are subject to economic factors, including, among others, inflation rates in the countries concerned, interest rate differences between the respective countries, economic forecasts, international political factors, currency convertibility and safety of making financial investments in the currency concerned, speculation and measures taken by governments and central banks.

Foreign currency exchange rates can either float or be fixed by sovereign governments. From time to time, governments use a variety of techniques, such as intervention by a country's central bank or imposition of regulatory controls or taxes, to affect the exchange rate of their currencies. Governments may also issue a new currency to replace an existing currency or alter the exchange rate or exchange characteristics by devaluation or revaluation of a currency. Thus, a particular concern in purchasing Securities with foreign exchange risks as described above is that their yields or payouts could be significantly and unpredictably affected by governmental actions. Even in the absence of governmental action directly affecting currency exchange rates, political or economic developments in the country of the relevant currency or elsewhere could lead to significant and sudden changes in the exchange rate of that currency and others. These changes could negatively (or positively) affect the value of and return on the Securities as participants in the global currency markets move to buy or sell the relevant currency in reaction to these developments.

Governments have imposed from time to time and may in the future impose exchange controls or other conditions, including taxes, with respect to the exchange or transfer of a currency that could affect exchange rates as well as the availability of the currency for a Security at its maturity or on any other payment date. In addition, your ability to move currency freely out of the country in which payment in the currency is received or to convert the currency at a freely determined market rate could be limited by governmental actions.

3.6 There are particular risks in relation to CNY

CNY is not freely convertible at present. The government of the People's Republic of China continues to regulate conversion between CNY and foreign currencies despite the significant reduction over the years by such government of its control over routine foreign exchange transactions conducted through current accounts. The People's Bank of China ("PBOC") has established a clearing and settlement system pursuant to the Settlement Agreement on the Clearing of CNY Business between PBOC and Bank of China (Hong Kong) Limited. However, the current size of CNY and CNY denominated financial assets in Hong Kong is limited, and its growth is subject to many constraints imposed by the laws and regulations of the People's Republic of China on foreign exchange.

We can give you no assurance that access to CNY funds for the purposes of making payments under the Securities or generally will remain available or will not become restricted. The value of CNY against foreign currencies fluctuates and is affected by changes in the People's Republic of China and international political and economic conditions and by many other factors. As a result, foreign exchange fluctuations between a purchaser's home currency and CNY may affect purchasers who intend to convert gains or losses from the sale or redemption of the Securities into their home currency.

Developments and the perception of risks in other countries, especially emerging market countries, may adversely affect the USD/CNY exchange rate and therefore the value of Securities denominated in or referencing CNY.

You should also read risk factor 4.6 (Risks relating to emerging markets).

3.7 The occurrence of an FX Disruption Event, CNY Disruption Event or FX Linked Conditions Disruption Event could have a material adverse effect on the value of return on the Securities

Unless the terms and conditions of your Securities provide that "FX Disruption" is not applicable, then if the Issuer is obligated to make any payment under the Securities in a currency other than U.S. dollars and the currency or any successor currency is not available to the Issuer due to circumstances beyond the control of the Issuer and its affiliates (for example and without limitation, due to the imposition of exchange controls or a disruption in the currency markets the Issuer may (i) postpone any payment affected by the FX Disruption Event by up to 30 calendar days, and/or (ii) satisfy its obligation to make the payment in that currency by making the payment in U.S. dollars, on the basis of the exchange rate determined by the Calculation Agent, in its commercially reasonable discretion, and/or (iii) make commercially reasonable adjustments to the terms of the Securities, taking into account the circumstances leading to the FX Disruption Event. Any such action(s) could have a material adverse effect on the value of return on the Securities

If the terms and conditions of your Securities provide that "CNY Disruption Event", "Currency Conversion Disruption Event" or "FX Linked Conditions Disruption Event" is applicable, then if the relevant currency is subject to convertibility, transferability, market disruption or other conditions affecting its availability at or about the time when a payment on the Securities comes due because of circumstances beyond our control, we will be entitled to make the payment in U.S. dollars and/or delay making the payment. These circumstances could include the imposition of exchange controls or our inability to obtain the other currency because of a disruption in the currency markets. If we made payment in U.S. dollars, the exchange rate we would use would be determined based on dealer quotations or, failing that, in our discretion. A discretionary determination of this kind may be based on limited information and would involve significant application of our discretion on our part. As a result, the value of the payment in U.S. dollars you would receive on the payment date may be less than the value of the payment you would have received in the other currency if it had been available, or may be zero. In addition, a government may impose extraordinary taxes on transfers of a currency. If that happens we will be entitled to deduct these taxes from any payment on Securities payable in that currency.

3.8 There are particular foreign exchange risks in relation to "Dual Currency" securities

There are particular risks relating to Securities where "Dual Currency Payout" and/or "Dual Currency Coupon" are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms ("Dual Currency Securities"). For such Securities payments of interest and/or principal are made in a currency which may be different from the currency in which the Securities are denominated. The value of Dual Currency Securities is more volatile than the value of comparable securities where payments are made in the denomination currency due to the exposure Dual Currency Securities provide to fluctuations in exchange rates and the risk that the payment currency will depreciate against the denomination currency. Where payments under the Dual Currency Securities are made in a currency that is different from the currency in which the securities are denominated, the amount investors receive, when converted into the denomination currency, may be less than the purchase price of the Dual Currency Securities and investors may lose some or all of their initial investment. In such circumstances investors will receive a lower return than if such payment had been made in the denomination currency of the Dual Currency Securities due to the foreign exchange rate risk. Investors in Dual Currency Securities may receive payment in a currency that they did not expect and may suffer losses converting such currency to their home currency. The amounts of principal and/or interest in the payment currency may be fixed on or before the issue date of the Dual Currency Securities and, in such a circumstance, as the exchange rate between the payment currency and the denomination currency on the relevant payment date cannot be predicted, investors assume the risk that the value of such payments on the relevant payment date, when converted into the denomination currency, will have declined from the issue date.

There are particular risks relating to Securities where "Alternative Redemption Percentage" is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms ("Alternative Dual Currency Securities"). The amount payable on maturity of Alternative Dual Currency Securities will be calculated by converting a specified amount in a currency which is different from the denomination currency of such Securities into the denomination currency of such Securities at the prevailing foreign exchange rate. For such Securities, investors will be exposed to the exchange rate between the specified currency and the denomination currency in which the payment is made and may suffer losses if the specified currency has depreciated against the denomination currency.

The tax treatment of Dual Currency Securities and Alternative Dual Currency Securities may differ from the tax treatment of Securities without "dual currency" features. You should consult your own tax advisers about the tax implications of holding any Dual Currency Security or Alternative Dual Currency Security and of any transaction involving any Dual Currency Security or Alternative Dual Currency Security.

You should also read risk factor 3.5 (You may be exposed to foreign exchange risk on your Securities) above.

3.9 There are risks in relation to the exercise of the Securities

If the terms and conditions of your Securities provide that the Securities must be exercised in order to receive their settlement amount, and the Securities are not designated 'Automatic Exercise Instruments', you must exercise your rights to receive payment in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Securities and the requirements of the relevant clearing systems or the registrar, as applicable, otherwise you may lose all of your investment.

3.10 We may amend the terms and conditions of your Securities in certain circumstances without your consent; amendments to the Securities will bind all holders thereof

The terms and conditions of the Securities (other than Securities governed by French law) may be amended by us without your consent as a holder of the Securities in any of the following circumstances:

- to correct a manifest or proven error or omission;
- where the amendment is of a formal, minor or technical nature; or
- where such amendment will not materially and adversely affect the interests of holders.

In certain other circumstances, the consent of a defined majority of holders is required to make amendments. The terms and conditions of the Securities contain provisions for holders of Securities to call and attend meetings to vote upon such matters or to pass a written resolution in the absence of such a meeting. Resolutions passed at such a meeting, or passed in writing, can bind all holders of Securities, including investors that did not attend or vote, or who do not consent to the amendments.

In the case of Securities governed by French law which (i) have a denomination lower than EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date) and (ii) may be traded in amounts lower than EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date), the terms and conditions of the Securities may only be amended if there is a meeting or a written resolution of the holders of the Securities in accordance with French law. The positive vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by holders present or represented (for a meeting of the holders) or holders of not less than three-quarters in nominal amount of the Securities (for a written resolution of the holders) will bind the remaining holders.

In the case of Securities governed by French law which (i) have a denomination at least equal to EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date) or (ii) can only be traded in amounts of at least EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date), the terms and conditions of the Securities may be amended by us without your consent to correct a manifest error. In other circumstances, the consent of a defined majority of holders is required to make amendments. The terms and conditions of the Securities contain provisions for holders of Securities to call and attend meetings to vote upon such matters or to pass a written resolution in the absence of such a meeting. Resolutions passed at such a meeting, or passed in writing, can bind all holders of Securities, including investors that did not attend or vote, or who do not consent to the amendments.

3.11 There are risks associated with French law as the governing law of the Securities

In the case where payments due in respect of Securities governed by French law are calculated and determined by reference to provisions or concepts that otherwise may typically be governed by English law, such provisions or concepts may not be construed and applied by French courts in the same way as the English courts. French courts might proceed to recharacterise such provisions or concepts in order to make them compliant with general principles prevailing under French law; in particular, there is a possibility that the French courts may nullify a conditional provision when the effectiveness of such conditional provision is dependent on the absolute discretion of the debtor of the obligation.

4. Risks associated with Securities that reference one or more Underlying Assets(s)

The following risks are associated with Securities that reference one or more Underlying Asset(s):

4.1 The value of and return on your Securities depends on the performance of the Underlying Asset(s)

The return on your Securities may depend on the performance of one or more Underlying Asset(s). The level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value of the Underlying Asset(s) may be subject to unpredictable change over time. This degree of change is known as "volatility". The volatility of an Underlying Asset may be affected by national and international financial, political, military or economic events, including governmental actions, or by the activities of participants in the relevant markets. Any of these events or activities could adversely affect the value of and return on the Securities. Volatility does not imply direction of the level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value, though an Underlying Asset that is more volatile is likely to increase or decrease in value more often and/or to a greater extent than one that is less volatile.

Where the performance of an Underlying Asset in relation to your Securities is calculated on a "European basis" – i.e. a comparison is made between the Underlying Asset's level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value on a start date and a future date to determine performance – you will not benefit from any increase in the Underlying Asset's level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value from the start date up to, but excluding, the specified date on which the Underlying Asset's level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value will be determined for the purpose of your Securities.

Where the performance of an Underlying Asset in relation to your Securities is calculated on an "Asian basis" – i.e. the average of the Underlying Asset's level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value on a number of reference dates is used to determine the performance – the average level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value will be lower than the highest value and therefore you will not benefit from the greatest increase in the Underlying Asset's level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value from the start date.

4.2 Past performance of an Underlying Asset is not indicative of future performance

You should not regard any information about the past performance of the Underlying Asset(s) as indicative of the range of, or trends in, fluctuations in the Underlying Asset(s) that may occur in the future. Underlying Asset(s) may perform differently (or the same) as in the past, and this could have material adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

4.3 You will not have any rights of ownership in the Underlying Asset(s)

The Underlying Asset(s) will not be held by us for your benefit and, as such, you will have not have any rights of ownership, including, without limitation, any voting rights, any rights to receive dividends or other distributions or any other rights with respect to any Underlying Asset(s). The return on your Securities may be less than if you held the Underlying Asset(s) directly or a different product linked to such Underlying Asset(s)

4.4 Following a disruption event, the valuation of the Underlying Asset(s) may be postponed and/or valued by us in our discretion

If we (as Calculation Agent) determine that a disruption event in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) has occurred which affects the determination of the level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value of the Underlying Asset(s) on any relevant day, we may postpone the valuation and ultimately determine the level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value in our discretion. Any such postponement and/or alternative valuation may have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities. In the event that the valuation day of the Underlying Asset(s) is postponed, the date on which final cash settlement or physical delivery is made on your Securities may be postponed.

4.5 Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an Index Adjustment Event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount

If we (as Calculation Agent) determine that an extraordinary event (as described below in relation to each type of Underlying Asset) has occurred in relation to the Underlying Asset(s), or an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or Administrator/Benchmark Event Date has occurred in relation to the Original Primary Rate(s) or an Index Adjustment Event has occurred in relation to an Index, or a Commodity Index Adjustment Event has occurred in relation to a Commodity Index, or a Disruption Event has occurred in relation to a Commodity Reference Price, or a Potential Adjustment Event, (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event has occurred in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity has occurred in relation to Credit Linked Securities then we may adjust the terms and conditions of the Securities (without your consent) to account for such event or we may redeem the Securities early. Any adjustment made to the terms and conditions of the Securities may have a negative effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

In the event of early redemption, we will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. Unless the terms of your Securities provide that "Par plus accrued", "Accreted Value" (in respect of Zero Coupon Notes), "Linearly Accreted Value" (in respect of "Redemption at the option of the Issuer"), or "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, the non-scheduled early repayment amount will be an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the fair market value of such Securities on the second Business Day prior to the date of such early redemption or settlement, determined by reference to such factors as the Calculation Agent considers to be appropriate, and (if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Adjusted for Issuer Expenses and Costs" as applicable) adjusted to account fully for our reasonable expenses and costs including those relating to the unwinding of any underlying and/or our related hedging arrangements (if any). The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your initial investment and you may therefore lose some or all of your investment.

Following any such early redemption of the Securities, you may not be able to reinvest the proceeds from an investment at a comparable return and/or with a comparable interest rate for a similar level of risk. You should consider such reinvestment risk in light of other available investments when you purchase the Securities.

4.6 Risks relating to emerging markets

Where the terms of your Securities are linked to emerging market Underlying Asset(s) or provide for payments to be made in the currency of an emerging markets jurisdiction, you may be exposed to additional risks from those normally associated with an investment relating to the relevant type of Underlying Asset(s). The political and economic situation in countries with emerging economies or stock markets may be undergoing significant evolution and rapid development, and such countries may lack the social, political and economic stability characteristics of more developed countries, which may result in a significant risk of high inflation and currency value fluctuation. Such instability may result from, among other things, authoritarian governments, or military involvement in political and economic decision-making, including changes or attempted changes in governments through extra-constitutional means; popular unrest associated with demands for improved political, economic or social conditions; internal insurgencies; hostile relations with neighbouring countries; and ethnic, religious and racial disaffections or conflict. Some of these countries may have in the past failed to recognise private property rights and have at times nationalised or expropriated the assets of private companies. As a result, the risks from investing in those countries, including the risks of nationalisation or restrictions being imposed on foreign purchasers, expropriation of assets, confiscatory taxation, confiscation or nationalisation of foreign bank deposits or other assets, the introduction of currency controls or other detrimental developments, which may financially impair investments in such countries, may be heightened. Such impairments can, under certain circumstances, last for long periods of time, i.e. weeks or years, and may result in the occurrence of market disruption events which means that no prices will be quoted for the Securities affected by such market disruption events. In addition, unanticipated political or social developments may affect the values of an underlying asset investment in those countries. The small size and inexperience of the securities markets in certain countries and the limited volume of trading in securities may make the underlying assets illiquid and more volatile than investments in more established markets. There may be little financial or accounting information available with respect to local issuers, and it may be difficult as a result to assess the value or prospects of the Underlying Asset(s) and consequently it may be difficult to obtain a value for the Securities.

4.7 Risks associated with benchmark reform

The EU Regulation 2016/1011 on indices used as benchmarks in financial instruments and financial contracts or to measure the performance of investment funds (the "EU Benchmarks Regulation") and the EU Benchmarks Regulation as it forms part of UK domestic law by virtue of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018 (as amended) and regulations made thereunder (the "UK Benchmarks Regulation", and together with the EU Benchmarks Regulation, the "Benchmarks Regulations") are a key element of regulatory reform in, respectively, the EU and the UK.

Interest rates, foreign exchange rates, and indices, including equity, commodity and "proprietary" indices or strategies, will in most cases be within scope of one or both of the Benchmarks Regulations as "benchmarks" where they are used to determine the amount payable under, or the value of, certain financial instruments (including (i) in the case of the EU Benchmarks Regulation, Securities listed on an EU regulated market or an EU multilateral trading facility ("MTF") and (ii) in the case of the UK Benchmarks Regulation, Securities listed on a UK recognised investment exchange or a UK MTF), and in a number of other circumstances.

The EU Benchmarks Regulation applies to the contribution of input data to a benchmark, the administration of a benchmark, and the use of a benchmark in the EU. Amongst other things, the EU Benchmarks Regulation requires EU benchmark administrators to be authorised or registered as such and to comply with extensive requirements relating to benchmark administration. It also prohibits (subject to transitional provisions) certain uses by EU supervised entities of (a) benchmarks provided by EU administrators which are not authorised or registered in accordance with the EU Benchmarks Regulation and (b) benchmarks provided by non-EU administrators where (i) the administrator's regulatory regime has not been determined to be "equivalent" to that of the EU, (ii) the administrator has not been recognised in accordance with the EU Benchmarks Regulation, and (iii) the benchmark has not been endorsed in accordance with the EU Benchmarks Regulation.

The UK Benchmarks Regulation imposes substantially the same obligations and restrictions as the EU Benchmarks Regulation, but has a narrower geographical scope. The UK Benchmarks Regulation applies to the contribution of input data to a benchmark, the administration of a benchmark, and the use of a benchmark in the United Kingdom. In-scope entities include UK benchmark administrators and UK supervised entities (such as Goldman Sachs International).

The European Securities and Markets Authority ("ESMA") maintains a public register of EU-approved benchmark administrators and non-EU benchmarks pursuant to the EU Benchmarks Regulation (the "ESMA Register"). The UK's Financial Conduct Authority ("FCA") maintains a separate public register of FCA-approved benchmark administrators and approved non-UK benchmarks pursuant to the UK Benchmarks Regulation.

Third-country administrators relying on the transitional provisions in the relevant Benchmarks Regulations are not included in the ESMA Register or the UK Register, as applicable.

The EU Benchmarks Regulation and/or the UK Benchmarks Regulation could have a material adverse impact on the value of and return on Securities linked to a benchmark. For example:

- a rate or index which is a "benchmark" within the meaning of the EU Benchmarks Regulation may not be used in certain ways by an EU supervised entity if (subject to applicable transitional provisions) its administrator does not obtain recognition, endorsement or equivalence from its EU competent authority (or, if a non-EU entity, does not satisfy the "equivalence" conditions and is not "recognised" by an EU competent authority, pending an equivalence decision, and does not have the relevant benchmark "endorsed" by an EU supervised entity). If the benchmark administrator does not obtain or maintain (as applicable) such recognition, endorsement or equivalence (or, if a non-EU entity, "equivalence" is not available and neither recognition nor endorsement is obtained) (this is referred to as an "Administrator/Benchmark Event"), then the Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity;
- similarly, a rate or index which is a "benchmark" within the meaning of the UK Benchmarks Regulation may not be used in certain ways by a UK supervised entity if (subject to applicable transitional provisions) its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration from the FCA (or, if a non-UK entity, does not satisfy the "equivalence" conditions and is not "recognised" by the FCA, pending an equivalence decision, and does not have the relevant benchmark "endorsed" by a UK supervised entity). If the benchmark administrator does not obtain or maintain (as applicable) such authorisation or registration (or, if a non-UK entity, "equivalence" is not available and neither recognition nor endorsement is obtained) (this is referred to as an "Administrator/Benchmark Event"), then the Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity;
- if the reference asset is a benchmark and it would be unlawful or contradictory to any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to determine the level or other value of such reference asset or make any other determination in respect of the Securities which it would otherwise be obliged to do so pursuant to the Conditions, then the Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity; and
- the methodology or other terms of the benchmark could be changed in order to comply with the requirements of the applicable Benchmarks Regulation, or mandatory substitution of a benchmark with a replacement benchmark could be imposed by statute, and such changes could reduce or increase the rate or level or affect the volatility of the published rate or level, and (depending on the type of the particular Securities) could lead to adjustments to the terms of the Securities including Calculation Agent determination of the rate or level in its discretion.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and its related Original Primary Rate Cessation Date have occurred or are existing on any day in respect of (i) an Original Primary Rate or, (ii) where the Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR (as determined by the Calculation Agent), the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR, in each case in respect of the Securities (such affected rate, a "Discontinued Original Primary Rate"), the Calculation Agent shall determine the Rate of Interest for the relevant Interest Period (or relevant day, as applicable) in respect of such Securities as the Replacement Primary Rate. Any Replacement Primary Rate may comprise a replacement rate, index, benchmark or other price source, which is determined on a backward-looking compounding basis by reference to a "risk-free rate". More than one Replacement Primary Rate may apply (which may be applied as of one or more effective dates).

Ongoing national and international regulatory reforms and the increased regulatory scrutiny of benchmarks generally could increase the costs and risks of administering or otherwise participating in the setting of a benchmark and complying with any applicable regulations or requirements. Such factors may discourage market participants from continuing to administer or contribute to benchmarks, trigger changes in the rules or methodologies used in respect of benchmarks, and/or lead to the disappearance of benchmarks. This could result in (i) the substitution of replacement rates for such benchmark(s), (ii) adjustments to the terms of the relevant Securities, (iii) early redemption of the relevant Securities, (iv) discretionary valuation of the rate by the Calculation Agent, (v) delisting of the relevant Securities and/or (vi) other consequences for Securities linked to any such benchmark(s). Any such action following the discontinuance of a reference rate could have a material adverse effect on the value of, and return on, the Securities.

See also risk factor 4.9 (Additional risks in relation to the Benchmarks Regulations and reform).

4.8 Risks relating to risk-free rates

Risk-free rates ("RFRs") are inherently different from the now discontinued interbank offered rates ("IBORs") that they have largely replaced. RFR-referencing Securities may not perform in the same way or yield the same or similar economic outcomes as historical IBOR-referencing securities.

Most IBORs have been modified or discontinued and relatively new RFRs are often used in their place, including (amongst others):

- (i) the Sterling Overnight Index Average ("SONIA") in place of sterling LIBOR;
- (ii) the Secured Overnight Financing Rate ("SOFR") in place of U.S. dollar LIBOR;
- (iii) the Tokyo Overnight Average Rate ("TONA") in place of Japanese yen LIBOR; and
- (iv) the Euro Short-Term rate ("€STR") in place of EURIBOR and EONIA.

The transition away from IBORs has also impacted IBOR-based swap rates, many of which have been discontinued and replaced with RFR-based swap rates. For example:

- GBP: SONIA is now the primary sterling interest rate benchmark. ICE Benchmark Administration ("IBA") administers the GBP SONIA ICE Swap Rate, which can be used in place of the discontinued GBP LIBOR ICE Swap Rate.
- USD: SOFR has been identified as the rate that represents best practice for use in U.S. dollar derivatives and other financial contracts. IBA administers the USD SOFR ICE Swap Rate, which can be used in place of the discontinued USD LIBOR ICE Swap Rate.
- Euro: €STR has been recommended as the new euro risk-free rate. In May 2021, an official EU working group published guidance for fallback provisions in new EURIBOR-referencing contracts and financial instruments (including bonds) to address, among other things, the potential future discontinuation of EURIBOR.
- JPY: TONA has been recommended as the primary risk-free rate for use in Japanese yen derivatives and other financial contracts. Refinitiv Benchmark Services (UK) Limited administers the Tokyo Swap Rate (for swaps referencing TONA), which can be used in place of the JPY LIBOR Tokyo Swap Rate.
- Other IBORs: Similar initiatives have been undertaken in respect of IBORs in other currencies, including Hong Kong dollar (HIBOR), Australian dollar (BBSW) Canadian dollar (CDOR), and Swiss franc (CHF LIBOR), to transition away from these rates to identified RFRs.

RFRs have different methodologies and other important differences from IBORs. For example, many replacement RFRs are backward-looking, rather than forward-looking. Interest on Securities which reference a backward-looking RFR is not determined until the end of the relevant interest calculation period, so investors may be unable to estimate the amount of interest that will accrue over a specific interest calculation period at the outset.

RFRs have little historical track record and it may be difficult to compare them to other rates and even harder to understand how they may perform in the future. The level of an RFR during the term of the Securities may bear little or no relation to historical actual or indicative data. Prior observed patterns, if any, in the behaviour of market variables and their relation to an RFR, such as correlations, may change in the future. Further, market terms for Securities linked to RFRs, such as the spread over the rate reflected in interest rate provisions, may evolve over time. Trading prices of such Securities may be lower than those of later-issued securities as a result.

RFRs are overnight rates based on large volumes of interbank transactions or transactions secured by central banks' treasury securities, and do not measure bank-specific credit risk. In contrast, IBORs are expressed on the basis of a forward-looking term and include a credit risk premium based on interbank lending. As a result, RFRs are less likely than historical IBORs to correlate with the unsecured short-term funding costs of banks. This may mean that market participants would not consider any such RFR a suitable substitute or successor for all of the purposes for which LIBOR was historically used (including, without limitation, as a representation of the unsecured short-term funding costs of banks). This may, in turn, lessen market acceptance of any such RFR. Investors should be aware that IBORs and RFRs may behave materially differently as reference interest rates for Securities.

For Securities which reference an affected benchmark, uncertainty as to the future performance of any replacement rate and as to potential changes or other reforms to the benchmark may adversely affect such benchmark rates during the term of the Securities and the return on, value of, and/or trading market for the Securities.

Any of these factors, and/or related future developments, could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on Securities linked to risk-free rates.

See also risk factor 4.9 (Additional risks in relation to the Benchmarks Regulations and reform) below.

4.9 Additional risks in relation to the Benchmarks Regulations and reform

For Securities which reference an affected benchmark, uncertainty as to the future performance of alternative reference rates and as to potential changes or other reforms to such benchmark may adversely affect the benchmark rates during the term of such Securities and the return on, value of, and trading market for such Securities.

In accordance with the terms and conditions of your Securities, Securities which reference an affected benchmark may be subject to adjustment of the interest or other payment provisions in certain circumstances, such as (i) discontinuation of the relevant benchmark, (ii) inability of the benchmark's administrator to obtain recognition, endorsement or equivalence, (iii) changes in the manner of the benchmark's administration, or (iv) availability of a successor or replacement benchmark. The circumstances which could trigger such adjustments are beyond the Issuer's control and the subsequent use of a replacement benchmark may result in changes to the terms and conditions (which could be extensive) and/or interest or other payments under the Securities that are lower than or that do not otherwise correlate over time with the payments that could have been made on such Securities if the original benchmark had remained available in its unamended form. Pursuant to the terms and conditions of your Securities, adjustments may be applied to such replacement benchmark in order to reduce or eliminate, to the extent reasonably practicable in the circumstances, any economic prejudice or benefit to investors arising out of the replacement of the relevant benchmark, but the application of such adjustments may not achieve this objective. Any such changes may result in the Securities performing differently (which may include payment of a lower interest rate) than if the original benchmark had continued to apply. There is no assurance that the characteristics of any replacement benchmark would be similar to the affected benchmark, or that any replacement benchmark would produce the economic equivalent of, or be a suitable replacement for the affected benchmark. The choice of replacement benchmark is uncertain and could result in the use of risk-free rates (see risk factor 4.8 (Risks relating to risk-free rates) above for the risks relating to the use of such rates) and/or in the replacement benchmark being unavailable or indeterminable.

The terms and conditions of the Securities may require the exercise of discretion by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent, as the case may be, and the making of potentially subjective judgements (including as to the occurrence or otherwise of any event(s) which may trigger amendments to the terms and conditions) and/or the amendment of the terms and conditions without the consent of Holders. The interests of the Issuer or the Calculation Agent, as applicable, in making such determinations or amendments may be adverse to the interests of the Holders. See Risk Factor 8 (Risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of Securities and discretionary powers of the Issuer and the Calculation Agent including in relation to our hedging arrangements).

You should consider these matters when making your investment decision with respect to Securities where the return is dependent in whole or in part on the performance of a "benchmark". You should also consult your own independent advisers and make your own assessment about the potential risks imposed by the Benchmarks Regulations and/or other reforms and/or possible discontinuation or reform of certain reference rates.

4.10 Risks relating to differences in methodologies between IBORs and 'risk-free rates'

'Risk-free rates' may differ from EURIBOR or other interbank offered rates in a number of material respects, including (without limitation) by being backward-looking in most cases or being calculated on a compounded or weighted average basis, whereas interbank offered rates are generally expressed on the basis of a forward-looking term and include a risk-element based on interbank lending. As such, you should be aware that EURIBOR and other interbank offered rates and any 'risk-free rates' may behave materially differently as interest reference rates for the Securities.

Interest or coupon on Securities which reference a backward-looking 'risk-free rate' is not determined until near the end of the relevant interest or coupon calculation period. As a result, holders of such Securities will not know the total amount of interest or coupon payable with respect to each such interest or coupon calculation period until shortly prior to the related interest or coupon payment date and it may be difficult or impossible to reliably estimate the amount of interest or coupon which will be payable on each such coupon or payment date in respect of the Securities. Also, some investors may be unable or unwilling to trade such Securities without changes to their information technology or other operational systems to account for such backward-looking calculation, which could adversely impact the liquidity of such Securities. Further, if the Securities become due and payable on a date which is not an Interest Payment Date or Coupon Payment Date (as applicable), the final Rate of Interest or Floating Rate Coupon payable in respect of such Securities shall be determined by reference to a shortened period ending immediately prior to the date on which the Securities become due and payable or are scheduled for redemption.

4.11 The market continues to develop in relation to SONIA, SOFR, €STR, TONA and other risk-free rates

The market continues to develop in relation to risk-free rates, such as SONIA, SOFR, €STR and TONA, as reference rates in the capital markets for sterling, U.S. dollar, euro and yen bonds, respectively, and their adoption as alternatives to the relevant interbank offered rates. In addition, market participants and relevant working groups are exploring alternative reference rates based on risk-free rates, including term SONIA, SOFR, €STR and TONA reference rates, which seek to measure the market's forward expectation of an average SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA rate over a designated term.

The market or a significant part thereof may adopt an application of risk-free rates that differs significantly from that set out in the Conditions and used in relation to Securities that reference such risk-free rates issued under this Programme. The relevant Issuer may in the future also issue Securities referencing SONIA, SOFR, €STR, TONA or other risk-free rates that differ materially in terms of interest or coupon determination when compared with any previous SONIA, SOFR, €STR, TONA or other risk-free rate referenced Securities issued by it hereunder. The development of risk-free rates for the Eurobond markets could result in reduced liquidity or increased volatility, and/or could otherwise affect the market price of any Securities that reference a risk-free rate issued hereunder from time to time.

Securities referencing risk-free rates may have no established trading market when issued, and an established trading market may never develop or may not be very liquid. Market terms for Securities referencing such risk-free rates, such as the spread over the index reflected in interest rate provisions, may evolve over time, and trading prices of such Securities may be lower than those of later-issued indexed debt securities as a result. Further, if the relevant risk-free rates do not prove to be widely used in securities like the Securities, the trading price of such Securities linked to such risk-free rates may be lower than those of securities referencing indices that are more widely used. Investors may not be able to sell such Securities at all or may not be able to sell them at prices that will provide a yield comparable to similar investments that have a developed secondary market, and an investment in Securities may suffer from increased pricing volatility and market risk.

In addition, risk-free rates differ from IBORs in a number of material respects, including (without limitation) by being backward-looking risk-free overnight rates calculated on a compounded or weighted average basis, as opposed to IBORs, which are expressed on the basis of a forward-looking term and include a credit risk premium based on interbank lending. As such, investors should be aware that IBORs and risk-free rates may behave materially differently as interest reference rates for the Securities.

Interest on Securities which reference a backward-looking risk-free rate is not determined until the end of the relevant interest calculation period. Therefore, you may be unable to estimate the amount of interest which will accrue over a specific interest calculation period at the outset. Also, some investors may be unable or unwilling to trade such Securities without changes to their information technology or other operational systems, which could adversely impact the liquidity of such Securities. Further, if the Securities become due and payable under General Instrument Condition 34 (Events of Default) or General Note Condition 16 (Events of Default) (as applicable), or are otherwise redeemed early on a date which is not an Interest Payment Date, the final Rate of Interest payable in respect of such Securities shall be determined by reference to a shortened period ending immediately prior to the date on which the Securities become due and payable or are scheduled for redemption.

In addition, the manner of adoption or application of risk-free rates in the bond markets may differ materially compared with the application and adoption of risk-free rates in other markets, such as the derivative and loan markets. Investors should carefully consider how any mismatch between the adoption of such reference rates in the bond, loan and derivatives markets may impact any hedging or other financial arrangements which you may put in place in connection with any acquisition, holding or disposal of Securities referencing such risk-free rates.

If your Securities reference a compounded daily SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA rate (being a rate of return of a daily compound interest investment with the daily SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA as reference rate for the calculation of interest), if the SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA reference rate is temporarily unavailable or has not otherwise been published, the amount of interest payable on such Securities will be determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion with reference to a number of different types of methodologies. The substitute reference rate and adjustment spread will be determined by the Calculation Agent, which may or may not take into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market and any ISDA fallback rate in respect of the discontinued SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA reference rate and any corresponding ISDA fallback adjustment applicable to such ISDA fallback rate). If such substitute reference rate and adjustment spread are applied to the Securities, this could result in adverse changes to the amount of interest payable on such Securities, which could adversely affect the return on, value of and market for such Securities. Further, there is no assurance that the characteristics of any substitute reference rate and adjustment spread will be similar to, or will produce the economic equivalent of, the SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA reference rate upon which compounded daily SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA is based.

4.12 Risks associated with SONIA

SONIA is published by the Bank of England and is intended to reflect the wholesale sterling unsecured overnight borrowing costs of banks located in the British sterling area.

As SONIA is published by the Bank of England based on data received from other sources, the Issuer has no control over its determination, calculation or publication. There can be no guarantee that SONIA will not be discontinued or fundamentally altered in a manner that is materially adverse to the interests of holders of SONIA-linked Securities. If the manner in which SONIA is calculated is changed, that change may result in a reduction of the amount of interest payable on the relevant Securities and/or the trading price of such Securities. Furthermore, SONIA in respect of any calendar day may be zero or negative.

Investors should not rely on any historical changes or trends in SONIA as an indicator of future changes in SONIA. Also, Securities referencing SONIA may have no established trading market when issued, and an established trading market may never develop or may not be very liquid. Market terms for debt instruments indexed to SONIA, such as the spread over the index reflected in interest rate provisions, may evolve over time, and trading prices of the relevant Securities may be lower than those of later-issued indexed debt instruments as a result.

The Issuer may in the future also issue other Securities referencing SONIA that differ materially in terms of interest determination when compared with pre-existing SONIA-linked Securities. The relatively recent development of SONIA as a reference rate for the bond and structured product markets, as well as continued development of rates based on SONIA for such markets and market infrastructure for adopting such rates, could result in reduced liquidity or increased volatility or otherwise affect the market price of the relevant Securities.

Interest on SONIA-linked Securities (where SONIA is part of a Compounded RFR or Compounded Index) is only capable of being determined at the end of the relevant interest calculation period and immediately prior to the relevant interest payment date. It may be difficult for investors in such Securities to reliably estimate the amount of interest that they will receive.

4.13 Risks associated with TONA

TONA is published by the Bank of Japan and is intended to reflect the Japanese yen unsecured overnight borrowing costs of banks located in the Japanese yen area.

As TONA is published by the Bank of Japan based on data received from other sources, the Issuer has no control over its determination, calculation or publication. There can be no guarantee that TONA will not be discontinued or fundamentally altered in a manner that is materially adverse to the interests of holders of TONA-linked Securities. If the manner in which TONA is calculated is changed, that change may result in a reduction of the amount of interest payable on the relevant Securities and the trading price of such Securities. Furthermore, TONA in respect of any calendar day may be zero or negative.

Investors should not rely on any historical changes or trends in TONA as an indicator of future changes in TONA. Also, Securities referencing to TONA may have no established trading market when issued, and an established trading market may never develop or may not be very liquid. Market terms for debt instruments indexed to TONA, such as the spread over the index reflected in interest rate provisions, may evolve over time, and trading prices of the relevant Securities may be lower than those of later-issued indexed debt instruments as a result.

The Issuer may in the future also issue other Securities referencing TONA that differ materially in terms of interest determination when compared with any pre-existing TONA-linked Securities. The relatively recent development of TONA as a reference rate for the bond and structured product markets, as well as continued development of rates based on TONA for such markets and market infrastructure for adopting such rates, could result in reduced liquidity or increased volatility or otherwise affect the market price of the relevant Securities.

Interest on TONA-linked Securities (where TONA is part of a Compounded RFR or Compounded Index) is only capable of being determined at the end of the relevant interest calculation period and immediately prior to the relevant interest payment date. It may be difficult for investors in such Securities to reliably estimate the amount of interest that they will receive.

4.14 Risks associated with SOFR

SOFR is published by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York (the "NY Federal Reserve") and is intended to be a broad measure of the cost of borrowing cash overnight collateralised by U.S. Treasury securities.

The NY Federal Reserve notes on its publication page for SOFR that use of SOFR is subject to important limitations, indemnification obligations and disclaimers, including that the NY Federal Reserve may alter the methods of calculation, publication schedule, rate revision practices or availability of SOFR at any time without notice. The Issuer has no control over its determination, calculation or publication. There can be no guarantee that SOFR will not be discontinued or fundamentally altered in a manner that is materially adverse to holders of SOFR-linked Securities. If the manner in which SOFR is calculated is changed or if SOFR is discontinued, that change or discontinuance may adversely affect the return on and value of the relevant Securities. Furthermore, SOFR in respect of any calendar day may be zero or negative.

Although the NY Federal Reserve also publishes historical indicative SOFR data going back to 2014, such pre-publication historical data inherently involves assumptions, estimates and approximations. Investors should not rely on any historical changes or trends in SOFR as an indicator of the future performance of SOFR. Since the initial publication of SOFR, daily changes in the rate have, on occasion, been more volatile than daily changes in comparable benchmark or market rates. As a result, the return on and value of SOFR-linked Securities may fluctuate more than floating rate securities that are linked to less volatile rates.

The Issuer may in the future also issue other Securities referencing SOFR that differ materially in terms of interest determination when compared with any pre-existing SOFR-linked Securities. The relatively recent development of SOFR as a reference rate for the bond and structured product markets, as well as continued development of rates based on SOFR for such markets and market infrastructure for adopting such rates, could result in reduced liquidity or increased volatility or otherwise affect the market price of the relevant Securities.

Interest on SOFR-linked Securities (where SOFR is part of a Compounded RFR or Compounded Index) is only capable of being determined at the end of the relevant interest calculation period and immediately prior to the relevant interest payment date. It may be difficult for investors in such Securities to reliably estimate the amount of interest that they will receive.

4.15 Risks associated with €STR

€STR is published by the European Central Bank (the "ECB") and is intended to reflect the wholesale euro unsecured overnight borrowing costs of banks located in the Euro area.

The ECB notes that the use of €STR is subject to limitations and disclaimers, including that the ECB may (i) materially change the €STR methodology or €STR determination process, or (ii) cease the determination and publication of €STR (in each case after consulting with stakeholders to the extent it is possible or practicable and all as described in Guideline (EU) 2019/1265 of the European Central Bank of 10 July 2019 on the Euro short-term rate (€STR) (ECB/2019/19)) (as amended).

As €STR is published by the ECB based on data received from other sources, the Issuer has no control over its determination, calculation or publication. There can be no guarantee that €STR will not be discontinued or fundamentally altered in a manner that is materially adverse to the interests of holders of €STR-linked Securities. If the manner in which €STR is calculated is changed, that change may result in a reduction of the amount of interest payable on the relevant Securities and the trading price of such Securities. Furthermore, €STR in respect of any calendar day may be zero or negative.

Although the ECB publishes historical indicative pre-€STR data going back to March 2017, investors should not rely on any historical changes or trends in €STR as an indicator of future changes in €STR. Also, since €STR is a new market index, any €STR-linked Securities will be likely to have no established trading market when issued, and an established trading market may never develop or may not be very liquid. Market terms for debt instruments indexed to €STR, such as the spread over the index reflected in interest rate provisions, may evolve over time, and trading prices of the relevant Securities may be lower than those of later-issued indexed debt instruments as a result.

The Issuer may in the future also issue other Securities referencing €STR that differ materially in terms of interest determination when compared with any pre-existing €STR-linked Securities. The nascent development of €STR as a reference rate for the Eurobond and structured product markets, as well as continued development of rates based on €STR for such markets and market infrastructure for adopting such rates, could result in reduced liquidity or increased volatility or otherwise affect the market price of the relevant Securities.

Interest on €STR-linked Securities (where €STR is part of a Compounded RFR or Compounded Index) is only capable of being determined at the end of the relevant interest calculation period and immediately prior to the relevant interest payment date. It may be difficult for investors in such Securities to reliably estimate the amount of interest that they will receive.

4.16 Risks in connection with "with Observation Period Shift" and "with Lookback" compounding methodologies

Where the reference rate applicable to the Securities is "Compounded Daily SONIA", "Compounded Daily SOFR", "Compounded Daily TONA" or "Compounded Daily €STR", the determination methodology will be further specified as "with Observation Period Shift" or "with Lookback", as applicable. "With Observation Period Shift" and "with Lookback" have emerged as conventions for the daily compounding of rates in arrears. The conventions differ with regard to the period that each method uses when weighting each business day's overnight rate for the relevant risk-free rate (such as SONIA, SOFR, €STR or TONA). The "with Observation Period Shift" approach weights the relevant risk-free rate according to the relevant number of days that apply in a separate observation period which 'shadows' the interest calculation period, for example, the observation period might start and end five business days before the relevant start and end of the corresponding interest calculation period. The "with Lookback" approach weights the relevant risk-free rate according to the number of days that apply in the relevant interest calculation period. Divergence between the "with Observation Period Shift" and "with Lookback" methodologies could lead to a difference in the amount of interest being determined even where the relevant risk-free rate is the same for the Securities, and such difference may result in less interest payable on the Securities than if the other methodology applied.

4.17 Risks associated with Original Primary Rates by reference to which any Interest Amount payable under the Securities is determined

The Interest Amount(s) payable under the Securities may be determined by reference to one or more Original Primary Rates. An Original Primary Rate: (a) may be materially modified, (b) may cease to be provided permanently or indefinitely, (c) may be determined to be unrepresentative of the underlying market and economic reality that it intends to measure, or (d) may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent if its administrator or such Original Primary Rate does not obtain recognition, endorsement or equivalence. If any such event mentioned in (a), (b), (c) or (d) above occurs, we (as Calculation Agent) shall (after the application of any Priority Fallback(s) specified in the definition of such Original Primary Rate): (i) attempt to identify a replacement rate, (ii) attempt to determine an adjustment spread that we determine is required in order to reduce or eliminate any transfer of economic value from the Issuer to the Holders (or vice versa), and (iii) make such adjustments to the terms and conditions as we determine to be necessary or appropriate in order to account for the effect of such replacement.

If: (a) we cannot identify a replacement rate or determine an adjustment spread, or (b) we believe that it would be unlawful or would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the proposed actions above, or (c) we believe that the adjustment spread is or would be a benchmark, index or other price source that would subject us to material additional regulatory obligations, or (d) the adjustments above would not achieve a commercially reasonable result, we may redeem the Securities early. In such event, we will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your original investment and you may lose some or all of your money.

5. Risks associated with particular types of Underlying Assets

The following risks are associated with Securities that reference a particular type of Underlying Asset(s):

5.1 Risks associated with Shares as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.1 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is a Share.

(a) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of Shares

The performance of Shares is dependent upon macroeconomic factors, such as interest and price levels on the capital markets, currency developments, political factors as well as company-specific factors such as earnings position, market position, risk situation, shareholder structure and distribution policy, as well as business risks faced by the issuers thereof. Any one or a combination of such factors could adversely affect the performance of the Underlying Asset(s) which, in turn, would have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

(b) You will not be able to participate in dividends or other distributions on the Shares

The return on your Securities will not be linked to dividends or any other distributions paid on the Shares. Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on the Securities than you would have received had you invested directly in the Underlying Asset(s).

(c) Actions by the issuer of a Share may negatively affect the Securities

We give no assurance that all events occurring prior to the issue date of the Securities that would affect the trading price of the relevant Share will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning the share issuer could affect the trading price of the Share and therefore the trading price of the Securities.

Also, you should be aware that the issuer of the Share(s) will have no involvement in the offer and sale of the Securities and will have no obligation to you as a holder of Securities. The issuer of the Share(s) may take any actions in respect of such Share(s) without regard to your interests as a holder of Securities, and any of these actions could have a negative effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

- (d) Following the occurrence of an extraordinary event in relation to the Share(s), the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount

If a delisting, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) termination of listed derivatives or tender offer (all as defined in the terms and conditions of the Securities) occurs in relation to the underlying Share(s) or the issuer of the relevant underlying Shares, this will be an 'Extraordinary Event' leading to the adjustment by us (as Calculation Agent) of the terms and conditions of the Securities (without the consent of holders) or the early redemption of the Securities. If we redeem your Securities, the non-scheduled early repayment amount payable to you may be less than you paid for the Securities. See risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount) above.

- (e) The occurrence of a potential adjustment event may lead to an adjustment to the terms of the Securities that could have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities

A 'potential adjustment event' is an event which has a diluting or concentrating effect on the theoretical value of the Underlying Asset(s). If a Potential Adjustment Event occurs, we may elect to amend the terms and conditions of the Securities (such amendment to be determined without your consent) to account for the diluting or concentrative effect of the event. Any adjustment made to the terms and conditions of the Securities may have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

- (f) Your Securities may be adjusted or redeemed prior to maturity due to a change in law. Any such adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities; and the amount you receive following an early redemption may be less than your initial investment

Where, due to a change in law, we would incur a materially increased cost in performing our obligations under the Securities, we may, in our discretion, either (i) amend the terms and conditions of the Securities to account for such change in law or (ii) redeem the Securities and for an amount which may be less than you paid for the Securities. See risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount) above.

- (g) There are risks in relation to physical delivery of assets in lieu of payment of cash settlement

Where the terms of your Securities provide that, subject to the fulfilment of a particular condition, the Securities shall be redeemed at their maturity by delivery of Shares, as a holder of Securities you will receive such Shares rather than a monetary amount upon maturity. You will, therefore, be exposed to the issuer of such Shares and the risks associated with holding such Shares.

The value of each such Share to be delivered multiplied by the number of Shares to be delivered (together with any residual cash amount) to you may be less than the purchase amount paid by you for your Securities and the principal amount (if any) of the Securities. In the worst case, the Shares to be delivered may be worthless. You should also consider that you will be exposed to any fluctuations in the price of the Shares to be delivered after the end of the term of the Securities until the respective actual delivery. This means that your actual loss (or gain) and final return on the Securities can only be determined after delivery of the Shares to you. Further, you may be subject to documentary or stamp taxes in relation to the delivery and/or disposal of Shares.

If the Share to be delivered is a registered share, the rights associated with the Share (e.g. participation in the general meeting, exercise of voting rights, etc.) can generally only be exercised by shareholders who are registered in the share register or a comparable official list of shareholders of the relevant Share Issuer. Our obligation to deliver Shares is limited to the provision of Shares having the characteristics and in the form that allows delivery via an exchange and does not include registration of the purchaser in the share register or in the list of shareholders, and we accept no liability for any such failure of (or delay in) registration.

Lastly, you should be aware that, in certain circumstances, where we are obliged to physically deliver one or more Shares in order to redeem your Securities, we may elect instead to redeem your Securities by way of payment of a cash amount (referred to in the terms and conditions as the "Physical Settlement Disruption Amount"). Further, under the relevant Guarantee, the relevant Guarantor is only obliged to discharge any obligation to physically deliver Shares by way of a cash payment instead.

- (h) The reference price used to determine any amount payable or to be delivered under the Securities may be adjusted depending on an anticipated dividend schedule or an anticipated or specified dividend yield

The terms and conditions of your Securities may provide that the reference price used to determine any amount payable or to be delivered for specified relevant dates may be adjusted depending on the cash or other dividends declared in respect of the Share(s) or by reference to an anticipated or specified dividend yield. Such adjustments may be linked to the difference between the actual amount of such dividends compared with a prescribed schedule of anticipated dividends for such Share(s), or by calculating an adjusted reference price using the closing share prices on relevant days, the actual amount of such dividends and the anticipated or specified dividend yield. Such adjustment(s) may result in payments or deliveries under the Securities being delayed or not occurring, which might not have been the case if such adjustments did not apply. Such adjustment(s) may also result in the amounts otherwise payable or deliverable being reduced.

In addition, following the declaration of any cash or other dividends in respect of a Share, if the amount actually paid or delivered by the Share Issuer of a Share to holders of record of the Share is less than such declared dividend and/or the issuer of the Share declares an intention to reduce any such declared dividend, then the amount of such dividend used to adjust the relevant reference price may be adjusted. In such circumstances, the relevant dividend may be reduced and this is likely to result in you receiving a lower return on the Securities than you would have received than if such adjustment had not taken place.

5.2 Risks associated with Depositary Receipts (comprising American Depositary Receipts ("ADRs")) and Global Depositary Receipts ("GDRs")) as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.2 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is an ADR or GDR.

- (a) ADRs and GDRs represent underlying shares, and therefore you are exposed to the risks of an investment linked to underlying shares

See risk factor 5.1 (Risks associated with Shares as Underlying Assets) above.

- (b) Exposure to risk of non-recognition of beneficial ownership

The legal owner of the shares underlying the ADRs or GDRs is the custodian bank which is also the issuing agent of the depositary receipts. Depending on the jurisdiction under which the depositary receipts have been issued, there is a risk that such jurisdiction does not legally recognise the purchasers of the ADR or GDR as the beneficial owner of the underlying shares. In the event the custodian becomes insolvent or that enforcement measures are taken against the custodian it is possible that an order restricting the free disposition of the underlying shares is issued. In this event the purchaser of an ADR or GDR may lose its rights to the underlying shares under the ADR or GDR and the ADR or GDR would become worthless. As a result, the value of and return on Securities linked to the ADRs or GDRs may be negatively affected.

5.3 Risks associated with Exchange Traded Funds as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.3 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is an Exchange Traded Fund.

- (a) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of Exchange Traded Funds

An Exchange Traded Fund may seek to track the performance of an index (in relation to such Exchange Traded Fund, an "ETF underlying index"), or the performance of certain assets, contracts and/or instruments which may be invested in or held by the Exchange Traded Fund. The performance of an Exchange Traded Fund may be dependent upon company-specific factors such as earnings position, market position, risk situation, shareholder structure and distribution policy of the underlying companies that comprise the ETF underlying index of such Exchange Traded Fund, or upon the value of such assets, contracts and/or instruments invested in, held by or tracked by the Exchange Traded Fund as well as macroeconomic factors, such as interest and price levels on the capital markets, currency developments and political factors.

Fees charged by the investment manager of the Exchange Traded Fund may reduce the performance of the fund as compared to the ETF underlying index. In addition, Exchange Traded Funds occasionally experience market volatility and trading disruptions that are inconsistent with the net asset value of the Exchange Traded Fund's assets.

- (b) Actions by the management company, trustee or sponsor of an Exchange Traded Fund may negatively affect the Securities

We give no assurance that all events occurring prior to the issue date of the Securities that would affect the trading price of the relevant Exchange Traded Fund will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning the Exchange Traded Fund, such as a change in investment objective, could affect the trading price of the Exchange Traded Fund and therefore the trading price of and return on the Securities.

The management company, trustee or sponsor of an Exchange Traded Fund will have no involvement in the offer and sale of the Securities and will have no obligation to you as a holder of Securities and may take any actions in respect of such Exchange Traded Fund without regard to your interests as a holder of Securities. Any of these actions could have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

- (c) Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Exchange Traded Fund, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted, the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount or the Exchange Traded Fund may be substituted for another

If a delisting, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, termination of listed derivatives, tender offer or NAV publication suspension (all as defined in the terms and conditions of the Securities) occurs in relation to the Exchange Traded Fund, this will be an 'Extraordinary Event' leading to the adjustment by us (as Calculation Agent) of the terms and conditions of the Securities (without the consent of holders) or the early redemption of the Securities. If we redeem your Securities, the non-scheduled early repayment amount payable to you may be less than you paid for the Securities. See risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount) above. Where the Exchange Traded Fund has been discontinued, we may instead determine to replace the Exchange Traded Fund with a successor Exchange Traded Fund. Any of these determinations could have a negative effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

- (d) If the ETF underlying index or the Exchange Traded Fund is materially changed, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or your Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount

If at any time the ETF underlying index is changed in a material respect, or if the Exchange Traded Fund in any other way is modified so that it does not, in the opinion of the Calculation Agent, fairly represent the net asset value of the Exchange Traded Fund had those changes or modifications not been made, then, from and after that time, we (as Calculation Agent) will make those calculations and adjustments as may be necessary in order to arrive at a price of an exchange traded fund comparable to the Exchange Traded Fund, as if those changes or modifications had not been made, and calculate the closing prices with reference to the Exchange Traded Fund, as adjusted. Accordingly, if the Exchange Traded Fund is modified in a way that the price of its shares is a fraction of what it would have been if it had not been modified (for example, due to a split or a reverse split), then we will adjust the price in order to arrive at a price of the Exchange Traded Fund as if it had not been modified (for example, as if the split or the reverse split had not occurred). We (as Calculation Agent) may determine that no adjustment is required by the modification of the method of calculation. Any of these determinations could negatively affect the value of and return on your Securities.

- (e) The occurrence of a potential adjustment event may lead to an adjustment to the terms of the Securities that could have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities

A 'potential adjustment event' is an event which has a diluting or concentrating effect on the theoretical value of the Underlying Asset. If a potential adjustment event occurs, we may elect to amend the terms and conditions of the Securities (without your consent) to account for the diluting or concentrative effect of the event. Any adjustment made to the terms and conditions of the Securities may have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

- (f) Your Securities may be adjusted or redeemed prior to maturity due to a change in law. Any such adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities; and the amount you receive following an early redemption may be less than your initial investment

Where, due to a change in law, we would incur a materially increased cost in performing our obligations under the Securities, we may, in our discretion, either (i) amend the terms and conditions of the Securities to account for such change in law or (ii) redeem the Securities. If we redeem your Securities, the non-scheduled early repayment amount payable to you may be less than you paid for the Securities. See risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount) above.

(g) There are risks in relation to physical delivery of assets in lieu of payment of cash settlement

Where the terms of your Securities provide that, subject to the fulfilment of a particular condition, the Securities shall be redeemed at their maturity by delivery of Shares, as a holder of Securities you will receive such Shares rather than a monetary amount upon maturity. You will, therefore, be exposed to the risks associated with holding the Shares.

The value of each such Share to be delivered multiplied by the number of Shares to be delivered (together with any residual cash amount) to you may be less than the purchase amount paid by you for such Securities and the principal amount (if any) of the relevant Securities. In the worst case, the Shares to be delivered may be worthless. You should also consider that you will be exposed to any fluctuations in the price of the Shares to be delivered after the end of the term of the Securities until the respective actual delivery. This means that your actual loss (or gain) and final return on the Securities can only be determined after delivery of the Shares to you. Further, you may be subject to documentary or stamp taxes in relation to the delivery and/or disposal of Shares.

If the Share to be delivered is a registered share, the rights associated with the Share (e.g. participation in the general meeting, exercise of voting rights, etc.) can generally only be exercised by shareholders who are registered in the share register or a comparable official list of shareholders of the relevant Share Issuer. Our obligation to deliver Shares is limited to the provision of Shares having the characteristics and in the form that allows delivery via an exchange and does not include registration of the purchaser in the share register or in the list of shareholders, and we accept no liability for any such failure of (or delay in) registration.

Lastly, you should be aware that, in certain circumstances, where we are obliged to physically deliver one or more Shares in order to redeem your Securities, we may elect instead to redeem your Securities by way of payment of a cash amount (referred to in the terms and conditions as the 'Physical Settlement Disruption Amount'). Further, under the relevant Guarantee, the relevant Guarantor is only obliged to discharge any obligation to physically deliver Shares by way of a cash payment instead.

5.4 Risks associated with Indices as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.4 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is an equity Index.

(a) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of equity Indices

Equity indices are comprised of a synthetic portfolio of shares, and as such, the performance of an Index is dependent upon the macroeconomic factors relating to the shares that underlie such Index, such as interest and price levels on the capital markets, currency developments, political factors as well as company-specific factors such as earnings position, market position, risk situation, shareholder structure and distribution policy, as well as the index composition, which may change over time.

(b) Actions by the index sponsor may negatively affect the Securities

The sponsor of the Index(s) will have no involvement in the offer and sale of the Securities and will have no obligation to you as a holder of Securities. For example, the sponsor can add, delete or substitute the components of an index at its discretion, and may also alter the methodology used to calculate the level of the Index. The sponsor may also alter, discontinue or suspend calculation or dissemination of the Index. Any of these actions may have a detrimental impact on the level of the Index, which in turn could have a negative impact on the value of and return on your Securities.

- (c) You may receive a lower return on Securities linked to an equity Index (or one or more equity Indices) than if you held the component shares directly and depending on the type of equity Index (or Indices)

The value of and return on Securities that depend on the performance of one or more equity Indices may be less than the value of and return on a direct holding of the shares of the companies comprising the components of the Index. This is because the index level at any specified time and valuation date may reflect the prices of such Index components without taking into account any (or all) dividend payments on those component shares. Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more equity Indices than you would have received had you invested directly in the component shares.

The rules governing the composition and calculation of the relevant Index may stipulate that dividends distributed on its components are included in the calculation of the index level (a "total return" version of the index) or are not included in the calculation of the index level (a "price return" version of the index). In the case of a "price return" index, holders of the relevant Securities will not participate in dividends or other distributions paid on the components comprising the Index and (assuming the Securities are not "bearish" in nature) the Securities would not perform as well as a position where such holder had invested directly in such components or where they had invested in a "total return" version of the Index. Even if the rules of the relevant Index provide that distributed dividends or other distributions of the components are reinvested in the Index, in some circumstances the dividends or other distributions may not be fully reinvested in such Index. Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to Indices than you would have received if you had invested in the components of such Indices directly or in another product.

If the relevant Index has a decrement feature, the return on such index will be calculated by reinvesting all gross dividends paid by such index and by subtracting a pre-defined dividend (also known as a synthetic dividend). If the actual ordinary dividends paid by such Index is lower than the pre-defined dividends, the performance of the Index will be less than a traditional "price return" index. As a result, the return of your Securities may be lower than the return of an investment linked to the price of a traditional "price return" index. A decrement feature may also act as a drain on the performance of the Index, and the index level will not reflect the aggregate performance of the underlying total return index but a lesser amount. As a result, the return of your Securities may be lower than the return of an investment linked to the price of a "total return" index.

- (d) The occurrence of an index adjustment event or the replacement of the index sponsor by a successor index sponsor may have a negative effect on your Securities

If the sponsor of an Index makes a material alteration to the Index or cancels the Index and no successor exists, or if the sponsor fails to calculate and announce the Index, or if the Index or its administrator does not obtain recognition, endorsement or equivalence with the effect that the Index may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent, we (as Calculation Agent) shall, (i) (if "Calculation Agent Adjustment" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms) if we determine the event to have a material effect on the Securities, calculate the level of the Index according to the previous formula and method, (ii) (if "Index Substitution" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms) replace the Index with another index (or basket of indices) or (iii) (if "Related Exchange Adjustment" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms) adjust the terms and conditions of the Securities (without your consent). Any such action may have a negative effect on the value and return on the Securities.

If we believe that (i) it would be unlawful or would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the proposed action above or (ii) the proposed action above would not achieve a commercially reasonable result, we may redeem the Securities early. In such event, we will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your original investment and you may lose some or all of your money. See also risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity

Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount).

If an index is calculated by a successor index sponsor, or, is replaced by a successor index, the successor index or index as calculated by the successor index sponsor, will be deemed to be the index if approved by us (as Calculation Agent). Any such successor index may perform poorly and may result in holders of Securities receiving less than they otherwise expected.

Any of these events may have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

(e) The occurrence of an index calculation agent cessation event may have a negative effect on your Securities

Unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, if "Index Calculation Agent" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms and the Index Calculation Agent is not able to calculate and/or announce the Index or is replaced by a successor index calculation agent, then (subject to the following paragraph) the Issuer may replace the Index with another index (or basket of indices) and adjust the terms and conditions of the Securities (without your consent). Any such action may have a negative effect on the value and return on the Securities.

If (i) it would be unlawful or would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the proposed action above or (ii) the Calculation Agent determines that the proposed action above would not achieve a commercially reasonable result, the Issuer may redeem the Securities early. In such event, the Issuer will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your original investment and you may lose some or all of your money.

(f) There are additional risks in relation to Securities linked to exchange traded futures and options contracts on underlying indices

If your Securities depend on the performance of exchange traded futures and options contracts on one or more underlying Indices (collectively, "index-linked derivatives contracts"), then you are exposed to the performance of the index-linked derivatives contracts which, in turn, will be driven by the level of the underlying Index.

There will be a correlation between the level of an Index and the price at which an index-linked derivatives contract trades on the relevant futures or options exchange, and you will therefore be exposed to the performance of the Index. However, you should also be aware that the expectations of dealers in index-linked derivatives contracts of the level of the Index on the date(s) on which the settlement amount of an index-linked derivatives contract is determined may also have an impact on the price of an index-linked derivatives contract on the Index. For example, if the expectation of dealers in options contracts is that the level of the Index will be lower on a future date when the settlement amount of the options contract is to be determined than the current level of the Index, this may result in the price of the options contract falling (in the case of a call option) or rising (in the case of a put option) even where the current level of the Index is rising. Moreover, because the settlement amount of many options contracts is a multiple of the difference between the level of the Index on a future date and the strike, a relatively small change in the level of an Index may result in a proportionately much larger change in the price of the options contract.

If the expectation of dealers in futures contracts is that the settlement price of the Index on the date(s) on which the settlement amount of the futures contract is determined will be lower than the forward price of the Index specified in the contract, this may result in the price of the futures contract falling (in the case of buyers of the futures contract) or rising (in the case of sellers of the futures contract) even where the current level of the Index is rising. Moreover, because the settlement amount of many futures contracts is a multiple of the difference between the settlement price and the forward price, a relatively small change in the level of an Index may result in a proportionately much larger change in the price of the futures contract.

- (g) The reference price used to determine any amount payable under the Securities may be adjusted based on a specified decrement factor

The terms and conditions of your Securities may provide that the reference price used to determine any amount payable for specified relevant dates may be adjusted by reference to a specified factor, prescribed formula and/or specified amount (a "decrement factor"). This may be done by calculating the reference price for relevant days using the closing index level or index level of an index for such relevant days, and adjusting it by applying a decrement factor. Such adjustment(s) may result in payments under the Securities being delayed or not occurring, which might not have been the case if such adjustments did not apply. Such adjustment(s) may also result in the amounts otherwise payable being reduced.

5.5 Risks associated with Proprietary Indices as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.5 is relevant to you if the Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is a Proprietary Index.

Unless the context otherwise requires, all capitalised terms which are not defined in this Base Prospectus will have the meanings given to them in the rules of the Relevant Index or the Money Market Index (as applicable).

- (a) Risks relating to Proprietary Indices generally

- (i) We are the sponsor of each Proprietary Index and each Underlying Strategy (if any)

We are the sponsor of each Proprietary Index and each Underlying Strategy (if any) (each a "Relevant Index"). Each Relevant Index has been developed, owned, calculated and maintained by us (including one of our affiliates), and we have responsibility for the composition, calculation and maintenance of such Relevant Index. As index sponsor, we may also amend the rules of the Relevant Index from time to time, or discontinue it, in our discretion. In our capacity as index sponsor, we are under no obligation to take into account your interests as a holder of Securities that references a Proprietary Index. Any such determinations made by us as index sponsor in relation to each Relevant Index may have a negative impact on the value of and return on your Securities.

- (ii) No assurance can be given that the methodology underlying each Relevant Index will be successful in producing positive returns or that such Relevant Index will outperform any other alternative investment strategy

None of the index sponsor, the Hedging Party, the Strategy Calculation Agent or the Index Calculation Agent or any of their respective affiliates make any express or implied representation that a Relevant Index will achieve a positive performance, or a higher performance than any other index or strategy, or returns independent of the overall direction of the relevant markets, whether managed or not managed.

The value of a Relevant Index depends on the performance of the Strategy Component(s), each of which may increase or decrease in value. Neither a Relevant Index nor any of the Strategy Component(s) includes any element of capital protection or guaranteed return. The value of any Strategy Component or a Relevant Index itself, may fall to zero.

If a floor is specified to be applicable in respect of a Relevant Index and the value of such Relevant Index falls to zero, then the value of such Relevant Index will remain at zero and there will be no chance of the value recovering. If no floor is specified to be applicable in respect of a Relevant Index, then the value of such Relevant Index may fall below zero and have a negative value. In each case, this may result in any investment in Securities linked solely to the relevant Proprietary Index losing all of its value.

Furthermore, it should be noted that the results that may be obtained from investing in any Securities linked to a Proprietary Index may be significantly different from the results that could theoretically be obtained from a direct investment in the Strategy Component(s) or any related derivatives.

- (iii) Changes in market structure and/or increased investment in similar products may negatively affect the value of a Relevant Index

As a result of changes in market structure and/or due to increased investment in products using the same or similar investment rationale to that of a Relevant Index or a Strategy Component, the underlying market or economic characteristics that such Relevant Index or such Strategy Component attempts to capture, measure or replicate may change, cease to exist, and/or lead to negative expected returns over any time period. This may have a negative impact on the value of a Relevant Index and the value of an investment in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. The terms of such Securities and Relevant Index will not be adjusted to take account of any such changes.

- (iv) The actual weights or quantities of Strategy Component(s) may vary following each rebalancing

The actual weight or quantity of each of the Strategy Component(s) may be different than the assigned weights or quantities, and therefore the relative contribution of each Strategy Component to the relevant Strategy Value may vary from time to time, depending on the performance of each of the Strategy Components relative to the other Strategy Components since such immediately preceding rebalancing. The longer the period between each rebalancing, the greater the likelihood that there will be a significant variance between the absolute values of the weights or quantities of the Strategy Components and the Relevant Index may therefore have an exposure to a Strategy Component further below or in greater excess of its assigned weight than it would if the period were shorter, which may result in a greater skewing of the absolute nature of the investment positions with respect to the Strategy Components and increase the overall risk profile of the Relevant Index.

- (v) Historical levels of a Relevant Index may not be indicative of future performance

Past performance of a Relevant Index is no guide to future performance. It is impossible to predict whether the value of a Relevant Index will rise or fall. The actual performance of a Relevant Index in the future may bear little relation to the historical performance of a Relevant Index.

- (vi) An investor in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index will have no rights in respect of any Strategy Component(s)

The investment exposure provided by a Relevant Index is synthetic, and a notional investment in a Relevant Index does not constitute a purchase or other acquisition or assignment of any interest in any Strategy Component (or any components thereof). Investment in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index will therefore not make an investor a holder of, or give an investor a direct investment position in, any Strategy Component (or any components thereof). The return on your Securities may be less than if you held a direct position in a Relevant Index or any Strategy Component (or any components thereof), or a different product linked thereto.

- (vii) A Relevant Index may have a limited operating history and may perform in unanticipated ways

Each Relevant Index is a relatively new strategy. As limited historical performance data may exist with respect to a Relevant Index and/or the Strategy Component(s) referenced by such Relevant Index, any investment in respect of which returns are linked to the performance of a Relevant Index or its Strategy Component(s) may involve greater risk than an investment linked to returns generated by an investment strategy with a proven track record. While a longer history of actual performance could provide more reliable information on which to base an investment decision, the fact that a Relevant Index and the relevant Strategy Component(s) are relatively new would not allow this. There can be no guarantee or assurance that a Relevant Index or its Strategy Component(s) will operate in a manner consistent with the data available.

(viii) A Relevant Index may be subject to a Disruption Event

If a Disruption Event occurs or is continuing in respect of a Relevant Index, the index sponsor, Strategy Calculation Agent or Index Calculation Agent, as the case may be, may make certain adjustments in respect of such Relevant Index which may include adjustments to the methodology and relevant data sources in order to calculate the Strategy Value, a postponement of any relevant rebalancing, or the suspension of the publication of the Strategy Value. If the index sponsor, Strategy Calculation Agent or Index Calculation Agent (as applicable) makes any adjustments to the methodology and relevant data sources or postpones any relevant rebalancing, it is likely that the Strategy Value will be different from what it would have been if such event had not occurred, and it may vary unpredictably and could be lower.

(ix) Changes in the Strategy Components or Input Data may affect the Strategy Value

Where a Strategy Component or Input Data ceases to exist or is no longer tradable, including as a result of a GS Group member discontinuing a Strategy Component of which it is a sponsor or discontinuing to act as a provider of Input Data, or where the index sponsor would be prevented from entering into transactions in respect of a Strategy Component (including one for which a GS Group member is the sponsor) or Input Data by any applicable law or regulation, the index sponsor may (but is not obliged to) substitute another Strategy Component or other Input Data for the original Strategy Component or Input Data where it considers in its sole discretion that a similar alternative is available. Any such substitution could alter the exposure provided by a Relevant Index and materially affect the performance and value of such Relevant Index.

(x) The index sponsor's hedging activity may affect the level of a Relevant Index

By executing products linked to a Relevant Index ("Linked Products"), GSI and/or its affiliates ("GS") will have an exposure to such Relevant Index and its Strategy Component(s). GS may take risk positions to hedge this exposure in its sole discretion and in a principal capacity. Investors in any Linked Product will not have any rights in respect of any GS hedge positions, including any shares, futures, options, commodities or currencies. GS may execute its hedging activity by trading in the Strategy Component(s) of a Relevant Index on or before the related rebalancing day. Such trading may have an adverse impact on the level at which a Strategy Component is rebalanced which will result in an adverse impact on the performance of such Relevant Index. GS's hedging activity, and hence the size of such impact, will be linked to the amount of new and outstanding Linked Products at the relevant time and then-prevailing market conditions and may affect the market price of or liquidity in the relevant market of a Relevant Index. Additionally, GS may generate revenues if it executes its hedging activity at different levels from those used to determine the value of a Relevant Index or on a rebalancing of such Relevant Index. Such hedging activity could generate significant returns to GS that will not be passed on to investors in Linked Products.

A Relevant Index and its components are calculated and rebalanced according to the methodology for such Relevant Index, which may include assumptions as to transaction or servicing costs and rates of dividend withholding tax. GS will generate revenues in relation to a Relevant Index if the costs or tax rates that GS incurs through its hedging activities are less than the assumed costs or tax rates used in the methodology for a Relevant Index.

(xi) As index sponsor and/or calculation agent of a Relevant Index, GSI has the authority to make determinations that could materially affect such Relevant Index and create conflicts of interest

As the index sponsor and/or calculation agent of a Relevant Index, GSI does not generally exercise any discretion in relation to the operation of such Relevant Index. GSI owes no fiduciary duties in respect of each Relevant Index. GSI may, however, exercise discretion in certain limited situations including, but not limited to, those situations described in the relevant Index Rules.

Determinations made by GSI as the index sponsor and/or calculation agent of a Relevant Index could adversely affect the Strategy Value of such Relevant Index and the exercise by Goldman Sachs of its discretion could present it with a conflict of interest. In making those determinations, the index sponsor and/or calculation agent will not be required to, and will not, take the interests of any investor in Securities linked to the relevant Proprietary Index into account or consider the effect its determinations will have on the value of such Securities. All determinations made by index sponsor and/or calculation agent shall be at its sole discretion and shall be conclusive for all purposes and will bind all holders of any Securities linked to the Proprietary Index. The index sponsor and/or calculation agent shall not have any liability for such determinations.

(xii) Trading and other transactions by the GS Group could materially affect the value of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index

The GS Group is a full service financial services firm engaged in a range of market activities. GS Group may issue, arrange for the issue of, or enter into financial instruments referenced to, a Relevant Index or any of the Strategy Component(s) of such Relevant Index and arrange for the distribution of these financial instruments, including the payment of distribution fees and commissions to any intermediaries. These activities could adversely affect the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index, and any of its Strategy Component(s), and may present the GS Group with a conflict of interest.

(xiii) Information provided by the GS Group about the value of any Strategy Component may not be indicative of future performance

Any information about the performance of any Strategy Component provided by the GS Group will be or has been furnished as a matter of information only, and an investor in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index should not regard the information as indicative of the range of, or trends in, fluctuations in the levels or values that may occur in the future. Such information will likely differ from the actual values and levels used under the relevant index methodology.

(xiv) Information about a Proprietary Index may only be available through the GS Group

The GS Group may not provide holders of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index with further information in relation to such Proprietary Index or any Relevant Index beyond what is provided in the relevant Index Rules, and further information may not be generally available. The GS Group has entered into non-exclusive licensing agreements with certain of its third party data suppliers in order to source the necessary data to calculate each Relevant Index. The formalities necessary to obtain access to such figures may deter potential investors from buying Securities linked to a Proprietary Index on the secondary market.

(xv) The index sponsor and any calculation agent may rely upon third party and other external and internal data sources which may be inaccessible and/or inaccurate, and the inputs used by the index sponsor and any calculation agent may affect the value of a Relevant Index

The index sponsor and the Strategy Calculation Agent or Index Calculation Agent, as the case may be, may rely upon third party brokers or external dealers and other external and internal sources to obtain certain inputs necessary to compute the value of a Relevant Index and/or to determine the weights or quantities of the Strategy Components, which may be inaccessible and/or inaccurate and the inputs used by them to compute the value of a Relevant Index may affect the value of such Relevant Index.

The inability of the index sponsor or the Strategy Calculation Agent or Index Calculation Agent, as the case may be, to source necessary data to calculate the relevant formulae of a Relevant Index may affect the value of such Relevant Index. In addition, the index sponsor and the Strategy Calculation Agent or Index Calculation Agent, as the case may be, make no warranty as to the correctness or completeness of that information and take no responsibility for the accuracy of such data or the impact of any inaccuracy of such data on the value of a Relevant Index, and are not under any obligation to independently verify such data (or to advise any investor in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index of any inaccuracy, omission, mistake or error of which it becomes aware). There can be no assurance that any error or discrepancy on the part of any data source or sponsor will be corrected or revised. Even if any error or discrepancy on the part of any third party data source or sponsor is corrected or revised, neither the index sponsor nor any of its affiliates is under any obligation to incorporate any such correction or revision into the calculation of the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index or the price or level of any Strategy Component. Investors should carefully read and understand the information about the relevant Strategy Components.

Securities linked to a Proprietary Index may be exposed to more or less risk, or perform better or worse, based upon the inputs received from the above sources, than an actual investment in or linked to one or more of the Strategy Components.

No assurance can be given that any model or methodology used by such sources will have a positive effect on the performance of a Relevant Index. Therefore, a Relevant Index may not perform as well as a strategy using alternative sources or sources with a different model or methodology.

(xvi) The changes in the policies of the index sponsor or a cancellation, discontinuation or suspension of a Relevant Index could affect the value of such Relevant Index

The policies of the index sponsor concerning the calculation of a Relevant Index could affect the value of such Relevant Index and/or the Proprietary Index and, therefore, the amount payable on Securities linked to such Proprietary Index on the stated maturity date of such Securities (or on any other payment date) and the market value of such Securities before that date.

The amount payable on any Securities linked to a Proprietary Index and their market value could also be affected if the index sponsor changes these policies, for example, by changing the manner in which it calculates such Proprietary Index or a Relevant Index, or if the index sponsor cancels, discontinues or suspends calculation or publication of such Proprietary Index or a Relevant Index, in which case it may become difficult to determine the market value of such Securities.

If such policies change, or the calculation or publication of a Proprietary Index or a Relevant Index is cancelled, discontinued or suspended, the Calculation Agent of the Securities (which may be GSI) may have discretion in determining the level of such Proprietary Index or Relevant Index on the relevant determination date, or the Securities may be redeemed early by payment of the non-scheduled early repayment amount. Any such determination or early redemption may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities, and you may lose some or all of your investment in the Securities.

(xvii) A Relevant Index may be calculated without reference to corrected data

In the event that the value of any component which is used for the calculation of the weight or quantity (as applicable) of any Strategy Component or Input Data in relation to a Relevant Index is corrected after such time as it is used in such Relevant Index, the index sponsor, or Strategy Calculation Agent or Index Calculation Agent, as the case may be, may not use such corrected value and may instead use the weight or quantity (as applicable) as calculated before such correction. As a result the performance of a Relevant Index may differ from the performance had such corrected values been used, and possibly materially so.

(xviii) A Relevant Index may be changed or become unavailable

The index sponsor shall have the right to alter the methodology used to calculate a Relevant Index or to discontinue publication of the value of a Relevant Index and such event may result in a decrease in the value of or return on any Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. The index sponsor reserves the right to form a Strategy Committee or Index Committee, as the case may be, for the purposes of considering certain changes. Any changes may be made without regard to the interests of a holder of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index.

A permanent cancellation of a Relevant Index or a failure by the index sponsor to calculate or announce the value of a Relevant Index may constitute a disruption event in respect of, and, therefore, may result in a decrease in the value of or return on any, Securities linked to a Proprietary Index or result in the termination or early redemption of such Securities.

Furthermore, the decisions and policies of the index sponsor concerning the calculation of the value of a Relevant Index could affect its value and, therefore, the amount payable over the term of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index and the market value of such Securities. The amount payable on Securities linked to a Proprietary Index and their market value could also be affected if the index sponsor changes these policies.

(xix) A Relevant Index may not be a fully diversified portfolio

Diversification is generally considered to reduce the amount of risk associated with an investment. A Relevant Index may be concentrated in a particular asset class or sector and there can be no assurance that it will be sufficiently diversified at any time to reduce or minimise risks of volatility. The more concentrated a Relevant Index is in certain asset classes or sectors, the greater degree of volatility the Relevant Index may exhibit, and this could in turn result in an adverse effect on the returns of the Relevant Index.

In addition, certain asset classes or sectors may suffer the same adverse performance following a general downturn or other economic or political event, and this could in turn have an adverse effect on the returns of the Relevant Index.

(b) Risks associated with certain types of Proprietary Indices

(i) The reference level of Underlying Funds, Component Stocks or Assets included in a Proprietary Index may be adjusted to take account of net dividend payments and/or potential adjustment events

Following the determination by the index sponsor that an event has occurred that would have a diluting or concentrative effect in respect of an Underlying Fund, Component Stock or Asset, as the case may be, or following any adjustment to the settlement terms of listed options or futures contracts on such Underlying Fund, Component Stock or Asset, as the case may be, traded on an options or futures exchange, the index sponsor may make an adjustment to account for such effect. The index sponsor may, but need not, determine the appropriate adjustment by reference (amongst other things) to the adjustment in respect of such event made by the other equity market dealers and/or exchanges (including but not limited to the reference exchange for such Underlying Fund, Component Stock or Asset, as the case may be, and options and futures exchanges related to such Underlying Fund, Component Stock or Asset, as the case may be) or quoting services. Such adjustment may have an adverse effect on the performance of the relevant Proprietary Index.

On the date on which a Strategy Component commences trading without the rights to receive a dividend, the reference level of such Strategy Component may be adjusted by the index sponsor with the aim of increasing the level to a value as if the relevant dividend amount, net of tax, had not been declared. When making such adjustment, the index sponsor may assume a notional tax rate in respect of the dividend, which may reduce the increase in the reference level for the relevant Strategy Component. Such tax rates may vary according to changes in tax laws and procedures.

(ii) A Relevant Index may provide short exposure to one or more of the Strategy Components

A Relevant Index may specify that the weight of a Strategy Component may be less than zero, i.e. a short position in such Strategy Component. A short position in a Strategy Component means that a Relevant Index will have negative exposure to such Strategy Component and the Strategy Value of such Relevant Index will be negatively affected if the value of such Strategy Component should increase and positively affected if the value of such Strategy Component should decrease. Therefore, investors should be aware that an investment in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index may decline in value in a period, even if the value of such Strategy Component increases during that timeframe. Further, given that short positions may create exposure to uncapped losses, increases in the value of such Strategy Component could result in a decrease in the Strategy Value that is greater than the weight in respect of such Strategy Component, and may result in the Strategy Value falling to zero or even to a negative value.

(iii) Correlation of performances among the Strategy Components may reduce the performance of a Relevant Index

Performances of the Strategy Components of a Relevant Index may become highly correlated from time to time, including, but not limited to, periods in which there is a substantial decline in a particular sector or asset type represented by the Strategy Components. High correlation during periods of negative returns among the Strategy Components may have an adverse effect on the level of a Relevant Index.

(iv) Information about a Relevant Index is no guarantee of the performance of such Relevant Index

Certain presentations and historical analysis ("Back-testing") or other statistical analysis materials in respect of the operation and/or potential returns of a Relevant Index which may be provided are based on a number of assumptions, historical estimates, simulated analyses and hypothetical circumstances to estimate how such Relevant Index may have performed prior to its actual existence. The index sponsor may use historical data that is available to calculate the hypothetical level of a Relevant Index prior to its inception. If the index sponsor determines that such historical data is not available or is incomplete, the index sponsor may use alternate sources of data in place of such historical data as well as make certain modifications to the strategy methodology as it deems necessary to calculate the hypothetical level of a Relevant Index prior to its inception. The index sponsor provides no assurance or guarantee that a Relevant Index will operate or would have operated in the past in a manner consistent with those materials. As such, any historical returns projected in such materials or any hypothetical simulations based on these analyses, which are provided in relation to a Relevant Index may not reflect the performance of, and are no guarantee or assurance in respect of the performance or returns of, a Relevant Index over any time period. Furthermore, any Back-testing of a Relevant Index is based on information and data provided to the index sponsor by third parties. The index sponsor will not have independently verified or guaranteed the accuracy and/or the completeness of such information or data provided and is not responsible for any inaccuracy, omission, mistake or error in such information, data and/or Back-testing.

(v) Some index parameters may be partially based on simulated data

Some parameters of a Relevant Index may have been determined by reference to simulated time series data which start before the Strategy Inception Date, as the case may be, for such Relevant Index. Such simulated data are based on various assumptions, do not reflect actual trading and are subject to various market data limitations. As a result, the performance of the simulated time series data may differ from the actual historical performance of a Relevant Index and this difference may be material. The future performance of a Relevant Index will depend, among other things, on the choice of the parameters as described in the relevant Index Rules. As such, the performance of such Relevant Index could be materially different if the relevant parameters were determined based on the actual performance of such Relevant Index rather than based on simulated time series data.

- (vi) The value of a Relevant Index may be reduced by certain deductions included in the calculation of the value of such Relevant Index and this may negatively impact the return on an investment in Securities linked to the relevant Proprietary Index

The value of a Relevant Index may be reduced by certain deductions such as rebalancing costs, asset servicing costs, transaction costs or other relevant costs. Any such deductions may have the effect of reducing the performance of the Relevant Index and consequently the return on an investment in Securities linked to the relevant Proprietary Index.

Certain costs which are embedded and reflected in the calculation of a Relevant Index may be calculated by reference to pre-determined rates and may not necessarily reflect the actual or realised costs that would be incurred by an investor in the relevant Strategy Component(s) or their underlying constituents, which could be larger or smaller from time to time. The sponsor of the Proprietary Index (or its affiliates) may benefit if such costs embedded in a Relevant Index exceed the actual costs that are incurred by the sponsor (or its affiliates) in hedging transactions that may be entered into in respect of such Relevant Index, each Strategy Component and/ or any underlying component thereof.

- (vii) The changes in the policies of a sponsor of a Strategy Component or a cancellation, discontinuation or suspension of a Strategy Component could affect the value of a Relevant Index

The policies of a sponsor concerning the calculation of the value of a Strategy Component, or additions, deletions or substitutions of Strategy Components and other changes affecting Strategy Components could affect the Strategy Value of a Proprietary Index and Securities linked to such Proprietary Index. The Strategy Value could be affected if the relevant sponsor changes these policies, for example, by changing the manner in which it calculates the value of the Strategy Component, or if the sponsor discontinues or suspends calculation or publication of the value of the Strategy Component, in which case it may become difficult to determine the Strategy Value.

- (viii) Strategy Inception Date

A Relevant Index may only have been calculated since the "Strategy Inception Date", being a date determined by the Strategy Sponsor as the date on which the value of the strategy would have been equal to the "Strategy Initial Value" (as specified in the rules of such Relevant Index) based on back-testing (using simulated analyses and hypothetical circumstances). As such, any historical returns or any hypothetical simulations based on such back-tested data or analyses with respect to the period from the Strategy Inception Date to the date on which investment products linked to a Relevant Index are first implemented (which may be materially later than the Strategy Inception Date of such Relevant Index), may not reflect the performance of, and are no guarantee or assurance in respect of the performance or returns of, such Relevant Index over any time period.

- (ix) A Relevant Index may not be actively managed

The weight or quantity assigned to a Strategy Component on each relevant rebalancing day may be determined by applying an algorithm operating within pre-determined rules. There may be no active management of a Relevant Index so as to enhance returns beyond those embedded in a Relevant Index.

Market participants are often able to adjust their investments promptly in view of market, political, financial or other factors, and an actively managed product could potentially respond more directly and appropriately to immediate market, political, financial or other factors than a non-actively managed strategy. In contrast, the algorithm for a Relevant Index may rebalance the weights or quantities to their specified values on each relevant rebalancing day. No assurance can be given that a Relevant Index will replicate or outperform a comparable strategy which is actively managed and the return on a Relevant Index may be lower than the return on an actively managed strategy.

(x) The negative performance of one or more Strategy Components may outweigh the positive performance of other Strategy Components

The value of a Relevant Index may go up or down depending on the overall performance of each Strategy Component. The negative performance of one or more positively weighted Strategy Components (and/or the positive performance of one or more negatively weighted Strategy Components) may outweigh the positive performance of other positively weighted Strategy Components (and/or the negative performance of one or more negatively weighted Strategy Components). Even in the case of a positive performance of one or more Strategy Components, the value of a Relevant Index as a whole may go down if the performance of the other Strategy Components is negative to a greater extent.

(xi) Prices of relevant underlying indices, financial instruments or assets constituted in a Strategy Component may be volatile

The value of a Strategy Component may be derived in whole or in part from the value of certain underlying indices, financial instruments or assets. The prices or levels of such underlying indices, financial instruments or assets may be volatile, with price movements being influenced by a multitude of factors, including, but not limited to, supply and demand, applicable market conditions, government policies and programmes, political and economic events and rates of inflation, currency devaluations and revaluations, and sentiment in the relevant market. This may make the value of a Strategy Component volatile, which may in turn make the value of a Relevant Index volatile.

5.6 Risks associated with Commodities as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.6 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is a Commodity.

(a) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of Commodities

Commodities comprise physical commodities, which need to be stored and transported, and commodity contracts, which are agreements either to buy or sell a set amount of a physical commodity at a predetermined price and delivery period (which is generally referred to as a delivery month), or to make and receive a cash payment based on changes in the price of the physical commodity.

Commodity contracts may be traded on regulated specialised futures exchanges (such as futures contracts) or may be traded directly between market participants "over-the-counter" (such as swaps and forward contracts) on trading facilities that are subject to lesser degrees of regulation or, in some cases, no substantive regulation.

The performance of commodity contracts are correlated with, but may be different from, the performance of physical commodities. Commodity contracts are normally traded at a discount or a premium to the spot prices of the physical commodity. The difference between the spot prices of the physical commodities and the futures prices of the commodity contracts, is, on one hand, due to adjusting the spot price by related expenses (warehousing, transport, insurance, etc.) and, on the other hand, due to different methods used to evaluate general factors affecting the spot and the futures markets. In addition, and depending on the commodity, there can be significant differences in the liquidity of the spot and the futures markets.

The performance of a commodity, and consequently the corresponding commodity contract, is dependent upon various factors, including supply and demand, liquidity, weather conditions and natural disasters, direct investment costs, location and changes in tax rates as set out in more detail below. Commodity prices are more volatile than other asset categories, making investments in commodities riskier and more complex than other investments.

- (i) Supply and demand – The planning and management of commodities supplies is very time-consuming. This means that the scope for action on the supply side is limited and it is not always possible to adjust production swiftly to take account of demand. Demand can also vary on a regional basis. Transport costs for commodities in regions where these are needed also affect their prices. The fact that some commodities take a cyclical pattern, such as agricultural products which are only produced at certain times of the year, can also result in major price fluctuations.
- (ii) Liquidity – Not all commodities markets are liquid and able to quickly and adequately react to changes in supply and demand. The fact that there are only a few market participants in the commodities markets means that speculative investments can have negative consequences and may distort prices.
- (iii) Weather conditions and natural disasters – Unfavourable weather conditions can influence the supply of certain commodities for the entire year. This kind of supply crisis can lead to severe and unpredictable price fluctuations. Diseases and epidemics can also influence the prices of agricultural commodities.
- (iv) Direct investment costs – Direct investments in commodities involve storage, insurance and tax costs. Moreover, no interest or dividends are paid on Commodities. The total returns from investments in commodities are therefore influenced by these factors.
- (v) Governmental programs and policies, national and international political, military and economic events and trading activities in commodities and related contracts – Commodities are often produced in emerging market countries, with demand coming principally from industrialised nations. The political and economic situation is however far less stable in many emerging market countries than in the developed world. They are generally much more susceptible to the risks of rapid political change and economic setbacks. Political crises can affect purchaser confidence, which can as a consequence affect commodity prices. Armed conflicts can also impact on the supply and demand for certain commodities. It is also possible for industrialised nations to impose embargos on imports and exports of goods and services. This can directly and indirectly impact commodity prices. Furthermore, numerous commodity producers have joined forces to establish organisations or cartels in order to regulate supply and influence prices.
- (vi) Changes in tax rates – Changes in tax rates and customs duties may have a positive or a negative impact on the profitability margins of commodities producers. When these costs are passed on to purchasers, these changes will affect prices.

Any of these factors may affect in varying ways the value of and return on a Security linked to a Commodity or a Commodity Index.

(b) Disruption Event – Limit Prices

The commodity markets are subject to temporary distortions or other disruptions due to various factors, including the lack of liquidity in the markets and government regulation and intervention. In addition, U.S. futures exchanges and some foreign exchanges have regulations that limit the amount of fluctuation in contract prices which may occur during a single business day. These limits are generally referred to as "daily price fluctuation limits" and the maximum or minimum price of a contract on any given day as a result of these limits is referred to as a "limit price". Once the limit price has been reached in a particular contract, trading in the contract will follow the regulations set forth by the trading facility on which the contract is listed. Limit prices may have the effect of precluding trading in a particular contract, which could adversely affect the value of a commodity contract or a commodity index. The disruption events referred to in risk factor 4.4 (Following a disruption event, the valuation of the Underlying Asset(s) may be postponed and/or valued by us in our discretion) include, in respect of commodities and commodity indices, the occurrence of "limit prices".

(c) Legal and regulatory changes

The Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (the "Dodd-Frank Act") amends the U.S. federal securities and commodity laws, effecting substantial changes to the regulation of the exchange-traded and over-the-counter ("OTC") derivative markets. The Dodd-Frank Act requires regulators, including the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (the "CFTC") and the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") to adopt regulations in order to implement many of the requirements of the legislation.

While the CFTC and the SEC have substantially completed their rulemaking under the Dodd-Frank Act, the ultimate impact of all potentially relevant regulations cannot yet be determined. For example, there is often only limited interpretive guidance as to the precise meaning, scope and effect of many such regulations. Nonetheless, these regulatory changes are likely to restrict the ability of market participants to participate in the commodity, future and swap markets, whether on an exchange or OTC, to the extent and at the levels that they have in the past. These factors may have the effect of reducing liquidity and increasing costs in these markets as well as affecting the structure of the markets in other ways.

Amongst other things, the Dodd-Frank Act and its implementing regulations require many derivative transactions, including certain rate swaps and index swaps, to be executed on regulated exchanges or trading platforms and cleared through regulated clearing houses. Swap dealers are required to be registered with the CFTC or the SEC, or both, and are subject to various regulatory requirements, including capital and margin requirements. The federal banking regulators, including the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, among others, have also promulgated capital and margin regulations applicable to swap entities regulated by these banking regulators. The various legislative and regulatory changes, and the resulting increased costs and regulatory oversight, could lead to market participants being required to, or deciding to, limit their trading activities, which could cause reductions in market liquidity and increases in market volatility. These consequences could adversely affect the level or the price of a commodity or swap or the level of a commodity or swap index, which could in turn adversely affect the return on and value of the Securities.

The adoption of or change to certain regulations or other measures may negatively impact our hedging positions (including potentially incurring materially increased cost in performing our obligations under the Securities and/or maintaining our hedge positions). In such case, we may, in our discretion, either (i) amend the terms and conditions of the Securities to account for such change in law or (ii) redeem the Securities. If we redeem your Securities, the non-scheduled early repayment amount payable to you may be less than you paid for the Securities, and you may lose some or up to all of your investment. Further, if the payment on the Securities is made prior to scheduled maturity, you may not be able to reinvest the proceeds in an investment having a comparable return. See risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount) above.

(d) Factors affecting prices of precious metals: Gold, Silver, Platinum and Palladium

Gold, silver, platinum and palladium are precious metals. Consequently, in addition to factors affecting commodities generally that are described above, the price of gold, silver, platinum or palladium may be subject to a number of additional factors specific to precious metals, including the following:

- disruptions in the supply chain, from mining to storage to smelting or refining;
- adjustments to inventory;

Risk Factors

- variations in production costs, including storage, labour and energy costs;
- costs associated with regulatory compliance, including environmental regulations;
- changes in industrial, governmental and consumer demand, both in individual consuming nations and internationally;
- precious metal leasing rates;
- foreign exchange rates;
- the level of economic growth and inflation; and
- the degree to which consumers, governments, corporate and financial institutions hold physical gold as a safe haven asset (hoarding) which may be caused by a banking crisis/recovery, a rapid change in the value of other assets (both financial and physical) or changes in the level of geopolitical tension.

These factors interrelate in complex ways, and the effect of one factor may offset or enhance the effect of another factor.

See also risk factor 4.7 (Risks associated with benchmark reform).

(e) Factors affecting prices of energy commodities

Global energy commodity prices are primarily affected by the global demand for and supply of these commodities, but are also significantly influenced by speculative actions and by currency exchange rates. In addition, prices for energy commodities are affected by governmental programs and policies, national and international political and economic events, changes in interest and exchange rates, the general level of equity markets, trading activities in commodities and related contracts, trade, fiscal, monetary and exchange control policies and with respect to oil, drought, floods, weather, government intervention, environmental policies, embargoes and tariffs. Demand for refined petroleum products by consumers, as well as the agricultural, manufacturing and transportation industries, affects the price of energy commodities. Sudden disruptions in the supplies of energy commodities, such as those caused by war, natural events, accidents or acts of terrorism, may cause prices of energy commodity futures contracts to become extremely volatile and unpredictable. Also, sudden and dramatic changes in the futures market may occur, for example, upon a cessation of hostilities that may exist in countries producing energy commodities, the introduction of new or previously withheld supplies into the market or the introduction of substitute products or commodities. In particular, supplies of crude oil may increase or decrease depending on, among other factors, production decisions by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries ("OPEC") and other crude oil producers. Crude oil prices are determined with significant influence by OPEC, which has the capacity to influence oil prices worldwide because its members possess a significant portion of the world's oil supply. Crude oil prices are generally more volatile and subject to dislocation than prices of other commodities. Demand for energy commodities such as oil and gasoline is generally linked to economic activity, and will tend to reflect general economic conditions.

(f) Factors affecting agricultural commodities

The markets for futures contracts on agricultural commodities are generally less liquid than the markets for contracts on other categories of commodities, such as energy commodities. The greater illiquidity of contracts on such commodities could adversely affect the prices of such commodities and therefore the returns on any Securities linked to Underlying Asset(s) comprising such commodities. In addition, the CFTC imposes limits on the size of positions in contracts on agricultural commodities that may be held or controlled by one trader for speculative purposes. In contrast, many other types of commodities are either not subject to position limits at all or are subject to limits established by the exchanges, rather than by the CFTC (although position limits on other commodities will in the near future become subject to position limits established by the CFTC as well, as discussed above). The CFTC's position limits on contracts on agricultural commodities could restrict the sizes of positions held by many market participants, which could further constrain liquidity.

Prices of agricultural commodities may be affected by certain factors to a greater extent than other commodity sectors. The prices of agricultural commodities and the futures contracts tied to those commodities, are affected by a variety of factors, including weather, governmental programs and policies, outbreaks of disease and epidemics or other unanticipated natural disasters, the seasonality of supply and demand, transportation and distribution considerations. Agricultural products which are only produced at certain times of the year can also result in major price fluctuations. While all commodity prices are affected by some or all of these factors, they may have a greater impact on the prices of agricultural commodities and the futures contracts tied to those commodities.

(g) The occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event may have a negative effect on your Securities

If a Commodity Reference Price or its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration with the effect that the Commodity Reference Price may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent or the Commodity Reference Price is materially modified, we (as Calculation Agent) shall, if we determine the event to have a material effect on the Securities, apply the applicable fallback(s) specified, which may include basing our determination on an alternate commodity reference price or we may determine the level of the Commodity Reference Price. If we believe that (i) it would be unlawful or would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the proposed action(s) above or (ii) the proposed action(s) above would not achieve a commercially reasonable result, we may redeem the Securities early. In such event, we will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your original investment and you may lose some or all of your money. See also risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount).

5.7 Risks associated with Commodity Indices as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.7 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is a Commodity Index.

(a) Commodity Indices are comprised of futures contracts on their underlying commodities constituents, and therefore you are exposed to the risks of an investment linked to commodities

See risk factor 5.6 (Risks associated with Commodities as Underlying Assets) above.

(b) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of Commodities

Commodity Indices track the performance of a synthetic production-weighted basket of commodity contracts on certain physical commodities. The level of Commodity Indices replicates an actual investment in commodity contracts, and therefore goes up or down depending on the overall performance of the weighted basket of commodity contracts. Although Commodity Indices track the performance of the commodity markets, in a manner generally similar to the way in which an index of equity securities tracks the performance of the share market, there are important differences between a Commodity Index and an equity index. First, an equity index typically weights the shares in the index based on market capitalisation, while the commodities included in a Commodity Index are typically, though not always, weighted based on their world production levels and the dollar value of those levels with the exception of any sub-index of a Commodity Index based upon such sub-index. Second, unlike shares, commodity contracts expire periodically and, in order to maintain an investment in commodity contracts, it is necessary from time to time to "roll" out of such commodity contracts before they expire and "roll" into longer-dated commodity contracts. A Commodity Index may from time-to-time "roll" commodity contracts for reasons other than imminent expiration and in some such cases "roll" into nearer-dated commodity contracts. This feature of a Commodity Index, which is discussed below – see risk factor 5.7(e) (Exposure to "Rolling" and its impact on the performance of a Commodity Index), has important implications for changes in the value of a Commodity Index. Finally, the performance of a Commodity Index is dependent upon the macroeconomic factors relating to the commodities that underpin the commodities contracts included in such Commodity Index, such as supply and demand, liquidity, weather conditions and natural disasters, direct investment costs, location and changes in tax rates – see risk factor 5.6(a) (Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of Commodities). The performance of commodity contracts in one sector may offset the performance of commodity contracts in another sector.

While holding an inventory of physical commodities may have certain economic benefits (for example, a refinery could use a reserve of crude oil for the continuation of its operations), it also poses administrative burdens and costs, including those arising from the need to store or transport physical commodities. These requirements and costs may prove unattractive to purchasers who are interested solely in the price movement of commodities. Commodity contracts permit a purchaser to obtain exposure to the prices of commodities without directly incurring these requirements and costs. However, a purchaser in commodity contracts, or in an index of commodity contracts, can be indirectly exposed to these costs, which may be reflected in the prices of the commodity contracts and therefore in the level of a Commodity Index. In addition, the fact that commodity contracts have publicly available prices allows calculation of an index based on these prices. The use of commodity contracts, therefore, allows the Commodity Index sponsor, to separate the exposure to price changes from the ownership of the underlying physical commodity, and thus allow participation in the upside and downside movement of commodity prices independently of the physical commodity itself.

- (c) Exposure to risk that if the price of the underlying physical commodities increases, the level of the Commodity Index will not necessarily also increase – redemption amounts in respect of Securities that reference Commodity Indices do not reflect direct investment in physical commodities or commodity contracts

If the price of the underlying physical commodities increases, the level of the Commodity Index, will not necessarily also increase. The redemption amount payable on Securities that reference a Commodity Index is linked to the performance of such Commodity Index which in turn tracks the performance of the basket of commodity contracts included in such Commodity Index, rather than individual physical commodities themselves. Changes in the prices of commodity contracts should generally track changes in the prices of the underlying physical commodities, but, as described above, the prices of commodity contracts might from time to time move in ways or to an extent that differ from movements in physical commodity prices. Therefore, the prices of a particular commodity may go up but the level of the Commodity Index may not change in the same way.

Accordingly, as a holder of Securities linked to the performance of one or more Commodity Indices, you may obtain a lower return on your Securities than if you had invested directly in the underlying commodities.

- (d) Exposure to commodity futures contracts through an investment in Securities that reference Commodity Indices compared to "spot" prices

It is typical in commodity markets to take the price of the first-nearby commodity futures contract with respect to a commodity (that is, as of a given date, the commodity futures contract first to expire following such date) as a reference for the "spot" price of such commodity. Over time such "spot" price will vary for two reasons. Firstly, the price of the first-nearby commodity futures contract will vary over time due to market fluctuations. Secondly, when the commodity futures contract which is considered to be the first-nearby contract changes from contract expiration "X" to contract expiration "Y" (as contract expiration "X" is approaching expiry), there is a discrete change in the price of the "prevailing" first-nearby commodity futures contract. If contract expiration "Y" is trading at a premium to contract expiration "X" (referred to as a "contango" market, as described in further detail below), the discrete change will represent a "jump" in the "spot" price. If contract expiration "Y" is trading at a discount to contract expiration "X" (referred to as a "backwardated" market, as described in further detail below) the discrete change will represent a "drop" in the "spot" price.

Since such "jump" or "drop" does not correspond to a change in price of any given commodity futures contract, these economics cannot be captured by a futures-linked investment such as a Commodity Index. Therefore, all other things being equal (in particular, assuming no change in the relative price of the various contract expirations with respect to the relevant commodity futures contract), in a "contango" market a long-only futures-linked investment may be expected to underperform the "spot" price (due to not capturing the "jump" in spot price) and in a "backwardated" market a long-only futures-linked investment may be expected to outperform the "spot" price (due to not capturing the "drop" in spot price).

Accordingly, as a holder of Securities linked to the performance of one or more Commodity Indices, you may obtain a lower return on your Securities than if you had invested directly in the underlying commodities.

(e) Exposure to "Rolling" and its impact on the performance of a Commodity Index

Generally, a Commodity Index will, from time-to-time, shift exposure from one commodity contract to another commodity contract on the same underlying commodity but with a different expiration (this is referred to as "rolling" the commodity contract). In particular, since any commodity contract has a predetermined expiration date on which trading of the commodity contract ceases, holding a commodity contract until expiration would result in delivery of the underlying physical commodity or the requirement to make or receive a cash settlement. Therefore if a Commodity Index is exposed to a commodity contract which is approaching expiration, such Commodity Index will typically roll such exposure to a commodity contract with a later expiration date. This would allow an actual purchaser to maintain an investment position without receiving delivery of physical commodities or making or receiving a cash settlement. As Commodity Indices replicate an actual investment in commodity contracts, it takes into account the rolling of commodity contracts included in such Commodity Indices. Specifically, as the composition of the Commodity Index changes from one commodity futures contract to another, the Commodity Index is calculated as if the former contract is sold and the proceeds of that sale are used to purchase the latter commodity contract.

(f) Prices of commodity contracts underlying a Commodity Index may change unpredictably, affecting the market price of Securities linked to such Commodity Index in unforeseeable ways

Trading in commodities has been and can be extremely volatile. Commodity prices are affected by a variety of factors that are unpredictable, including, without limitation, changes in supply and demand relationships, weather, governmental programs and policies, national and international political, military, terrorist and economic events, fiscal, monetary and exchange control programs, changes in interest and exchange rates and changes, suspensions or disruptions of market trading activities in commodities and related contracts.

These factors may affect the value of Securities linked to a Commodity Index in varying ways, and different factors may cause the value of different commodities underlying a Commodity Index and the volatilities of their prices, to move in inconsistent directions and at inconsistent rates.

(g) Actions by the index sponsor may negatively affect the Securities

The sponsor of the Commodity Index is responsible for the composition, calculation and maintenance of such Commodity Index. The sponsor will have no involvement in the offer and sale of the Securities and will have no obligation to you as a holder of Securities. The sponsor may take any actions in respect of such Commodity Index without regard to your interests as a holder of Securities, and any of these actions could adversely affect the market value and return on the Securities.

The sponsor of any Commodity Index can add, delete or substitute the commodity contracts of such Commodity Index or make other methodological changes that could change the weighting of one or more commodity contracts, such as rebalancing the commodities in the Commodity Index. The composition of a Commodity Index may change over time as additional commodity contracts satisfy the eligibility criteria or commodity contracts currently included in such Commodity Index fail to satisfy such criteria. Such changes to the composition of the Commodity Index may affect the level of such Commodity Index as a newly added commodity contract may perform significantly worse or better than the commodity contract it replaces, which in turn, may affect the payments made by the Issuer to the purchasers of the Securities. The sponsor of any such Commodity Index may also alter, discontinue or suspend calculation or dissemination of such Commodity Index. In such circumstances, the Calculation Agent would have the discretion to make determinations with respect to the level of the Commodity Index.

Any of these events may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

(h) A Commodity Index may include commodity contracts that are not traded on regulated futures exchanges

A Commodity Index may not always include exclusively regulated futures contracts and could at varying times include over-the-counter contracts (such as swaps and forward contracts) traded on trading facilities that are subject to lesser degrees of regulation or, in some cases, no substantive regulation. As a result, trading in such contracts, and the manner in which prices and volumes are reported by the relevant trading facilities, may not be subject to the same provisions of, and the protections afforded by, the U.S. Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended, or other applicable statutes and related regulations, that govern trading on U.S. regulated futures exchanges or similar statutes and regulations that govern trading on regulated UK futures exchanges. In addition, many electronic trading facilities have only recently initiated trading and do not have significant trading histories. As a result, the trading of contracts on such facilities and the inclusion of such contracts in a Commodity Index may be subject to certain risks not presented by most U.S. or UK exchange-traded futures contracts, including risks related to the liquidity and price histories of the relevant contracts.

(i) Disruption Event – Continuation of calculation of Commodity Index Level by Sponsor

If a disruption event referred to in risk factor 4.4 (Following a disruption event, the valuation of the Underlying Asset(s) may be postponed and/or valued by us in our discretion) occurs with respect to any commodity contract included in a Commodity Index, the adjustment provisions included in the terms and conditions of the Securities will apply, including the determination by the Calculation Agent of the value of the relevant disrupted commodity contract underlying the Commodity Index, and in turn the level of such Commodity Index on the date specified in such Securities. However, regardless of the disruption event, the sponsor of the Commodity Index may continue to calculate and publish the level of such Commodity Index. In such circumstances, as a holder of Securities linked to such Commodity Index, you should be aware that the level of the Commodity Index, determined by the Calculation Agent upon the occurrence of a disruption event, may not reflect the level of the Commodity Index as calculated and published by the sponsor of such Commodity Index for the relevant valuation date, nor would the Calculation Agent be willing to settle, unwind or otherwise use any such published level while a disruption event is occurring with respect to any commodity contract included in a Commodity Index.

(j) Data sourcing and calculation risks associated with a Commodity Index and the commodity contracts underlying a Commodity Index may adversely affect the value of the Commodity Index

The closing level of a Commodity Index or the prices of commodity contracts underlying such Commodity Index will be calculated based on price data that are subject to potential errors in data sources or other errors that may affect the closing levels published by the relevant sponsor of a Commodity Index or the prices published by the relevant price source(s) for such underlying commodity contracts, as applicable. Also, there may be errors in any other data sourced by the sponsor of a Commodity Index. Such errors could adversely affect the closing level of the Commodity Index on any given day, which could in turn have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities and any amount payable under the Securities. There can be no assurance that any error or discrepancy on the part of any data source or sponsor will be corrected or revised or that the sponsor of a Commodity Index will incorporate any such correction or revision into the calculation of such Commodity Index. The sponsor of a Commodity Index makes no representation or warranty, express or implied, as to the correctness or completeness of that information and takes no responsibility for the accuracy of such data or the impact of any inaccuracy of such data on the relevant level of such Commodity Index, or on the value of any commodity contracts included in such Commodity Index.

- (k) The occurrence of a commodity index adjustment event or the replacement of the commodity index sponsor by a successor commodity index sponsor may have a negative effect on your Securities

If the sponsor of a Commodity Index makes a material alteration to the Commodity Index or cancels the Commodity Index and no successor exists, or if the sponsor fails to calculate and announce the level of the Commodity Index, or if the Commodity Index or its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration with the effect that the Commodity Index may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent, we (as Calculation Agent) shall, if we determine the event to have a material effect on the Securities, (i) calculate the level of the Commodity Index according to the previous formula and method, (ii) replace the Commodity Index with another index (or basket of indices) or (iii) determine the appropriate adjustments to be made to the terms and conditions of the Securities (without your consent). Any such action may have a negative effect on the value and return on the Securities.

If we believe that (i) it would be unlawful or would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the proposed action above or (ii) the proposed action above would not achieve a commercially reasonable result, we may redeem the Securities early. In such event, we will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your original investment and you may lose some or all of your money. See also risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount).

If a Commodity Index is calculated by a successor commodity index sponsor, or, is replaced by a successor commodity index, the successor commodity index or commodity index as calculated by the successor commodity index sponsor, will be deemed to be the Commodity Index if approved by us (as Calculation Agent). Any such successor commodity index may perform poorly and may result in holders of Securities receiving less than they otherwise expected.

Any of these events may have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

5.8 Risks associated with foreign exchange rates as Underlying Assets

The description of the risks factors in this risk factor 5.8 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is a foreign exchange rate.

The performance of foreign exchange rates, currency units or units of account is dependent upon the supply and demand for currencies in the international foreign exchange markets, which are subject to economic factors, including inflation rates in the countries concerned, interest rate differences between the respective countries, economic forecasts, international political factors, currency convertibility and safety of making financial investments in the currency concerned, speculation and measures taken by governments and central banks. Such measures include, without limitation, imposition of regulatory controls or taxes, issuance of a new currency to replace an existing currency, alteration of the exchange rate or exchange characteristics by devaluation or revaluation of a currency or imposition of exchange controls with respect to the exchange or transfer of a specified currency that would affect exchange rates as well as the availability of a specified currency.

Administrator/Benchmark Event

If an FX Rate or its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration with the effect that the FX Rate may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent or the FX Rate is materially modified, we (as Calculation Agent) shall, if we determine the event to have a material effect on the Securities, base our determination on the fallback rate specified. If no fallback rate is specified and/or we believe that (i) it would be unlawful or would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the proposed action above or (ii) the proposed action above would not achieve a commercially reasonable result, we may redeem the Securities early. In such event, we will pay to you the non-scheduled early repayment amount. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your original investment and you may lose some or all of your money. See also risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an index adjustment event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount).

5.9 Risks associated with interest rates as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.9 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is an interest rate.

(a) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of interest rates

The performance of interest rates is dependent upon a number of factors, including supply and demand on the international money markets, which are influenced by measures taken by governments and central banks, as well as speculations and other macroeconomic factors.

(b) Reforms and regulation of 'benchmarks' could negatively impact your Securities

You should read risk factor 4.7 (Risks associated with benchmark reform), risk factor 4.8 (Risks relating to risk-free rates) and risk factor 4.9 (Additional risks in relation to the Benchmarks Regulations and reform).

(c) A negative floating rate may reduce any positive margin otherwise payable on your Securities

It is possible that floating rates of interest (e.g. EURIBOR) could turn negative. If the interest rate of your Securities is based on a floating rate, plus a specified Margin, and if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Reference Rate 0% Floor" or "ISDA Rate 0% Floor" to be not applicable, a negative floating rate will reduce the Margin, potentially to zero. In such case, the interest rate that you receive on your Securities will be lower than the Margin, and may even reduce it to zero, so that you receive no interest on your Securities.

(d) An interest rate may be floored at the minimum interest rate of zero per cent.

If the interest rate of your Securities is based on a floating rate (e.g. EURIBOR), plus or minus a specified Margin, it is possible that the interest rate could become negative. In such case, if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Minimum Rate of Interest" to be zero per cent., the minimum interest rate that you receive on your Securities will be zero, so that you receive no interest on your Securities.

(e) The interest rate on Securities with a negative Participation Rate will fall when the floating rate increases

A negative Participation Rate will result in the interest rate of your Securities moving in the opposite direction to a floating rate (e.g. EURIBOR) and therefore an increase in such floating rate will reduce the interest rate of your Securities (potentially to zero). When prevailing floating rates increase, the market value of Securities that have a negative Participation Rate can fall significantly due to the reduction in interest payable and because in most cases a rise in interest rates will cause the value of Securities to decrease. This fall will be magnified if the negative Participation Rate is lower than minus one, such that a rise in interest rates will result in a disproportionately higher fall in value of the Securities. See also risk factor 1.3 (The Securities may lose value if interest rates increase).

5.10 Risks associated with Inflation Indices and other inflation measurements as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.10 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is an inflation index, consumer price index or other formula linked to a measure of inflation.

If one or more of the Underlying Assets of your Securities comprise inflation indices, consumer price indices or other formulae linked to a measure of inflation as Underlying Assets, then you are exposed to the performance of such inflation indices or other measurement formulae, which may be subject to significant fluctuations that may not correlate with other indices and may not correlate perfectly with the rate of inflation experienced by you in your home jurisdiction. The return on the Securities may be based on a calculation made by reference to an inflation index for a month which is several months prior to the date of payment on the Securities and therefore could be substantially different from the level of inflation at the time of the payment on your Securities.

5.11 Risks associated with funds as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.11 is relevant to you if the type of Underlying Asset(s) (or if one of the types of Underlying Assets) to which your Securities are linked is a Fund. In addition, the fund offering document of the relevant Fund sets out further details on such Fund, including its fees and charges and any related risks, which you should take into account before deciding to invest in Securities linked to such Fund.

(a) Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of a Fund and this may adversely affect the value and return on your Securities

The performance of the units or shares of a Fund to which the Securities are linked will affect the value and investment return on your Securities. We give no assurance relating to the present or future performance of the units or shares of a Fund or any underlying component in which such Fund may invest. The performance of the units or shares of a Fund is dependent upon many factors which may include, without limitation, the following:

- (i) Macroeconomic factors: macroeconomic factors (such as interest and price levels on the capital markets, currency developments including variations of exchange rates of foreign currencies, political, judicial or economic factors);
- (ii) Volatile/illiquid investments: a Fund may make investments in markets that are volatile and/or illiquid and it may be difficult or costly for investment positions to be opened or liquidated. A Fund may invest in and actively trade instruments with significant risk characteristics, including risks arising from the volatility of securities, financial futures, derivatives, currency and interest rate markets, the leverage factors associated with trading in such markets and instruments, and the potential exposure to loss resulting from counterparty defaults;
- (iii) Concentration risk: a Fund may concentrate its investments in assets of a certain class or in securities or derivative instruments relating to certain issuers, industries or geographic regions and therefore the overall adverse impact on one or more components of a Fund, and correspondingly on the value of a Fund, of an event could be considerably greater than if a Fund were not permitted to concentrate its investments;

Risk Factors

- (iv) Credit risk: a Fund may take credit risk with regard to counterparties with which it trades, may bear the risk of settlement default and may also invest in securities which expose it to the credit risk of an issuer;
- (v) Risks of short selling: a Fund may sell securities short. Short selling exposes a Fund to theoretically unlimited risk due to the lack of an upper limit on the price to which a security may rise;
- (vi) Dependence on key individuals: the success of a Fund is dependent on the expertise of its service providers (the "Fund Service Providers") and the loss of key personnel could have a material adverse effect on such Fund;
- (vii) Regulatory and legislative risk: see "Regulatory and legislative risk" below;
- (viii) Leverage: a Fund may utilise leverage techniques, including the use of borrowed funds, repurchase agreements and other derivative financial instruments. While leverage presents opportunities for increasing a Fund's total return, it increases the potential risk of losses which could be greater than if leverage had not been used;
- (ix) Strategies of a Fund may not be successful in achieving its investment objective: see "Strategies of a Fund may not be successful in achieving its investment objective" below;
- (x) Costs relating to Funds: a Fund's performance will be affected by the fees and expenses which it incurs, as described in its offering documents. Such fees and expenses may include the investment management fees, performance fees and operating expenses typically incurred in connection with any direct investment in a Fund. A Fund will assess fees and incur costs and expenses regardless of its performance. High levels of trading could cause a Fund to incur increased trading costs; and
- (xi) Risk of fraud: there is a risk that a Fund Service Provider could divert or abscond with the assets of a Fund, fail to follow the investment strategies of a Fund, provide false reports of operations or engage in other misconduct.

Any one or a combination of the above factors could adversely affect the performance of a Fund which, in turn, would have a negative effect on the value of and return on your Securities. In addition, unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, we may determine that such event has resulted in the occurrence of a Crystallisation Event and/or an Adjusted NAV Event (as defined in the Conditions of the Securities), and may take one of the actions available to us to deal with such event (see "Determinations in respect of Crystallisation Events may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities" and "Determinations in respect of an Adjusted NAV Event may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities" below).

(b) No recourse to assets or shares of a Fund

You will not have any right of recourse under the Securities to the Fund Service Provider of any Fund, the units or shares of any Fund, or any assets of any Fund and you will have no claim against such Fund or the Fund Service Provider. The return on your Securities may be less than if you held shares in the Fund directly or a different product linked to such Fund.

(c) Actions by a Fund or the Fund Service Provider of a Fund may negatively affect your Securities

The Securities are not in any way sponsored, endorsed or promoted by any Fund or any Fund Service Provider, and such entities have no obligation to take into account the consequences of their actions in respect of any Holders. A Fund or any Fund Service Provider may take any actions (including adding, removing or substituting the components of such Fund, making other methodological changes that could change the investment profile of such Fund or discontinuing such Fund) in respect of such Fund without regard to the interests of the Holders, and any of these actions could adversely affect the market value of and return on your Securities.

(d) Units and shares in a Fund may be subject to transfer restrictions and illiquidity

There can be no assurance that the liquidity of a Fund will always be sufficient to meet redemption requests as, and when, made. Any lack of liquidity or restrictions on redemptions may affect the liquidity of the units or shares of a Fund and their value and could adversely affect the performance of your Securities. A Fund may make investments for which no liquid market exists, including those that are not listed on a securities exchange or traded on an over-the-counter market. The market values, if any, of such investments tend to be more volatile and a Fund may not be able to sell them when it desires to do so or to realise what it perceives to be their fair value in the event of a sale. Furthermore, entities whose securities are not publicly traded are not subject to the disclosure and other investor protection requirements which would be applicable if their securities were publicly traded.

The units or shares of a Fund and the assets of a Fund may be subject to transfer restrictions arising by way of applicable securities laws or otherwise. Holders of units or shares in a Fund may have the right to transfer or withdraw their investment in a Fund only at certain times and upon completion of certain documentary formalities and such rights may be subject to suspension or alteration.

These circumstances may affect the net asset value of a Fund and could adversely affect the performance of your Securities. Unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, we may also determine that such circumstances have resulted in the occurrence of a Crystallisation Event and/or an Adjusted NAV Event, and may take one of the actions available to us to deal with such event (see "Determinations in respect of Crystallisation Events may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities" and "Determinations in respect of an Adjusted NAV Event may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities" below).

In addition, the net asset value of the units or shares in a Fund used to calculate payments under the Securities will be reduced by the subscription or redemption costs or dealing charges incurred by the Issuer and/or its affiliates.

(e) Strategies of a Fund may not be successful in achieving its investment objective

No assurance can be given that the investment strategy of a Fund will be successful or that the investment objective of a Fund will be achieved, or that any analytical model used by the relevant management company will prove to be correct or that any assessments of the short-term or long-term prospects, volatility and correlation of the types of investments in which a Fund has invested or will invest will prove accurate. The analytical models utilised by a management company of a Fund and upon which investment decisions are based may be developed from historical analysis of the performance or correlation of certain companies, securities, industries, countries or markets. There can be no assurance that the historical performance that is used to determine such analytical models will be a good indicator of future performance, and if the future performance of a Fund varies significantly, the management company of a Fund may not achieve its intended investment performance.

No assurance can be given that the strategies to be used by a Fund will be successful under all or any market conditions. A Fund may utilise financial instruments such as derivatives for investment purposes and/or seek to hedge against fluctuations in the relative values of such Fund's portfolio positions as a result of changes in exchange rates, interest rates, equity prices and levels of yields and prices of other securities. Such hedging transactions may not always achieve the intended outcome and can also limit potential gains.

The management of a Fund may have broad discretion over its investment strategy, within specified parameters. A Fund could, for example, alter its investment focus within a prescribed market. Any shift in strategy could bear adverse consequences to a Fund's investment performance. Furthermore, a Fund may have difficulty realising any strategy initiatives that it undertakes. It may not sometimes be clear whether a Fund fulfils the investment criteria set out in its investment guidelines.

(f) Re-characterisation risk

No advice is being provided by the Issuer or any of its respective affiliates with respect to any re-characterisation risk (including the risk that your Securities may be considered part of a collective investment scheme) in connection with Securities linked to any Fund. Prospective investors should consult their own advisers with respect to the implications of an investment in the Securities. Any re-characterisation could have a material adverse effect on the return you realise on the Securities.

(g) Fee rebate arrangements

Unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, the Issuer and/or its affiliates may receive rebates from the management company of a Fund in respect of the units or shares of a Fund or any other assets which the Issuer and/or its affiliates may hold as a hedge to the Securities. Any breach by a counterparty to such fee rebate arrangement may result in losses or increased costs to the Issuer and we may determine that such circumstances have resulted in the occurrence of a Crystallisation Event, and may take one of the actions available to us to deal with such event (see "Determinations in respect of Crystallisation Events may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities" below).

(h) Regulatory and legislative risk

The regulatory environment is evolving and changes therein may adversely affect the ability of a Fund to obtain the leverage it might otherwise obtain or to pursue its investment strategies. In addition, the regulatory or tax environment for derivative and related instruments is evolving and may be subject to modification by government or judicial action which may adversely affect the value of the investments held by a Fund. It is not possible to predict the effect of any future changes to applicable law or regulation or uncertainties such as international political developments, changes in government policies, taxation, restrictions or foreign investment and currency repatriation or fluctuations.

Furthermore, the markets in which a Fund invests may prove to be highly volatile from time to time as a result of, for example, sudden changes in government policies on taxation and currency repatriation or changes in legislation relating to the value of foreign ownership of assets held by a Fund, and this may affect the net asset value at which a Fund may liquidate positions to meet repurchase requests or other funding requirements and, in turn, the value of your Securities. Unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, we may also determine that such circumstances have resulted in the occurrence of a Crystallisation Event (which may include, amongst others, events which affect the business of a Fund (including the conduct of its business), events which affect the key characteristics of a Fund or in respect of Securities, a regulatory event in which the Issuer and/or any of its affiliates have incurred (or there is a reasonable likelihood that the Issuer and/or any of its affiliates will incur) a materially increased cost or will be subject to materially increased regulatory capital requirements in respect of the performance of its obligations under or execution of hedging transactions in respect of the Securities), and may take one of the actions available to us to deal with such event (see "Determinations in respect of Crystallisation Events may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities" below). Any such actions taken may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

Where, due to a change in law event, our performance under the Securities or (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) any hedge relating to the Securities, has become (or there is a substantial likelihood in the immediate future that it will become) illegal or impractical, we may, in our discretion, redeem your Securities.

If we elect to early redeem the Securities, if permitted by applicable law, we shall pay to you an amount equal to the non-scheduled early repayment amount of such Securities. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your initial investment and you may therefore lose some or all of your investment.

Following any such early redemption of the Securities, you may not be able to reinvest the proceeds from such redemption at a comparable return and/or with a comparable interest rate for a similar level of risk. You should consider such reinvestment risk in light of other available investments when you purchase the Securities.

(i) Valuation risk in relation to a Fund

We will rely on the calculation and publication of the net asset value per unit or share of a Fund by such Fund (or another entity on its behalf). Any delay, suspension or inaccuracy in the calculation and publication of the net asset value per unit or share of a Fund may have an impact on the calculation of the return on your Securities. The units and shares of a Fund and/or the investments made by a Fund may be valued only by administrators, custodians or other service provider of such Fund and may not be verified by an independent third party on a regular or timely basis.

There is a risk that (i) our determinations may not reflect the true value of the units or shares of a Fund at a specific time which could result in losses or inaccurate pricing and/or (ii) the net asset value may not be available on a relevant date which could result in the calculation of the return on your Securities being based on our commercially reasonable estimate of the net asset value per unit or share of a Fund on a long-stop date that falls after such relevant date.

(j) Determinations in respect of Crystallisation Events may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities

Unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, upon determining that a Crystallisation Event has occurred in relation to a Fund, we may, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, substitute such Fund for a replacement asset or basket of replacement assets that preserves as closely as is commercially practicable the original economic and investment objective of such Fund and we may elect to amend the terms and conditions of the Securities (such amendment to be determined without your consent) to account for the replacement of such Fund. The replacement of a Fund and any amendments to the terms and conditions of the Securities may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities.

If we determine, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, that the date for such substitution would otherwise fall after the relevant scheduled reference date, or we are not able to determine an appropriate replacement asset or basket of replacement assets for a Fund, then we may, in our discretion, redeem your Securities on the scheduled maturity date by payment of an amount equal to (A) (I) if a protection level is specified in the relevant Issue Terms, the specified denomination or nominal amount, as the case may be, multiplied by the protection level, otherwise, (II) zero plus (B) the value of the derivative component of such Security, plus (C) the sum of the overnight interest amounts calculated in respect of the remaining term of the Securities (without compounding). Such amount may be less than the amount that would have been payable on the maturity date if a Crystallisation Event had not occurred.

If a Crystallisation Event has occurred due to the occurrence of a Non-full Cash Redemption Proceeds Event, then the settlement amount or redemption amount that was originally payable on any scheduled payment date may be significantly reduced and the payment date postponed. If this occurs, a Holder of the Securities may lose some or all of his investment in the Securities.

See "Introduction to the Fund Linked Conditions" of this Base Prospectus for a description of the consequences of Crystallisation Events.

(k) Determinations in respect of an Adjusted NAV Event may have an adverse effect on the value of your Securities

Unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, if we determine that an Adjusted NAV Event has occurred in respect of a Fund, we may take one or more of the actions described below:

- (i) if we determine that both an Adjusted NAV Event and a Crystallisation Event have occurred, then we may make any adjustments to the terms and conditions of the Securities or calculate the relevant amount payable by taking into consideration an adjusted net asset value of such Fund, which may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities;
- (ii) we may determine the amount(s) payable under the Securities by reference to an adjusted net asset value of such Fund, and any such amount(s) shall be paid on the tenth business day following the relevant determination date. If the amount payable under the Securities is calculated based on an adjusted net asset value of a Fund, this may affect the value of and the return on your Securities (which may be as low as zero); and/or
- (iii) if we determine that both an Adjusted NAV Event and an early redemption event have occurred, then we may determine the non-scheduled early repayment amount by taking into consideration the adjusted net asset value of the Fund instead of the net asset value of such Fund, and such non-scheduled early repayment amount shall be paid on the tenth business day following the relevant determination date. If the amount payable under the Securities is calculated based on an adjusted net asset value of a Fund, this may affect the value of and the return on your Securities (which may be as low as zero).

5.12 Risks associated with baskets comprised of various constituents as Underlying Assets

The description of the risk factors in this risk factor 5.12 is relevant to you if your Securities are linked to a basket of Underlying Assets, in addition to the risks in relation to each particular type of Underlying Asset in the basket as described above.

Various unpredictable factors may affect the performance of a basket of Underlying Assets

If your Securities are linked to a basket of Underlying Assets, you are exposed to the performance of such basket and bear the risk that such performance cannot be predicted and is determined by macroeconomic factors relating to the constituents that comprise such basket, all as described above in relation to each particular type of Underlying Asset.

In addition, you should be aware of the following:

- Lesser number of basket constituents: The performance of a basket that includes a fewer number of basket constituents will be more affected by changes in the value of any particular basket constituent than that of a basket that includes a greater number of basket constituents.
- Unequal weighting of basket constituents: The performance of a basket that gives greater weight to some basket constituents will be more affected by changes in the value of any such particular basket constituent than a basket that gives relatively equal weight to each basket constituent.
- High correlation of basket constituents could have a significant effect on amounts payable: Correlation of the basket constituents measures the level of interdependence among the individual basket constituents with respect to their performance. Correlation has a value ranging from "-1" to "+1", whereby a correlation of "+1", i.e. a high positive correlation, means that the performance of the basket constituents always moves in the same direction. A correlation of "-1", i.e. a high negative correlation, means that the performance of the basket constituents is always diametrically opposed. A correlation of "0" indicates that it is not possible to make a statement on the relationship between the basket constituents. If, for example, all of the basket constituents are shares which originate from the same sector and the same country, a high positive correlation may be assumed. Correlation may fall however, for example when the company whose shares are included in the basket are engaged in intense competition for market shares and the same markets. Where the Securities are subject to high correlation, any move in the performance of the basket constituents will exaggerate the performance of the Securities.
- Negative performance of a basket constituent may outweigh a positive performance of one or more basket constituents: Even in the case of a positive performance of one or more basket constituents, the performance of the basket as a whole may be negative if the performance of the other basket constituents is negative to a greater extent.

6. Risks associated with Credit Linked Securities

6.1 You are exposed to the credit risk of the Reference Entity or Reference Entities

Payments on the Credit Linked Securities are subject to the credit risk of the Reference Entity or Reference Entities.

If we, in our capacity as Calculation Agent, determine that a Credit Trigger has occurred, (save in respect of the Credit Linked Securities, where each of "Maturity Capital Protection" and a "Capital Protection Percentage" of 100 per cent. are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms), and:

- (a) the Credit Linked Securities are Single Name Credit Linked Securities, such Credit Linked Securities will be redeemed (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) or settled (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) to the extent of the Triggered Amount of the principal amount (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) or nominal amount (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) of the Credit Linked Securities (1) (where (A) either of "Settlement following Credit Trigger" or "Settlement at Maturity" applies and (B) "Maturity Capital Protection" is not specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms) by payment of the Credit Event Amount (which will be less than the Triggered Amount of the affected Reference Entity and where "Zero Recovery" applies, will be zero), or (2) (where "Maturity Capital Protection" is specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms and the "Capital Protection Percentage" is specified to be less than 100 per cent.) by payment of an amount equal to the higher of the Maturity Capital Protected Amount and the Credit Event Amount (unless "Zero Recovery" applies, in which case the Maturity Capital Protected Amount shall be payable), or
- (b) the Credit Linked Securities are Linear Basket Credit Linked Securities or Untranching Index Credit Linked Securities, such Credit Linked Securities will be redeemed (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) or settled (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) to the extent of the Triggered Amount of the principal amount (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) or nominal amount (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) of the Credit Linked Securities (1) where "Maturity Capital Protection" is not specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms and (A) (where either "Settlement following Credit Trigger" or "Delayed Settlement" apply) by payment of the Credit Event Amount (which will be less than the Triggered Amount of the affected Reference Entity and where "Zero Recovery" applies, will be zero), or (B) (where "Settlement at Maturity" applies) by payment of the Settlement Amount (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or the Final Redemption Amount (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (in either case, if any and as reduced by the Credit Event Loss Amount(s) on the Maturity Date, or (2) (where "Maturity Capital Protection" is specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms and the "Capital Protection Percentage" is specified to be less than 100 per cent.) by payment of an amount equal to the higher of the Maturity Capital Protected Amount and the Credit Event Amount (unless "Zero Recovery" applies, in which case the Maturity Capital Protected Amount shall be payable), or
- (c) the Credit Linked Securities are Tranching Basket Credit Linked Securities or Tranching Index Credit Linked Securities, such Credit Linked Securities will be redeemed (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) or settled (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) by payment of the Settlement Amount (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or Final Redemption Amount (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (in either case, if any, and if the aggregate losses (in respect of all affected Reference Entities which have been the subject of a Credit Trigger) exceed the "attachment point" specified in the relevant Issue Terms, be reduced by the Incurred Loss Amount(s) on the Maturity Date, provided that, if "Maturity Capital Protection" is specified to apply in the relevant Issue Terms, the Settlement Amount (in the case of a Credit Linked Certificate) or Final Redemption Amount (in the case of a Credit Linked Note) shall if the "Capital Protection Percentage" is specified to be less than 100 per cent. in the relevant Issue Terms, such amount shall be subject to a minimum of the Maturity Capital Protected Amount.

You will accordingly suffer a loss of some or all of your investment in any such case.

Where following the occurrence of a Credit Trigger related payments under the Securities are specified to be payable on the Scheduled Maturity Date, this could result in a substantial delay between the date of the occurrence of a Credit Trigger and the date of payment of the related amount. No compensation shall be payable to the holder on account of such delay.

YOU MAY LOSE THE ENTIRE AMOUNT INVESTED IN THE CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES AS A RESULT OF THE OCCURRENCE OF A CREDIT TRIGGER.

In addition, if the Calculation Agent determines that a Credit Trigger has occurred in respect of the Credit Linked Securities (including Credit Linked Securities in respect of which "Maturity Capital Protection" is specified as being applicable in the relevant Issue Terms but excluding Single Name Credit Linked Securities in respect of which "Fixed Return Callable" is specified to apply in the relevant Issue Terms), interest will cease to accrue on the relevant part of the principal amount (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) or the nominal amount (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) of such Credit Linked Securities upon and with effect from and including (i) the first day of the Interest Period in which such Credit Trigger occurs (where "No Interest Accrual on a Credit Trigger" applies), or (ii) the date of such Credit Trigger (where "Interest Accrual on a Credit Trigger" applies) (or, if such Credit Trigger occurs (A) after the final Interest Period, from but excluding the last day of the final Interest Period, or (B) prior to the first Interest Period, from and including the first day of the first Interest Period). You will accordingly suffer a loss of interest in such case.

If the Credit Linked Securities are Single Name Credit Linked Securities in respect of which "Fixed Return Callable" is specified to apply in the relevant Issue Terms no interest will be payable in respect of such Securities and if a Credit Trigger occurs prior to (i) the Issuer exercising its Call Option and redemption or settlement of the Securities in accordance with the terms of the call option or (ii) redemption or settlement of the Securities on maturity, you will receive no return on the Securities and could lose some or all of your investment.

6.2 Risks associated with Tranched Index Credit Linked Securities and Tranched Basket Credit Linked Securities

Tranched Index Credit Linked Securities and Tranched Basket Credit Linked Securities create leveraged exposure to the credit risk of the Reference Entities as the implicit portfolio size or size of the aggregate notional amount of the reference portfolio is significantly larger than the aggregate nominal amount of the Credit Linked Securities. Investors can lose a significant part or all of their investment even if a Credit Trigger occurs in respect of only one or a few of the Reference Entities comprising the reference portfolio. The value of the Tranched Index Credit Linked Securities or Tranched Basket Credit Linked Securities may be more volatile and credit losses experienced by a holder in respect of the Tranched Index Credit Linked Securities or Tranched Basket Credit Linked Securities may be greater than would be the case in the absence of such leverage.

The value of the Tranched Index Credit Linked Securities or Tranched Basket Credit Linked Securities may also be adversely affected by changes in the relative value of different tranches of credit risk on the reference portfolio, which will vary based on, inter alia, the views and assumptions of market participants and the supply of and demand for credit protection in relation to each such tranche.

6.3 There are increased risks associated with Credit Linked Securities where "Zero Recovery" is applicable

In respect of any Credit Linked Securities where "Zero Recovery" is applicable and "Maturity Capital Protection" is not specified to be applicable, the Credit Event Amount will be zero, and the principal (in respect of a Credit Linked Note) or the nominal (in respect of a Credit Linked Certificate) will, in each case, be reduced by the entire Notional Amount of the affected Reference Entity (being the Credit Event Loss Amount) without any corresponding payment to holders. Investors will automatically lose an amount in principal amount (in respect of a Credit Linked Note) or an amount in nominal amount (in respect of a Credit Linked Certificate), in each case, equal to such Notional Amount. In the case of Credit Linked Securities linked to a single Reference Entity, investors will automatically lose the entire principal amount (in respect of a Credit Linked Note) or the entire nominal amount (in respect of a Credit Linked Certificate).

Where "Zero Recovery" is applicable, following the occurrence of a Credit Trigger, interest will cease accrue on the Triggered Amount or in respect of Tranching Index Credit Linked Securities or Tranching Basket Credit Linked Securities the Incurred Loss Amount and you will not thereafter receive any payments of interest on the principal amount (in respect of a Credit Linked Note) or on the nominal amount (in respect of a Credit Linked Certificate), in each case equal to the Triggered Amount or the Incurred Loss Amount (as applicable). Where the Credit Linked Securities are linked to single reference entity no further interest will be payable following the occurrence of a Credit Trigger.

Investors should note that, in such circumstances, the recovery on any investments in bonds or other obligations of the affected Reference Entity will be higher (and may be significantly higher) than the zero recovery value ascribed to such Reference Entity under the Credit Linked Securities.

Furthermore, the market value of Credit Linked Securities where "Zero Recovery" is applicable may not reflect the market value of a credit default swap on the Reference Entity or any other products linked to or issued by the Reference Entity which may be significantly higher.

Consequently, the value of and return on such Credit Linked Securities may be negatively impacted.

6.4 There may be increased risks associated with Credit Linked Securities linked to multiple Reference Entities, and risks may be correlated

If the Credit Linked Securities (including Linear Basket Credit Linked Securities, Tranching Basket Credit Linked Securities, Tranching Index Credit Linked Securities and Untranching Index Credit Linked Securities) are linked to multiple Reference Entities, then the probability that a Credit Trigger may occur in relation to any particular Reference Entity may be increased. The risk of default of Reference Entities may be correlated, in that adverse economic factors which apply to one Reference Entity may apply to other Reference Entities, or the default or decline in creditworthiness of a particular Reference Entity may itself adversely affect other Reference Entities. Such risks may be particularly significant where the Reference Entities are concentrated in a particular industry sector or geographical region. In such circumstances, the credit risk to investors of Credit Linked Securities linked to multiple Reference Entities may be increased due to the concentration of Reference Entities as described above and, in turn, the value of and return on such Credit Linked Securities linked to multiple Reference Entities may be lower than that of Credit Linked Securities linked to a single Reference Entity.

Note that the credit risk of a Reference Entity or Reference Entities may additionally be correlated with the credit risk of the relevant Issuer or relevant Guarantor (if applicable) which may further affect the value of and return on the related Credit Linked Securities. See also "Credit Risks – applicable to all Securities" above.

6.5 A Credit Trigger may occur as a result of a Credit Event prior to issuance of the Credit Linked Securities

You are at risk of the occurrence of a Credit Trigger as a result of a Credit Event occurring at any time after the Trade Date of the Reference CDS, including prior to the Issue Date. Neither the Issuer, the Guarantor (if applicable), the Calculation Agent nor any respective affiliate has any responsibility to avoid or mitigate the effects of a Credit Event that has occurred prior to the Issue Date, and no such entity has any obligation to disclose to you or to take into consideration any information, fact or matter including in relation to such Credit Event.

Consequently, you may suffer a loss of some or all of your investment before the Credit Linked Securities are issued and such Credit Linked Securities may not generate the intended results on your investment portfolio as originally anticipated.

6.6 Reference Obligation is "Subordinated" or "Senior Non-Preferred".

Holders should note that there may be an increased risk of loss associated with the Credit Linked Securities where the Reference Obligation is a "subordinated" or "senior non-preferred" obligation of the relevant Reference Entity.

6.7 The occurrence of a Credit Trigger is not predictable

The occurrence of Credit Triggers is unpredictable, and there can be no assurance that a Credit Trigger will not occur. The past or current performance of Reference Entities is not necessarily indicative of future performance. There is a risk that Credit Triggers could be unanticipated.

6.8 An investment in the Credit Linked Securities is not equivalent to an investment in the debt obligations of a Reference Entity

A purchase of Credit Linked Securities does not constitute a purchase of the Reference Obligations or any other debt obligations of the Reference Entity, or of any interest in any such obligations. As an investor in the Credit Linked Securities, you will have rights solely against us as Issuer of the Credit Linked Securities and will not have any rights against any Reference Entity. In particular, you will not have:

- the right to vote or to give or withhold any consent in relation to any Reference Obligation or any other obligation of any Reference Entity,
- the right to any coupons, fees or other distributions which may be paid by any Reference Entity to holders of a Reference Obligation or any of the other debt obligations of any Reference Entity, or
- the right to receive any information from any Reference Entity.

Accordingly, an investment in the Credit Linked Securities is not equivalent to an investment in any Reference Obligation or any other debt obligation of a Reference Entity and investors may therefore benefit from fewer rights and lower returns than if they invested directly in such Reference Obligation or such other debt obligation of a Reference Entity.

6.9 The market value of the Credit Linked Securities may be affected by a wide variety of factors

A number of factors, many of which are beyond our control, will influence the value of the Credit Linked Securities. In addition to those factors which would affect the value of our debt generally, factors specific to the Credit Linked Securities may include:

- the financial condition and perceived creditworthiness of each Reference Entity,
- the availability and payment profile of debt obligations of the Reference Entity,
- liquidity and other technical factors affecting pricing in the credit default swap market,
- the views of analysts or rating agencies,
- economic, financial, political, regulatory or judicial events that affect a Reference Entity or the markets for the debt securities of each Reference Entity; and
- the prevailing cost to us of funding our business through debt issuance.

EVEN WHERE A CREDIT TRIGGER DOES NOT OCCUR, THE MARKET VALUE OF THE CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES MAY BE ADVERSELY AFFECTED WHEN THE PROBABILITY OR PERCEIVED PROBABILITY OF A CREDIT TRIGGER OCCURRING IN RESPECT OF ANY REFERENCE ENTITY INCREASES.

6.10 The Credit Linked Securities may be illiquid

Due to the risks associated with the Credit Linked Securities, the Credit Linked Securities may be or become particularly illiquid. We are not obliged to make a market in the Credit Linked Securities. Accordingly, as a holder of Credit Linked Securities you will bear the risk that you are unable to liquidate the Credit Linked Securities or to do so at a price which reflects the prevailing price for the credit risk of the Reference Entity.

6.11 Redemption of the Credit Linked Securities may be delayed beyond the Scheduled Maturity Date

The redemption of the Credit Linked Securities (save Credit Linked Securities in respect of which "Maturity Capital Protection" and a "Capital Protection Percentage" of 100 per cent. are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms) may be delayed beyond the Scheduled Maturity Date, for example where:

- a Credit Event Loss Amount has not been determined or the last date for payment of any Credit Event Amount has not occurred;
- a resolution of an applicable Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee ("CDDC") is pending; or
- certain extension provisions are applicable under the terms of the Reference CDS (in which case such delay may be material and you will not be compensated for such delay).

Holders are therefore subject to the risk that the settlement or redemption of the Credit Linked Securities may be delayed beyond the Scheduled Maturity Date and in some cases may be delayed for a substantial period of time.

6.12 Unwind Costs may result in losses for holders of Credit Linked Securities

If we are required to redeem the Credit Linked Securities in circumstances where we determine in our capacity as Calculation Agent under the Credit Linked Securities that settlement could still occur under a Reference CDS (see the paragraph headed "Payments on the Credit Linked Securities will be determined by reference to a hypothetical credit default swap referencing the Reference Entity or Reference Entities" in the section of the Base Prospectus entitled "Additional Considerations relating to Investments in Credit Linked Securities", risk factor 6.8 (An investment in the Credit Linked Securities is not equivalent to entry into a Reference CDS) and risk factor 6.18 (The credit risk of the Credit Linked Securities may be materially affected where successor Reference Entities are determined under a Reference CDS) below) as a result of a Credit Event, the amount payable to you on redemption or settlement of the Credit Linked Securities will be reduced by the costs, if any, which we determine that we would incur in terminating a transaction corresponding to the Reference CDS. Such costs may reflect the probability that a Credit Event will occur and/or the likely market value of the direct or indirect obligations of the relevant Reference Entity following such an event. Such costs may also reflect the spread charged by market counterparties in relation to any such unwind. Any such unwind costs will reduce the amount payable to you in such circumstances.

6.13 Timing of Final Maturity Date may affect amount payable to you on redemption

If, as at the Final Maturity Date, the Credit Linked Securities (save in respect of Credit Linked Securities where "Maturity Capital Protection" and a "Capital Protection Percentage" of 100 per cent. are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms) have not yet been redeemed or settled (as applicable) in full and a resolution of the CDDC as to the occurrence of a Credit Event or otherwise is still pending, the Credit Linked Securities will be redeemed or settled (as applicable) on the Final Maturity Date at an amount equal to par less any costs which would be incurred by us in unwinding the Reference CDS (as described in risk factor 6.12 (Unwind Costs may result in losses for holders of Credit Linked Securities) above). In such a case it is possible that, after the Credit Linked Securities have been redeemed or settled (as applicable) on the Final Maturity Date, the CDDC may determine that no Credit Event would have occurred for the purposes of the Reference CDS. In such a case, the timing of the Final Maturity Date is likely to affect the calculation of the Reference CDS Unwind Costs and the amount payable to you on redemption or settlement, as it may be that, had the Final Maturity Date occurred after such a CDDC determination, the Reference CDS Unwind Costs would be a lower amount (or zero if the Reference CDS would have terminated) as the likelihood of a Credit Event occurring would not affect the calculation of the Reference CDS Unwind Costs in such case.

If as at the Final Maturity Date, one or more Credit Triggers has occurred but the Credit Linked Securities (save in respect of Credit Linked Securities where each of "Maturity Capital Protection" and a "Capital Protection Percentage" of 100 per cent. are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms) have not been redeemed or settled (as applicable) in full as the Auction process has been delayed until after the Final Maturity Date, the Credit Linked Securities will be redeemed or settled (as applicable) on the Final Maturity Date at an amount equal to par less the costs, if any, which we determine that we would incur in terminating a transaction corresponding to the Reference CDS (as described in risk factor 6.12 (Unwind Costs may result in losses for holders of Credit Linked Securities) above), provided that, in respect of Credit Linked Securities where each of "Maturity Capital Protection" and a "Capital Protection Percentage" of less than 100 per cent. are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, such amount is subject to a minimum amount. In such a case it is possible that the amount payable to you on the Final Maturity Date is lower than the Credit Event Amount which would have been payable to you if determined by reference to the Auction which occurs after the Final Maturity Date.

6.14 Actions of Reference Entities

We will have no ability to control or predict any Reference Entity's actions. We will also have no ability to control the public disclosure of corporate actions or any other events or circumstances affecting any Reference Entity. Actions of Reference Entities may be influenced by our trading or other activities or by advice or analysis given by us in other capacities. Any Reference Entity may take actions that will adversely affect the value of the Credit Linked Securities, including, for example, the incurrence of additional indebtedness, which may increase the possibility that a Credit Event occurs which, in turn, may increase the risk that holders may lose some or all of their investment. Holders are therefore subject to the risk that the actions of a Reference Entity could adversely affect the value of the Credit Linked Securities.

6.15 Public information relating to a Reference Entity may be incomplete, inaccurate or misleading

Publicly available information in relation to a Reference Entity may be incomplete, inaccurate or misleading. We do not have any obligation to verify the accuracy of any such information. We do not make any representation that any such information is complete or accurate or not misleading.

Furthermore, we give no assurance that all events occurring prior to the date of the Issue Terms (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of any publicly available documents) that would affect the creditworthiness of a Reference Entity have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning a Reference Entity could affect its creditworthiness and therefore the market value of the Credit Linked Securities, the likelihood of a Credit Trigger occurring in relation to the relevant Reference Entity and the resulting Credit Event Amount.

6.16 Credit Linked Securities linked to emerging markets entities may be particularly risky

If the Credit Linked Securities are linked to a sovereign or corporate Reference Entity which is or is domiciled in or has significant business exposure to an emerging market jurisdiction, you should note in particular that emerging market economies may be particularly volatile, including as a result of reliance on a limited number of commodity markets, exposure to levels of consumer or industrial demand in developed or other emerging market economies, capital inflows and outflows, currency exchange rates, corruption, political risk or civil unrest. Publicly available information, including official statistics, may be incorrect, incomplete or misleading, this could have an impact on investors given that such information may be used to determine the existence, or non-existence of a Credit Trigger in respect of that Reference Entity. Accordingly the risk of the occurrence of a Credit Trigger may be particularly high in relation to such Reference Entities which, in turn, may adversely affect the value of and return on the Credit Linked Securities.

6.17 An investment in the Credit Linked Securities is not equivalent to entry into a Reference CDS

The terms of the Reference CDS are used solely for the purposes of determining the amounts payable under the Credit Linked Securities, the timing of such payments and other matters specified in the terms of the Credit Linked Securities. As an investor in the Credit Linked Securities, you do not acquire any interest in, or rights under an actual credit default swap, either in relation to the Credit Linked Securities or otherwise. Furthermore, as an investor in Credit Linked Securities you may not benefit from rights that would be available to a seller of credit risk protection under a Reference CDS. In particular:

- you will not have the right available to a seller of credit risk protection under a Reference CDS to elect to trigger settlement of the Credit Linked Securities following the occurrence of an M(M)R Restructuring Credit Event; such right will be exercisable solely by the Calculation Agent in our interests,
- following such a Credit Event, where an Auction is held in relation to credit default swaps referencing the Reference Entity but, as a result of limitations of the maturity of debt obligations that are the subject of such Auction, such Auction would not automatically form the basis for settlement of the Reference CDS, you will not have the right available to a seller of credit protection under a Reference CDS to elect that such Auction be taken into account for such purposes.

Therefore, your investment in Credit Linked Securities may not satisfy the objectives of your investment portfolio and such investment may not produce the results or bestow upon you the rights you had anticipated.

6.18 The credit risk of the Credit Linked Securities may be materially affected where successor Reference Entities are determined under a Reference CDS

Following a succession or series of successions (forming part of a pre-determined plan), in respect of relevant obligations of that Reference Entity, or, in the case of a sovereign Reference Entity, events such as annexation, unification, secession, partition, dissolution, consolidation, reconstitution or other similar event, in each case whether by operation of law or pursuant to any agreement, the DC Secretary may publicly announce that a CDDC has resolved, or it may otherwise be determined in accordance with the Reference CDS, that a different entity or entities will be treated as the successor(s) to the original entity. If we determine that such CDDC resolution or such other determination would apply for the purposes of the Reference CDS, then the identity of the Reference Entity will be amended accordingly, and you will be exposed to the credit risk of such successor Reference Entity in place of the original Reference Entity.

In any case, the effect of any such amendment of the identity of the Reference Entity may materially increase the risk associated with an investment in the Credit Linked Securities, for example where the successor Reference Entity is more indebted than the original Reference Entity or is exposed to different business risks. This may adversely affect the value of and return on such Credit Linked Securities.

If a Reference Entity has more than one successor entity, then you will be exposed to the creditworthiness of multiple Reference Entities instead of or in addition to the original Reference Entity. The effect may be to materially increase the likelihood of a loss of investment and interest under the Credit Linked Securities as a result of a Credit Trigger occurring with respect to one of such successor Reference Entities.

6.19 Risks relating to Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees (CDDCs) and related Calculation Agent determinations

CDDCs may make determinations as to the occurrence or non-occurrence of certain events in respect of credit default swap transactions. Such determinations include the occurrence or non-occurrence of Credit Events, the determination as to whether one or more entities should be treated as successors to a Reference Entity, whether one or more Auctions should take place in relation to a Reference Entity and the range of direct or indirect obligations of such Reference Entity that should be taken into account in any such Auction. A CDDC may also resolve any other matter of contractual interpretation that is relevant to the credit derivatives market generally.

In our capacity as Calculation Agent for the Credit Linked Securities we will make certain determinations based upon the terms of the Reference CDS subject to the Credit Linked Conditions. In particular, we will make determinations as to whether resolutions of a relevant CDDC in relation to a Reference Entity would apply for the purposes of a Reference CDS, and whether an Auction in relation to a Reference Entity would be taken into account for the purposes of settlement of a Reference CDS and hence of the Credit Linked Securities. We will also be responsible for determining in such capacity how the terms of a Reference CDS would operate in circumstances where there is no relevant CDDC resolution and/or no relevant Auction. Such determinations will be binding on you in the absence of manifest error and could have the effect of reducing or delaying payments under the Credit Linked Securities.

ADDITIONALLY, THE CALCULATION AGENT OR ANY OF ITS AFFILIATES MAY ACT AS A MEMBER OF A CDDC. IN MAKING DETERMINATIONS FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES IN OUR CAPACITY AS CALCULATION AGENT, WE DO NOT OWE ANY DUTY TO YOU. WE WILL ACT IN OUR OWN INTERESTS AND NOT IN YOUR INTERESTS IN SUCH CONNECTION WHICH MAY HAVE A NEGATIVE IMPACT ON YOUR CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES. See also risk factor 8.2 (Goldman Sachs' trading and investment activities for its own account or for its clients could negatively impact investors in the Securities).

6.20 Suspension of obligations pending a resolution of a CDDC may result in loss

If, under the terms of a Reference CDS the obligations of the parties to that transaction would be suspended pending a resolution of a CDDC, all of our obligations attributable to the Notional Amount (or, if applicable, a lower amount) of the relevant Reference Entity under the Credit Linked Securities (including any obligation to deliver notices, pay interest (if payable under the Credit Linked Securities), principal or settlement amounts, or to make any delivery) will be and remain suspended until the Business Day following the day the DC Secretary publicly announces that the relevant CDDC has resolved the matter or determined not to resolve the matter or, if earlier, the Final Maturity Date (or the Scheduled Maturity Date where each of "Maturity Capital Protection" and a "Capital Protection Percentage" of 100 per cent. are specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms). This could result in a significant delay of amounts payable to you (if any) in respect of the Credit Linked Securities pending a resolution of a CDDC which, in turn, may affect your ability to reinvest the proceeds of your investment. You will not be compensated for any such delay in payment.

6.21 The value of obligations of a Reference Entity following a Credit Event may be volatile

It is likely that the market value of the debt obligations of a Reference Entity that has experienced a Credit Event will be highly volatile in the period following such Credit Event and such heightened volatility can cause rapid changes in the price at which the debt obligations are trading. Any market value calculation with respect to such obligations, whether by means of an Auction or otherwise during such volatile period may not therefore reflect the recovery amount that could be achieved on such debt obligations if you as a holder of Credit Linked Securities were entitled to control the liquidation of such obligations.

6.22 The use of cash settlement may result in a lower payment on the Credit Linked Securities

Payments on the Credit Linked Securities following the occurrence of a Credit Trigger will be in cash and will reflect the value of relevant obligations of the Reference Entity as at a given date. Such payments may be less than the recovery which would ultimately be realised by a holder of debt obligations of the affected Reference Entity, whether by means of enforcement of rights following a payment default or receipt of distributions following an insolvency or otherwise. This means that your investment in Credit Linked Securities may not provide results with the same effect as those that may be achieved by a holder of debt obligations of the affected Reference Entity.

6.23 Risks relating to settlement by reference to an Auction

Where, following the occurrence of a Credit Trigger, an Auction is held in relation to a Reference Entity and we determine in our capacity as Calculation Agent for the purposes of the Credit Linked Securities that such Auction would apply for the purposes of settlement of a Reference CDS, the Credit Event Loss Amount will be determined according to a bidding process to establish the value of certain eligible direct or indirect obligations of the Reference Entity or certain eligible assets. We may act as a participating bidder in any such auction and, in such capacity, may take certain actions which may influence the Auction Final Price including (without limitation) submitting bids, offers and physical settlement requests with respect to the obligations of the Reference Entity.

The Auction Final Price determined pursuant to an auction may be less than the market value that would otherwise have been determined in respect of the specified Reference Entity or its obligations. In particular, the Auction process may be affected by technical factors or operational errors which would not otherwise apply or may be the subject of actual or attempted manipulation. We will have no responsibility to dispute any determination of an Auction Final Price or to verify that any Auction has been conducted in accordance with its rules.

If we participate in an Auction, then we will do so without regard to your interests, and such participation may have a material adverse effect on the outcome of the relevant Auction and/or on the Credit Linked Securities.

6.24 Risks relating to settlement otherwise than by reference to an Auction

If we in our capacity as Calculation Agent for the purposes of the Credit Linked Securities determine that there is or will be no relevant Auction or, if applicable, the Credit Event Loss Amount will not be determined by an Auction for any reason, we will determine the Credit Event Loss Amount by reference to quotations sought from third party dealers in relation to obligations of the relevant Reference Entity or eligible assets. Such quotations may not be available, or the level of such quotations may be substantially reduced as a result of illiquidity in the relevant markets or as a result of factors other than the credit risk of the relevant Reference Entity, such as liquidity constraints affecting market dealers or heightened volatility which can cause rapid changes in the price. Such quotations will also be subject to prevailing bid-offer spreads (being the difference between the prices quoted for an immediate sale (offer) and an immediate purchase (bid) of such obligations or assets, which may be particularly significant in distressed markets). Accordingly, any quotations so obtained may be significantly lower than the value of the relevant obligation or asset which would be determined by reference to the present net value of related cashflows.

If the Calculation Agent is unable to obtain two or more quotations for a particular obligation or asset on the same Business Day or within five Business Days (or, if applicable, any lesser period of time as specified in the Credit Linked Conditions), then the Final Price will be determined by the Calculation Agent in its commercially reasonable discretion.

The manner in which the Credit Event Loss Amount or the Final Price is determined (as described above) may mean that the amount payable to you (if any) is significantly lower than if such Credit Event Loss Amount or the Final Price had been determined based on alternative and/or sufficient quotations.

6.25 Risks relating to asset package delivery

The 2014 Definitions introduced the concept of asset package delivery. In certain circumstances where (a) "Financial Reference Entity Terms" and "Governmental Intervention" applies in respect of a Reference Entity and (i) there is a Governmental Intervention Credit Event; or (ii) a Restructuring Credit Event in respect of the Reference Obligation where such Restructuring does not constitute a Governmental Intervention or (b) a Restructuring Credit Event in respect of a Sovereign, then a related asset package resulting from a prior deliverable obligation (where "Financial Reference Entity Terms" apply) or package observable bond (where the Reference Entity is a sovereign) may also be deliverable. The asset package would be treated as having the same outstanding principal as the corresponding prior deliverable obligation or package observable bond.

If the resulting asset package is deemed to be zero where there are no resulting assets, the related credit loss will be 100 per cent. notwithstanding the recovery value on any other obligations of the Reference Entity which may adversely affect the value of the associated Credit Linked Securities.

The risk factor 6.23 (Risks relating to settlement by reference to an Auction) and risk factor 6.24 (Risks relating to settlement otherwise than by reference to an Auction) above would apply to any asset or asset package.

If an asset in the asset package is a non-transferable instrument or non-financial instrument, the value of such asset will be the market value determined by reference to a specialist valuation or in accordance with methodology determined by the CDDC. Risk factor 6.19 (Risks relating to Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees (CDDCs) and related Calculation Agent determinations) above would apply to valuation in accordance with CDDC methodology.

As such, where asset package delivery is applied in respect of the Credit Linked Securities, the amount payable to investors (if any) may be lower than if any amount payable were determined in accordance with another settlement method.

6.26 Payments following a Credit Trigger will, where applicable, be determined by reference to a hypothetical security

In the case of Credit Linked Securities linked to a single Reference Entity, Linear Basket Credit Linked Securities or Untranching Index Credit Linked Securities where "Credit Event Amount (1)" or "Credit Event Amount (2)" are specified to apply, payments to holders of the Credit Linked Securities following a Credit Trigger will be determined by reference to the fair market value of a hypothetical security, with the characteristics set out in the Credit Linked Conditions as supplemented by the terms of the relevant Issue Terms (investors should be mindful of the characteristics of the hypothetical security and that these could impact the amount payable to them), which will, in each case, if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Adjusted for Issuer Expenses and Costs to be applicable", reflect the cost or gain to us of replacing the funding (or the relevant part of the funding) represented by the Credit Linked Securities, including any costs of unwinding underlying and/or related hedging and funding arrangements. Such adjustment may be material. If our cost of funding has increased, the value of such hypothetical security, and hence the related payment to holders of the Credit Linked Securities, will be lower.

As a result of the use of the concept of a hypothetical security in the determination of the Credit Event Amount (save where "Credit Event Amount (3)" is specified to apply in the relevant Issue Terms), holders of the Credit Linked Securities will be exposed to the credit risk of The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. following the occurrence of a Credit Trigger, even where we are able to, and do, continue to make all payments due in respect of the Credit Linked Securities.

Prospective investors in the Credit Linked Securities should be aware that a Credit Trigger may be more likely to occur in circumstances where our cost of funding increases (for example, where the credit risks associated with financial institutions generally are increased, or where funding markets in the currency of the Credit Linked Securities are illiquid) and hence a decrease in the value of the hypothetical security determined above or may itself result in market disruption leading to an increase in our cost of funding.

Prospective investors in the Credit Linked Securities should therefore consider the information which is set out in the Base Prospectus as to the risks associated with an investment in the debt obligations issued by The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. and may wish to refer to public sources of information as to the credit spreads of such entity. However, prospective investors should note that the methodology for valuing the hypothetical security may not reflect credit spreads of The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. which are available from public sources of information.

Prospective investors should also be aware that the timing of a Credit Trigger may affect the value of the hypothetical security. The value of the hypothetical security will be calculated taking into account the period from the early exercise date or early redemption date (as applicable) to the Scheduled Maturity Date of the Credit Linked Securities. Therefore, the earlier a Credit Trigger occurs, the lower the value of the hypothetical security is likely to be.

Such circumstances may affect the value of and return on your Credit Linked Securities.

6.27 Delay or Failure by the Principal Programme Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or the Fiscal Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (or, in the case of Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities, the French Paying Agent), relevant clearing system or any other intermediary in the chain of ownership to deliver notices may result in loss

Under the Credit Linked Conditions we in our capacities as Issuer and Calculation Agent are required to deliver certain notices to the Principal Programme Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or the Fiscal Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (or, in the case of Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities, the French Paying Agent).

The Principal Programme Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or the Fiscal Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (or, in the case of Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities, the French Paying Agent) will deliver all notices delivered to it to the relevant clearing system. The relevant clearing system, in accordance with its standard processes and procedures, will send a notification to their respective participants for which it holds the Credit Linked Securities informing them that it has received a notice in connection with the Credit Linked Securities and that the actual notice can be viewed on the website of (i) Euroclear France in respect of Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities, or (ii) Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as the case may be, in respect of any Credit Linked Securities issued (other than Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities). The Issuer expects such participants will notify either the holder or the next intermediary in the chain of ownership (and the final intermediary will notify the holder) that a notice, with respect to the Credit Linked Securities, has been delivered by the Principal Programme Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or the Fiscal Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (or, in the case of Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities, the French Paying Agent) to the relevant clearing systems and the websites where the actual notice can be viewed. There may be more than one intermediary in the chain of ownership. The Issuer does not monitor, has no control over and is not responsible for the systems, policies, processes or procedures of the Principal Programme Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Certificates) or the Fiscal Agent (in the case of Credit Linked Notes) (or, in the case of Credit Linked Securities that are French Law Securities, the French Paying Agent), any relevant clearing system or any participant or intermediary.

NOTICES IN RESPECT OF THE CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES ARE IMPORTANT AS THEY MAY AFFECT THE AMOUNT OF AND DATE OF ANY PAYMENTS (INCLUDING INTEREST PAYMENTS). ANY DELAY OR FAILURE BY THE PRINCIPAL PROGRAMME AGENT (IN THE CASE OF CREDIT LINKED CERTIFICATES) OR THE FISCAL AGENT (IN THE CASE OF CREDIT LINKED NOTES) (OR, IN THE CASE OF CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES THAT ARE FRENCH LAW SECURITIES, THE FRENCH PAYING AGENT), ANY RELEVANT CLEARING SYSTEM OR ANY PARTICIPANT OR INTERMEDIARY TO DELIVER OR COMMUNICATE A DELIVERY OF A NOTICE TO THE NEXT SUCCEEDING INTERMEDIARY MAY RESULT IN YOU NOT RECEIVING A NOTICE IN A TIMELY MANNER OR AT ALL. ANY SUCH FAILURE OR DELAY MAY MATERIALLY PREJUDICE THE RIGHTS OF HOLDERS OF THE CREDIT LINKED SECURITIES.

6.28 Our trading activities may adversely affect the market value of the Credit Linked Securities

We expect to engage in trading activities related to the obligations of Reference Entities for our own account or for the account of other clients. These trading activities may present a conflict between your interests and our interests. For example, we may, at present or in the future, engage in making loans to or equity investments in any Reference Entity or providing advisory services to any Reference Entity. These services could include merger and acquisition advisory services.

In addition, in connection with the offering of any Credit Linked Securities, we may enter into one or more hedging transactions or undertake market-making activities in relation to obligations of or transactions referencing Reference Entities. Such hedging or market-making activities may affect the market price, liquidity or value of the obligations of or transactions in relation to Reference Entities and could adversely affect the market value of the Credit Linked Securities or the likelihood, or the market's perception of the likelihood that a Credit Trigger may occur.

Moreover, we may have published and in the future may publish research reports with respect to any Reference Entity. We may express views in such research which are not favourable to your interests as a holder of Credit Linked Securities and which may adversely affect the market value of the Credit Linked Securities or the likelihood that a Credit Trigger may occur.

7. Risks associated with PSL Notes

7.1 There are risks associated with the Preference Shares

(a) Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Preference Share(s), the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount

If an insolvency, merger event, tender offer, nationalisation or preference share adjustment or termination event (all as defined in the terms and conditions of the Securities) occurs in relation to the Preference Share(s) or the issuer of the Preference Share(s) (as applicable), this will be an 'Extraordinary Event' leading to the adjustment by us (as Calculation Agent) of the terms and conditions of the Securities (without the consent of holders) or the early redemption of the Securities, and for an amount which may be less than you paid for the Securities.

In the event of early redemption we will pay the non-scheduled early repayment amount in respect of the Securities, which will be calculated using the same formula as the Final Redemption Amount (being, calculation amount \times Preference Share Value_{Final}/Preference Share Value_{Initial}) save that for the purposes of "Performance Share Value_{Final}" the Preference Shares will be valued on or just prior to the date set for redemption rather than the Final Valuation Date. The non-scheduled early repayment amount may be less than your initial investment and you may therefore lose some or all of your investment. Following any such early redemption of the Securities, you may not be able to reinvest the proceeds from an investment at a comparable return and/or with a comparable interest rate for a similar level of risk. You should consider such reinvestment risk in light of other available investments when you purchase the Securities.

(b) There are risks in relation to each type of 'Preference Share Underlying'

Preference Shares may be linked to different types of underlying assets (referred to as the 'Preference Share Underlying'), including, but not limited to, indices and shares. Risks in relation to each type of Underlying Asset are described above.

7.2 There are risks associated with Cayman Islands law as the governing law of the PSL Notes

PSL Notes are governed by the laws of the Cayman Islands. However, the courts of England will also have non-exclusive jurisdiction to settle any disputes, controversy, proceedings or claim of whatever nature that may arise out of or in connection with PSL Notes. In considering the substance of any such dispute, the courts of England would still apply the laws of the Cayman Islands, and would not generally apply (for example) English statutes, which do not form part of Cayman Islands law.

The courts in the Cayman Islands have a shorter history and deal with a smaller volume of disputes than do the English courts. As a result, case law in the Cayman Islands is generally considered to be less well developed than English case law. Therefore, there may be less certainty as to the legal position in relation to any particular issue arising under Securities governed by Cayman Islands law than if the Securities were governed by English law. It is possible that there could be a different result than under English law, which result could have a negative impact on your Securities. However, as Cayman Islands common law has developed from English common law, English case law is generally viewed by the Cayman Islands courts as being highly persuasive.

7.3 The Preference Share Issuer – Goldman Sachs (Cayman) Limited – is subject to credit and fraud risk

The value of the PSL Notes depends on the value of the relevant Preference Shares of Goldman Sachs (Cayman) Limited ("GSCL"), which will depend in part on the creditworthiness of GSCL. GSCL is not an operating company. Its sole business activity is the issue of preference shares. GSCL does not have any trading assets and does not generate any significant net income. As its funds are limited, any misappropriation of funds or other fraudulent action by GSCL or a person acting on its behalf would have a significant effect on the value of the Preference Shares and will affect the value of the PSL Notes.

7.4 Risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of PSL Notes

In addition to the conflicts of interest described in risk factor 8 (Risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of Securities and discretionary powers of the Issuer and the Calculation Agent including in relation to our hedging arrangements) below, the roles of Goldman Sachs could create additional conflicts of interest between you and us in relation to PSL Notes.

The Preference Share Issuer and a counterparty, which is expected to be an affiliate of the Issuer and the relevant Guarantor, will enter into a swap arrangement in order to fund the payout on the Preference Shares. The counterparty will also act as the calculation agent under the swap arrangement. In such capacity it may make certain determinations in relation to the amount payable under the swap, which could, in turn, affect the value of and return on the PSL Notes.

Also, we will act as calculation agent in relation to both the Preference Shares and the PSL Notes. These roles could create conflicts of interest between us and you, including with respect to the exercise of the discretionary powers of the calculation agent under Preference Shares and the PSL Notes. You should be aware that any discretionary determination made by us as calculation agent under the Preference Shares or the PSL Notes could have a negative impact on the value of and return on your Securities.

7.5 Tax risk

The basis and rate of taxation in respect of the PSL Notes and reliefs depend on your own individual circumstances and could change at any time. This could have a negative impact on the return of the PSL Notes. You should seek your own independent tax advice as to the possible tax treatment of redemption payments (such term including early or final redemption) received on PSL Notes prior to investing.

In the event that your PSL Notes pay a coupon otherwise than by way of a premium payable on redemption (such term including early or final redemption), you should be aware that such coupon will likely be subject to income tax.

8. Risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of Securities and discretionary powers of the Issuer and the Calculation Agent including in relation to our hedging arrangements

The various roles and trading activities of Goldman Sachs could create conflicts of interest between you and us. The below risks highlight such risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of securities:

8.1 Anticipated hedging activities by Goldman Sachs or our distributors may negatively impact investors in the Securities and cause our interests and those of our clients and counterparties to be contrary to those of investors in the Securities

In anticipation of the sale of the Securities, we and/or our affiliates expect to hedge our obligations under the Securities by purchasing futures and/or other instruments linked to the Underlying Asset(s) or components thereof, or, if applicable, the foreign currencies in which Underlying Asset(s) are denominated, as applicable. We also expect to adjust the hedge by, among other things, purchasing or selling any of the foregoing, and perhaps other instruments linked to the Underlying Asset(s) or any components thereof (the "Underlying Components"), at any time and from time to time, and to unwind the hedge by selling any of the foregoing on or before the final valuation date for your Securities. Alternatively, we may hedge all or part of our obligations under the Securities with unaffiliated distributors of the Securities which we expect will undertake similar market activity. We may also enter into, adjust and unwind hedging transactions relating to other underlier-linked securities whose returns are linked to changes in the level of the Underlying Asset(s) or one or more of the Underlying Components, as applicable.

In addition to entering into such transactions itself, or distributors entering into such transactions, Goldman Sachs may structure such transactions for its clients or counterparties, or otherwise advise or assist clients or counterparties in entering into such transactions. These activities may be undertaken to achieve a variety of objectives, including: permitting other purchasers of the Securities or other securities to hedge their investment in whole or in part; facilitating transactions for other clients or counterparties that may have business objectives or investment strategies that are inconsistent with, or contrary to, those of investors in the Securities; hedging the exposure of Goldman Sachs to the Securities including any interest in the Securities that it reacquires or retains as part of the offering process, through its market-making activities or otherwise; enabling Goldman Sachs to comply with its internal risk limits or otherwise manage firmwide, business unit or product risk; and/or enabling Goldman Sachs to take directional views as to relevant markets on behalf of itself or its clients or counterparties that are inconsistent with or contrary to the views and objectives of the investors in the Securities.

Any of these hedging or other activities may adversely affect the levels of the Underlying Asset(s) — directly or indirectly by affecting the price of the Underlying Components — and therefore the market value of your Securities and the amount we will pay on your Securities, if any, at maturity. In addition, you should expect that these transactions will cause Goldman Sachs or its clients, counterparties or distributors to have economic interests and incentives that do not align with, and that may be directly contrary to, those of an investor in the Securities. Neither Goldman Sachs nor any distributor will have any obligation to take, refrain from taking or cease taking any action with respect to these transactions based on the potential effect on an investor in the Securities, and may receive substantial returns on hedging or other activities while the value of the Securities declines. In addition, if the distributor from which you purchase Securities is to conduct hedging activities in connection with the Securities, that distributor may otherwise profit in connection with such hedging activities and such profit, if any, will be in addition to the compensation that the distributor receives for the sale of the Securities to you. You should be aware that the potential to earn fees in connection with hedging activities may create a further incentive for the distributor to sell the Securities to you in addition to the compensation they would receive for the sale of the Securities.

8.2 Goldman Sachs' trading and investment activities for its own account or for its clients could negatively impact investors in the Securities

Goldman Sachs is a global investment banking, securities and investment management firm that provides a wide range of financial services to a substantial and diversified client base that includes corporations, financial institutions, governments and high-net-worth individuals. As such, it acts as an investor, investment banker, research provider, investment manager, investment advisor, market maker, trader, prime broker and lender. In those and other capacities, Goldman Sachs purchases, sells or holds a broad array of investments, actively trades securities, derivatives, loans, commodities, currencies, credit default swaps, indices, baskets and other financial instruments and products for its own account or for the accounts of its customers, and will have other direct or indirect interests, in the global fixed income, currency, commodity, equity, bank loan and other markets. Any of Goldman Sachs' financial market activities may, individually or in the aggregate, have an adverse effect on the market for your Securities, and you should expect that the interests of Goldman Sachs or its clients or counterparties will at times be adverse to those of investors in the Securities.

Goldman Sachs regularly offers a wide array of securities, financial instruments and other products into the marketplace, including existing or new products that are similar to your Securities, or similar or linked to the Underlying Asset(s). Investors in the Securities should expect that Goldman Sachs will offer securities, financial instruments, and other products that will compete with the Securities for liquidity, research coverage or otherwise.

8.3 Goldman Sachs' market-making activities could negatively impact investors in the Securities

Goldman Sachs actively makes markets in and trades financial instruments for its own account and for the accounts of customers. These financial instruments include debt and equity securities, currencies, commodities, bank loans, indices, baskets and other products. Goldman Sachs' activities include, among other things, executing large block trades and taking long and short positions directly and indirectly, through derivative instruments or otherwise. The securities and instruments in which Goldman Sachs takes positions, or expects to take positions, include securities and instruments of the Underlying Asset(s) or the Underlying Components thereof, securities and instruments similar to or linked to the foregoing or the currencies in which they are denominated. Market making is an activity where Goldman Sachs buys and sells on behalf of customers, or for its own account, to satisfy the expected demand of customers. By its nature, market making involves facilitating transactions among market participants that have differing views of securities and instruments. As a result, you should expect that Goldman Sachs will take positions that are inconsistent with, or adverse to, the investment objectives of investors in the Securities.

If Goldman Sachs becomes a holder of any Underlying Asset or Underlying Component thereof, as applicable, in its capacity as a market-maker or otherwise, any actions that it takes in its capacity as securityholder, including voting or provision of consents, will not necessarily be aligned with, and may be inconsistent with, the interests of investors in the Securities.

8.4 You should expect that Goldman Sachs personnel will take research positions, or otherwise make recommendations, provide investment advice or market colour or encourage trading strategies that might negatively impact investors in the Securities

Goldman Sachs and its personnel, including its sales and trading, investment research and investment management personnel, regularly make investment recommendations, provide market colour or trading ideas, or publish or express independent views in respect of a wide range of markets, issuers, securities and instruments. They regularly implement, or recommend to clients that they implement, various investment strategies relating to these markets, issuers, securities and instruments. These strategies include, for example, buying or selling credit protection against a default or other event involving an issuer or financial instrument. Any of these recommendations and views may be negative with respect to the Underlying Asset(s) or Underlying Components thereof, as applicable, or other securities or instruments similar to or linked to the foregoing or result in trading strategies that have a negative impact on the market for any such securities or instruments, particularly in illiquid markets. In addition, you should expect that personnel in the trading and investing businesses of Goldman Sachs will have or develop independent views of the Underlying Asset(s) or Underlying Components thereof, as applicable, the relevant industry or other market trends, which may not be aligned with the views and objectives of investors in the Securities.

8.5 Goldman Sachs regularly provides services to, or otherwise has business relationships with, a broad client base, which may include the sponsors or issuers of the Underlying Asset(s) or Underlying Components thereof or other entities that are involved in the transaction

Goldman Sachs regularly provides financial advisory, investment advisory and transactional services to a substantial and diversified client base, and you should assume that Goldman Sachs will, at present or in the future, provide such services or otherwise engage in transactions with, among others, the sponsors or issuers of the Underlying Asset(s) or Underlying Components thereof, or transact in securities or instruments or with parties that are directly or indirectly related to the foregoing. These services could include making loans to or equity investments in those companies, providing financial advisory or other investment banking services, or issuing research reports. You should expect that Goldman Sachs, in providing such services, engaging in such transactions, or acting for its own account, may take actions that have direct or indirect effects on the Underlying Asset(s) or Underlying Components thereof, as applicable, and that such actions could be adverse to the interests of investors in the Securities. In addition, in connection with these activities, certain Goldman Sachs personnel may have access to confidential material non-public information about these parties that would not be disclosed to Goldman Sachs employees that were not working on such transactions as Goldman Sachs has established internal information barriers that are designed to preserve the confidentiality of non-public information. Therefore, any such confidential material non-public information would not be shared with Goldman Sachs employees involved in structuring, selling or making markets in the Securities or with investors in the Securities.

In any offering under the Programme, as well as in all other circumstances in which Goldman Sachs receives any fees or other compensation in any form relating to services provided to or transactions with any other party, no accounting, offset or payment in respect of the Securities will be required or made;

Goldman Sachs will be entitled to retain all such fees and other amounts, and no fees or other compensation payable by any party or indirectly by holders of the Securities will be reduced by reason of receipt by Goldman Sachs of any such other fees or other amounts.

8.6 An offering of the Securities may reduce an existing exposure of Goldman Sachs or facilitate a transaction or position that serves the objectives of Goldman Sachs or other parties

A completed offering of Securities may reduce Goldman Sachs' existing exposure to the Underlying Asset(s) or Underlying Components thereof, as applicable, securities and instruments similar to or linked to the foregoing or the currencies in which they are denominated, including exposure gained through hedging transactions in anticipation of this offering. An offering of Securities will effectively transfer a portion of Goldman Sachs' exposure (and indirectly transfer the exposure of Goldman Sachs' hedging or other counterparties) to investors in the Securities.

The terms of an offering (including the selection of the Underlying Asset(s) and the establishment of other transaction terms) may have been selected in order to serve the investment or other objectives of Goldman Sachs or another client or counterparty of Goldman Sachs. In such a case, Goldman Sachs would typically receive the input of other parties that are involved in or otherwise have an interest in the offering, transactions hedged by the offering, or related transactions. The incentives of these other parties would normally differ from and in many cases be contrary to those of investors in the Securities.

8.7 Other investors in the Securities may not have the same interests as you

Other investors in the Securities are not required to take into account the interests of any other investor in exercising remedies or voting or other rights in their capacity as securityholders or in making requests or recommendations to us as to the establishment of other transaction terms. The interests of other investors may, in some circumstances, be adverse to your interests. For example, certain investors may take short positions (directly or indirectly through derivative transactions) on assets that are the same or similar to your Securities, Underlying Asset(s) or other similar securities, which may adversely impact the market for or value of your Securities.

8.8 As Calculation Agent, we will have the authority to make determinations that could affect the market value and return on your Securities

Unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms, the Calculation Agent will be Goldman Sachs International. The Calculation Agent has the authority (i) to determine whether certain specified events and/or matters so specified in the conditions relating to the Securities have occurred, and (ii) to determine the consequence of such event, including potentially, revised calculations, adjustments, postponements or early redemption of the Securities. See risk factor 8 (Risks associated with conflicts of interest between Goldman Sachs and purchasers of Securities and discretionary powers of the Issuer and the Calculation Agent including in relation to our hedging arrangements) above. Any such determination made by the Calculation Agent (in the absence of manifest or proven error) shall be binding on the Issuer and all purchasers of the Securities. Any such determinations may have an adverse impact on the value of and return on the Securities.

8.9 As a participant or contributor to certain "benchmarks" we may have conflicts with you

We may act as a participant or contributor to certain "benchmarks", which could create conflicts of interest between you and us. In its capacity as a participant or contributor to a "benchmark", we will provide input data which will affect the price or level or such "benchmark", and this could affect the value of and return on any Securities linked to a "benchmark".

8.10 There may be potential conflicts of interest relating to distributors or other entities involved in the offer or listing of the Securities

Potential conflicts of interest may arise in connection with the Securities, as any distributors or other entities involved in the offer and/or the listing of the Securities as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will act pursuant to a mandate granted by the Issuer and can receive commissions and/or fees on the basis of the services performed in relation to such offer and/or listing, and such conflicts of interest could be adverse to your interests as a purchaser of such Securities.

8.11 Additional conflicts of interests associated with Securities linked to a Proprietary Index

Potential conflicts of interest may arise in relation to Goldman Sachs' multiple roles in connection with a Proprietary Index. Although the GS Group will perform its obligations in a manner that it considers commercially reasonable, it may face conflicts between the roles it performs in respect of a Proprietary Index and its own interests. In particular, the GS Group may have, or enter into transactions to create, a physical, economic or other interest (including an adverse and/or short interest, as the case may be) in a Relevant Index, products linked thereto, any Strategy Component, any Input Data and/or investments referenced by or linked to any Strategy Component or Input Data, and may exercise remedies or take other action with respect to its interests as it deems appropriate. These actions could adversely affect the Strategy Value and may include the following:

- (i) The GS Group actively trades products linked to each Relevant Index, any Strategy Component, Input Data, investments referenced by or linked to a Strategy Component or Input Data and numerous related investments. These activities could adversely affect the Strategy Value, which could in turn affect the return on, and the value of, Securities linked to a Proprietary Index.
- (ii) The GS Group may have access to information relating to a Relevant Index, products linked thereto, a Strategy Component, Input Data or investments referenced by or linked to a Strategy Component or Input Data. The GS Group is not obliged to use that information for the benefit of any person acquiring or entering into Securities linked to a Proprietary Index.
- (iii) Certain activities conducted by the GS Group may conflict with the interests of those acquiring Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. It is possible that the GS Group could receive substantial returns in respect of these activities while the value of any investment referenced to such Proprietary Index may decline. For example:
 - (a) The GS Group and other parties may issue or underwrite additional securities or trade other financial or derivative instruments or investments referenced to a Relevant Index or other similar strategies or any Strategy Component. An increased level of investment and trading in these securities, instruments or investments may negatively affect the performance of a Relevant Index and could affect the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index and, therefore, the amount payable at maturity (or on any other payment date) on Securities linked to a Proprietary Index and the value before maturity of such Securities. Such securities, instruments or investments may also compete with Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. By introducing competing products into the marketplace in this manner, the GS Group could adversely affect the market value of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index and the amount paid by it on such Securities at maturity (or on any other payment date). To the extent that the GS Group serves as issuer, agent, underwriter or counterparty in respect of those securities or other similar instruments or investments, its interests in respect of those securities, instruments or investments may be adverse to the interests of a holder of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index.
 - (b) Although the GS Group is not obliged to do so, it may elect to hedge its exposure to a Relevant Index, any products linked thereto, a Strategy Component, Input Data or any investment referenced by or linked to a Strategy Component or Input Data with an affiliate or a third party. That affiliate or third party, in turn, is likely to directly or indirectly hedge some or all of its exposure, including through transactions taking place on the futures and options markets. Where the GS Group chooses to hedge its exposure, it may adjust or unwind such hedges by purchasing or selling products linked to a Relevant Index, a Strategy Component, Input Data, any investments referenced by or linked to a Strategy Component or Input Data, or any other product on or before the date such Relevant Index is valued for purposes of any investments referenced to such Relevant Index. The GS Group may also enter into, adjust or unwind hedging transactions relating to other instruments linked to a Relevant Index or a Strategy Component, including at times and/or levels which are different from those used to determine the Strategy Value. Any of this hedging activity may adversely affect the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index and the value of any Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. In addition, and without limitation:

Risk Factors

- (I) The GS Group could receive substantial returns with respect to these hedging activities while the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index and/or the value of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index may decline.
 - (II) The GS Group could receive substantial returns if it trades in a Strategy Component on or before the rebalancing of a Relevant Index and/or at levels which are different from the levels specified in the methodology for determining the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index. Such trading may have an adverse impact on the level at which a rebalancing occurs, which may result in an adverse impact on the performance of a Relevant Index. In addition, such trading could generate significant returns to the GS Group that will not be passed on to the investors in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index.
 - (III) In respect of Securities linked to the Strategy, to the extent that the Hedging Party or any affiliate may hold a physical position in an Underlying Fund or an Asset (as the case may be), the Hedging Party may receive payments by way of fee rebates from the manager, the investment advisor and/or an affiliate of the relevant Underlying Fund or Asset (as the case may be) linked to the size of such holding. Such fee rebates will not be included in the costs applied to the Underlying Strategy or the Strategy (as the case may be) but the benefit of any rebate will benefit the Hedging Party and will have an impact on the pricing of Securities linked to the Strategy.
 - (IV) If the GS Group has hedged its exposure to a Strategy Component or Input Data and incurs an effective rate of withholding tax that is less than the synthetic tax withholding applied in respect of a Relevant Index, the GS Group could receive substantial returns.
- (c) Certain activities conducted by the GS Group may conflict with the interests of those acquiring Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. For example, as described above, the GS Group may elect to hedge its obligations, if any, with an affiliate or a third party. It is possible that the GS Group could receive substantial returns with respect to these activities irrespective of the performance of a Proprietary Index and including while the value of any investment in Securities linked to such Proprietary Index may decline.
 - (d) The GS Group may also engage in trading for its proprietary accounts, for other accounts under its management or to facilitate transactions, including block transactions, on behalf of customers relating to one or more products linked to a Relevant Index, a Strategy Component or any constituent thereof, Input Data and/or any investment referenced by or linked to a Strategy Component or any constituent thereof or Input Data. In the course of these transactions, the GS Group's customers may receive information about a Relevant Index before it is made available to other investors. Any of these activities could also adversely affect the Strategy Value of such Relevant Index directly or indirectly by affecting the level of a Strategy Component or any constituent thereof, Input Data or the investments referenced by or linked to a Strategy Component or any constituent thereof or Input Data and, therefore, the market value of Securities linked to the relevant Proprietary Index and the amount paid on any such Securities at maturity.
- (iv) As operator or sponsor of a Relevant Index, under certain circumstances GSI will have discretion in making various determinations that affect a Relevant Index and products linked to it including, but not limited to, those situations described in the relevant Index Rules. GSI may use these determinations to calculate how much cash it must pay at maturity, or, as the case may be, upon any early redemption or on any other payment date, of Securities linked to a Proprietary Index. The exercise by GSI of this discretion could adversely affect the Strategy Value of such Proprietary Index and the value of Securities linked to it. It is possible that the exercise by the index sponsor of its discretion to change the relevant methodology may result in substantial returns in respect of the GS Group's trading activities for its proprietary accounts, for other accounts under its management or to facilitate transactions on behalf of customers relating to one or more products linked to a Relevant Index, the Strategy Components or Input Data thereof or any investment referenced by or linked to such Strategy Components or Input Data.

- (v) In respect of Securities linked to the Strategy, following the occurrence of an Additional Market Disruption Event in respect of one or more Underlying Funds or Assets (as the case may be), the Strategy Sponsor may, acting in good faith and a commercially reasonable manner, determine appropriate amendments to or make certain discretionary determinations in respect of the Underlying Strategy. The amendments and/or determinations made by the Strategy Sponsor may result in a material loss of Strategy Value and may benefit the Hedging Party in its capacity as issuer of, or counterparty to, Securities linked to the Strategy and, consequently, lead to a conflict of interest.
- (vi) As operator or sponsor of one or more Strategy Components or as a provider of Input Data, the GS Group members may be entitled to exercise discretion over decisions that would have an adverse impact on the Strategy Value of a Relevant Index, including, without limitation, discontinuing publication of the level of one or more Strategy Components or Input Data. The GS Group members will exercise any such discretion without regard to a Relevant Index or investors in Securities linked to the relevant Proprietary Index.
- (vii) The GS Group may in the future create and publish other indices or strategies, the concepts of which are similar, or identical, to that of a Relevant Index or one or more of the Strategy Components. The Strategy Component(s), as specified in the relevant Index Rules, however, are the only components that will be used for the calculation of the Relevant Index. Accordingly, no other published indices should be treated by any investor as the level of any Strategy Component (except as the Strategy Sponsor or any calculation agent may so determine, as described above).
- (viii) The GS Group may publish research, express opinions or provide recommendations (for example, with respect to a Strategy Component) that are inconsistent with investing in Securities linked to a Proprietary Index, and which may be revised at any time. Any such research, opinions or recommendations may or may not recommend that investors buy or hold the relevant Strategy Component and could affect the value and or performance of the relevant Proprietary Index and of Securities linked to such Proprietary Index.
- (ix) The GS Group may have ownership interests in sponsors of Strategy Components and as such may be able to influence the methodology and other features of such Strategy Components. In addition, members of the GS Group may provide pricing or other data that is directly used in the calculation of the level, value, coupon and/or components of Strategy Components (or the components thereof) or may be a provider of Input Data. The activities of the GS Group members as contributor to any Strategy Components or providers of Input Data may be adverse to the interests of investors and/or counterparties to products linked to any such Strategy Components or Input Data and may have an impact on the performance of such Strategy Components or Input Data.
- (x) The GS Group may have ownership interests in any Strategy Calculation Agent (or any other calculation agent with respect to a Relevant Index or Strategy Component) and any third party data providers with respect to a Relevant Index or any Strategy Component or Input Data and as such may be able to influence the determinations of such a calculation agent. In addition, members of the GS Group may provide pricing or other data that is directly used in the calculation of the level, coupon and/or components of a Relevant Index or may be providers of Input Data. The activities of the GS Group members as contributor to a Relevant Index may be adverse to the interests of investors in and/or counterparties to Securities linked to a Proprietary Index and may have an impact on the performance of such Proprietary Index.

8.12 Discretionary powers of the Issuer and the Calculation Agent including in relation to our hedging arrangements

As described elsewhere in these risk factors, the occurrence of certain events – relating to the Issuer, our hedging arrangements, the Underlying Asset(s), taxation, the relevant currency or other matters – may give rise to discretionary powers on our part (as Issuer or as Calculation Agent) under the terms and conditions of the Securities.

In relation to the Underlying Asset(s), a key investment objective of the Securities is to allow holders to gain an economic exposure to the Underlying Asset(s). Therefore, if an Underlying Asset is materially impacted by an unexpected event or the relevant level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value can no longer be calculated, then it may not be possible to achieve the investment objective of your Securities based on their original terms. In that case, we may have discretionary powers under the terms and conditions of the Securities (as described elsewhere in these risk factors) to (i) adjust the terms and conditions of the Securities to preserve the original economic terms and rationale, (ii) in certain cases, substitute the Underlying Asset(s) for another, (iii) calculate the relevant level, price, rate, net asset value or other applicable value itself, (iv) postpone payment, (v) redeem the Securities early or (vi) apply some combination thereof.

In relation to our hedging arrangements, we (including through one or more affiliates of the relevant Issuer and the relevant Guarantor) may enter into one or more arrangements to cover our exposure to the relevant cash amounts to be paid or assets to be delivered under the Securities as these fall due. We describe some of the potential types of arrangements in risk factor 8.1 (Anticipated hedging activities by Goldman Sachs or our distributors may negatively impact investors in the Securities and cause our interests and those of our clients and counterparties to be contrary to those of investors in the Securities) above. The particular hedging arrangements (if any) undertaken by us, and their cost, will likely be a significant determinant of the price and the economic terms and conditions of your Securities. Accordingly, if an event occurs which negatively impacts our hedging arrangements, we may have discretionary powers under the terms and conditions of your Securities as described in the paragraph immediately above to account for such impact on our hedging arrangements. The exercise by us of such discretionary powers may have a negative impact on the value of and return on your Securities.

9. Risks associated with taxation

9.1 Tax laws may change and this may have a negative impact on your Securities

Tax law and practice is subject to change, possibly with retrospective effect and this could adversely affect the value of your Securities to you and/or their market value generally. Any such change may (i) cause the tax treatment of the relevant Securities to change from what you understood the position to be at the time of purchase; (ii) render the statements in this document concerning relevant tax law and practice in relation to the Securities inaccurate or inapplicable in some or all respects to certain Securities or have the effect that this document does not include material tax considerations in relation to certain Securities; or (iii) give us the right to redeem the Securities early, if such change has the effect that (a) our performance under the Securities or (b) (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) our hedging transaction relating to the Securities is unlawful or (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) impracticable (see risk factor 3.1 (Your Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity due to a change in law event, and you may lose some or all of your investment)).

9.2 Payments on Securities that are issued by GSFCI may be subject to United States withholding tax

GSFCI is classified as a branch of a United States subsidiary of GSG for United States federal income tax purposes, and therefore any Securities that are issued by GSFCI will be treated as issued by a United States corporation for United States federal income tax purposes. Accordingly, payments on Securities that are issued by GSFCI may be subject to United States withholding tax in the same manner as securities issued by a United States corporation. See the discussion below under "Taxation – United States Tax Considerations – Securities Issued by GSFCI".

9.3 Payments on Securities that reference United States equities may be subject to United States withholding tax Securities that directly or indirectly reference the performance of United States equities (including an index or basket that includes United States equities) may be subject to withholding tax under Section 871(m) of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"). Prospective holders of such Securities should consult the discussion below under "Taxation – United States Tax Considerations – Dividend Equivalent Payments" for further information.

Questions about the documents in respect of an issuance of Securities

5. What documents do I need to read in respect of an issuance of Securities?

There are several legal documents that an investor must read in respect of any Securities: (i) each applicable section of this Base Prospectus (including the documents incorporated by reference in the Base Prospectus) and (ii) the Issue Terms in respect of such trade (including the issue-specific summary annexed to each relevant Issue Terms, if applicable).

6. What information is included in this Base Prospectus?

This Base Prospectus contains the general terms and conditions of all instruments in the section called "General Instrument Conditions" and the general terms and conditions of all notes in the section called "General Note Conditions". The General Instrument Conditions and the General Note Conditions may be completed and/or amended by Coupon Payout Conditions, Autocall Payout Conditions, Payout Conditions, Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Instruments or Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Notes (together, the "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities") and/or PSL Note Payout Conditions (as applicable) and as may be further completed and/or amended by the Underlying Asset Conditions, which relate to the most popular types of underlying assets, namely the Share Linked Conditions, the Index Linked Conditions, the Commodity Linked Conditions, the FX Linked Conditions, the Inflation Linked Conditions, the Fund Linked Conditions, the Multi-Asset Basket Linked Conditions, the Swap Rate Linked Conditions, the Interest Reference Rate Conditions and the Credit Linked Conditions.

An overview of all of the information in this Base Prospectus is set out at the beginning of this Base Prospectus, but like these commonly asked questions, the overview should only be read as an introduction to the rest of the information in this Base Prospectus.

This Base Prospectus also discloses financial and other information about each Issuer and each Guarantor in respect of the Securities and incorporates by reference further financial information about such entities. Such documents incorporated by reference into this Base Prospectus are available to investors by request from Investor Relations, 200 West Street, New York, New York 10282, USA, telephone +1 (212) 902-0300 and from the Luxembourg Paying Agent, Banque Internationale à Luxembourg at its office at 69 route d'Esch, L-2953 Luxembourg, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. The Luxembourg Stock Exchange will also publish such documents on its website at www.luxse.com.

This Base Prospectus also discloses restrictions about who can buy such securities and risk factors relating to securities issued under this Programme.

7. What information is included in the Issue Terms?

While the Base Prospectus includes general information about all securities, the Issue Terms is the document that sets out the specific details of each particular issuance of securities. The Issue Terms will contain, for example, the issue date, the maturity date and the methods used to calculate the redemption amount and any interest payments and interest payment dates, if applicable and will specify which (if any) of the Coupon Payout Conditions, the Autocall Payout Conditions, Payout Conditions, Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities, PSL Note Payout Conditions and Underlying Asset Conditions is applicable to the issuance.

Questions about risks of investing in the Securities

8. Are purchasers subject to the credit risk of the relevant Issuer and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantor with respect to the amount payable (if any) to a purchaser of Securities?

Yes. The Securities (i) are not bank deposits and are not insured or guaranteed by the UK Financial Services Compensation Scheme, the Jersey Depositors Compensation Scheme, the United States Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the U.S. Deposit Insurance Fund or any other government or governmental or private agency or deposit protection scheme in any jurisdiction and (ii) are unsecured and uncollateralised obligations, and therefore purchasers have no recourse whatsoever to the relevant Underlying Asset or any other assets in regard to the payments owing to them under the Securities. Purchasers of Securities are therefore exposed to the creditworthiness of the relevant Issuer and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantor.

See the section entitled "Risk Factors" for more detailed information, in particular Section A (Factors that may affect our ability to fulfil our obligations under the Securities).

9. How much of an investment is at risk?

For some Securities, as indicated in the Payout Conditions (save in respect of Credit Linked Securities) and as indicated in the Credit Linked Conditions (in respect of Credit Linked Securities where "Maturity Capital Protection" is specified to be applicable and in respect of which the Capital Protection Percentage is specified to be 100 per cent. in the relevant Issue Terms), purchasers will be entitled to receive 100 per cent. of the face amount of the Securities on the Maturity Date, subject always to the creditworthiness of the relevant Issuer and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantor to make such payment (or deliver the relevant Securities). If such Securities are sold prior to the Maturity Date or in certain circumstances if the Securities are repaid early, such purchaser may not receive the entire face amount of such Security, and may receive less than the amount that they invested.

For other Securities, a purchaser's investment may be at risk as they may receive an amount less than their original investment on the Maturity Date and may even lose their entire investment. In such circumstances, the value of the Securities can fluctuate and there is no guarantee that the value of the Securities will increase or that they will retain their value.

The Autocall Payout Conditions and/or the Payout Conditions or the PSL Note Payout Conditions or the Credit Linked Conditions, as applicable, will specify whether, and in what circumstances, a purchaser's investment is at risk.

Questions about purchase, ownership or sale of Securities

10. Who are the "holders" of Securities?

The expression "holders" refers to those who are shown in the records of the clearing systems as the holder of an amount of Securities. Accordingly, only those who have an account at a clearing system will be holders and only holders have direct rights against the relevant Issuer. Holders do not include investors who own Securities indirectly (for example through a selling agent). Investors who hold only the beneficial interests in the Securities must exercise their rights through the intermediary holding an account at the relevant clearing system.

In respect of Securities governed by French law, such person is entitled to take any action with respect to the relevant Securities except if such right is deferred to the "Masse" for the defence of the common interest of the holders.

11. What rights do holders have against an Issuer?

Securities issued under the programme will constitute direct, unsubordinated and unsecured obligations of the relevant Issuer and will rank equally among themselves and with all other direct unsubordinated and unsecured obligations of such Issuer.

A holder's rights may include the right to have the principal amount of securities repaid by such Issuer at maturity, the right to receive interest based on the principal amount of such securities or otherwise, the right to receive a cash amount from the relevant Issuer calculated in accordance with the Coupon Payout Conditions, the Autocall Payout Conditions, the Payout Conditions, the Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities and/or the PSL Note Payout Conditions and/or the Credit Linked Conditions, as applicable, or (save in respect of Credit Linked Securities) the right to receive delivery of a specified asset or assets against payment of a specified sum, all as more particularly described in the applicable Coupon Payout Conditions, the Autocall Payout Conditions, the Payout Conditions, Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities and/or the PSL Note Payout Conditions, as applicable.

Upon insolvency of the relevant Issuer, holders of the Securities will be paid at the same time as holders of other unsecured obligations of such Issuer and will be paid after preferred obligations (for example, secured creditors). If the relevant Issuer is unable to repay amounts due to holders, each holder will be treated equally with all other holders who own unsecured securities issued by such Issuer. Where specified as applicable in the Issue Terms, holders will be entitled to claim for any shortfalls in amounts owed but unpaid by such Issuer against the relevant Guarantor.

Where the Issuer of the relevant Securities is GSI, a resolution authority may exercise its "bail-in" powers if it considers that GSI is failing or likely to fail (and subject to certain other conditions). These powers include (amongst others) the potential to write down the unsecured debt of GSI (such as Securities) or converting it into equity. See risk factor 2.5(e) (The application of regulatory strategies and requirements to facilitate the orderly resolution of large financial institutions could create greater risk of loss for GSI's security holders) under risk factor 2 (Risks relating to GSI).

An investor who purchases Securities is therefore relying on the creditworthiness of the Guarantor as they will ultimately be able to recover any investment in the Securities to the extent that the Guarantor is able to repay those amounts. The Guarantor's creditworthiness and ability to fulfil its obligations in respect of the Securities are affected by general economic conditions and other business conditions.

For a discussion of certain factors affecting GSI and GSG's business, see the section entitled "Risk Factors" for more detailed information, in particular Section A (Factors that may affect our ability to fulfil our obligations under the Securities) and any other risk factors (which may arise or of which the Issuers may become aware after the date of this Base Prospectus) that may be included in any further documents to be incorporated by reference into this Base Prospectus by way of a Supplement.

12. How is ownership of the Securities recorded?

A purchaser will not receive a certificate representing his or her interest. Subject as provided below, each series of Securities will be issued in the form of a global security with one global security representing all of the holders' interests in respect of an entire series of Securities. Each global security will be deposited at, and transfers of interest therein will be facilitated between, the relevant clearing systems (being any of Euroclear, Clearstream, Luxembourg, Euroclear France or other domestic systems (as applicable)). Securities held through CREST, Monte Titoli, VPS, Euroclear Sweden, Euroclear Finland or Strate Proprietary Limited, or Securities governed by French law, will be dematerialised and there will be no global security in respect of such Securities. Transfers of such Securities will be through book entries at such clearing system. Selling agents will hold an interest in the Securities through a clearing system on behalf of the purchasers, with whom they will have an arrangement in respect of such Securities.

Registered Notes in global form may, if specified in the relevant Issue Terms, be held under the new safekeeping structure in which case the global Note will be deposited with the relevant "International Central Securities Depository" (being Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg) acting as common safekeeper and registered in the name of a nominee of such common safekeeper. Notes held under the new safekeeping structure may be issued with the intention that such Notes be recognised as eligible collateral for Eurosystem monetary policy and intra-day credit operations by the Eurosystem, either upon issue or at any time or all times during their life. Such recognition will depend upon satisfaction of the Eurosystem eligibility criteria as specified by the European Central Bank. However, there is no guarantee that such Notes will be recognised as eligible collateral.

13. What do investors have to do to exercise their rights in respect of the Securities?

Purchasers' rights relating to the Securities are governed by the procedures of the relevant clearing systems. As only the holders of the Securities can exercise any right to early repayment of the Securities, a purchaser wanting any such right to early repayment to be exercised on his or her behalf must contact his or her selling agent through which he or she holds his or her interest for details of how to give notice.

The purchaser should ensure proper and timely instructions are given to the selling agent requesting that it notify the holder to exercise the repayment right on his or her behalf.

14. How are payments made to investors?

The relevant Issuer will make payments of interest and principal or settlement amounts by paying the total amount payable to the clearing system(s), who will credit the appropriate amount to the account of each holder (which may include selling agents), in each case, in accordance with the rules and policies of the clearing system(s). Each purchaser of the Securities must look to its selling agent for payments on such purchaser's Securities. The relevant Issuer has no obligation to make payments directly to purchasers of Securities.

If a date specified for payment is not a business day, then the relevant Issuer will make the relevant payment on the first following day that is a business day. On these occasions, the payment will be treated as if it were made on the original specified date for payment and will not be considered a late payment. Accordingly, the relevant Issuer will not pay an additional interest amount for the postponement.

15. When are payments made to purchasers?

Each type of Security purchased will have a different repayment date or settlement date. Securities that bear interest (either interest accrued at a fixed or floating rate or interest calculated by reference to an underlying asset) will also have interest payment dates.

16. Do Securities have a minimum denomination or trading size?

There is no requirement for a minimum denomination. In order to purchase some securities, there may be a minimum amount that need to be invested, and there may be minimum trading amounts.

17. Will purchasers be able to sell their Securities?

Goldman Sachs International, Goldman Sachs Bank Europe SE and/or Goldman Sachs International, Paris Branch may make a secondary market in the relevant series of Securities, where an investor can sell their Securities directly or via a selling agent to Goldman Sachs International, Goldman Sachs Bank Europe SE and/or Goldman Sachs International, Paris Branch. However, there is no guarantee that a secondary market will develop and a purchaser should therefore be prepared to hold the Securities until their repayment date. If Goldman Sachs does make a secondary market, it may cease to do so at any time without notice.

18. What will be the price of the Securities in such circumstances?

If it is possible to sell the Securities, they would be sold for the prevailing bid price in the market except in the case where one or more entities are acting in the secondary market (e.g., specialist, market maker, price maker) pursuant to liquidity enhancement agreement(s) which provide for pre-determined bid prices as described below. The prevailing bid price may be affected by several factors including the performance of the Underlying Asset, prevailing interest rates at the time of sale, the time left before the stated repayment date, transaction costs and the creditworthiness of the relevant Issuer and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantor. It is therefore possible that any purchaser selling Securities in the secondary market may receive a price less than his or her initial investment.

In the case of any liquidity enhancement agreement providing for bid prices for Securities on the basis of certain fixed criteria (e.g. the creditworthiness of the relevant Issuer at the time of the issue date of such Securities), the bid price may be higher than the market prices, since the bid prices may not reflect all of the changes to the market variables such as any deterioration in Goldman Sachs' creditworthiness or perceived creditworthiness whether measured by Goldman Sachs' credit ratings or other measures. Details of any such liquidity enhancement agreements will be provided in the relevant Issue Terms.

19. Are there any fees, expenses or taxes to pay when purchasing, holding or selling Securities?

Fees and expenses may be incurred by purchasers in relation to the purchase, holding, transfer and sale of Securities. Potential purchasers or sellers of Securities should also be aware that stamp duties or taxes may have to be paid in accordance with the laws and practices of the country where the Securities are transferred. Every potential purchaser of Securities should consult their selling agent for details of fees, expenses, commissions or other costs and their own tax advisers in order to understand fully the tax implications specific to his or her investment in any Security.

20. Can an Issuer redeem or terminate the Securities before their stated maturity date?

An Issuer does have limited rights to redeem or terminate the Securities earlier than the specified maturity date and repay the purchaser an early redemption or termination amount, for example, following the occurrence of specified events, which are highlighted in more detail in the sections entitled "Introduction to the Share Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Index Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Commodity Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the FX Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Inflation Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Fund Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Multi-Asset Basket Linked Conditions" and "Introduction to the Credit Linked Conditions". The early redemption or termination amount may be less than the invested amount. For some Securities, the relevant Issuer's right to repay the Securities can be exercised at any time or the relevant Issuer may repay the Securities on the occurrence of a specified trigger event.

21. Can an Issuer amend the conditions of Securities once they have been issued?

The terms and conditions of Securities may be amended by the relevant Issuer with the approval of the Calculation Agent but without the consent of the holders if, the amendment: (a) in respect of the Securities (other than Securities governed by French law), (i) is of a formal, minor or technical nature, (ii) is made to correct a manifest or proven error or omission, or (iii) will not (in the opinion of the relevant Issuer) materially and adversely affect the interests of the holders, or (b) in respect of Securities governed by French Law which have a denomination of at least EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date) or may only be traded in amounts of at least EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date), is to correct a manifest error.

Following the occurrence of certain events, the Calculation Agent, on behalf of the relevant Issuer, may be entitled to amend the Conditions of Securities without requiring the consent of the holders of such Securities. Typically, such events will have affected the composition, or calculation, of the Underlying Asset(s) to such an extent that the Calculation Agent could not make any adjustment to account for the economic effect on the Securities. The sections entitled "Introduction to the Share Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Index Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Commodity Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the FX Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Inflation Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Fund Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Multi-Asset Basket Linked Conditions" and "Introduction to the Credit Linked Conditions" set out in more detail the circumstances in which the Calculation Agent can make such amendments.

An Issuer may also amend the Conditions of the Securities where it determines that its performance thereunder, in whole or in part, is unlawful or impracticable.

Questions about the Calculation Agent

22. Who calculates the amounts payable to purchasers?

Unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms, GSI will act as the Calculation Agent in respect of Securities issued under this Programme, and in such capacity, will determine the performance levels of the Underlying Asset(s) on specified valuation dates or in respect of Credit Linked Securities only, the Credit Event Loss Amount or Incurred Loss Amount or Maturity Capital Protected Amount (as applicable) and will determine any interest amounts and the redemption amounts and/or physical settlement amounts payable or deliverable by the relevant Issuer to the holders of such Securities. Such determinations and calculations shall be made by the Calculation Agent acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner. In the event that a disruption event has occurred in respect of an Underlying Asset on a specified valuation date, the valuation may be postponed to an alternative date, or the Calculation Agent may instead, in certain circumstances, estimate the value of such Underlying Asset on such valuation date.

In the event that: (a) the performance by the relevant Issuer or any affiliate of the relevant Issuer's obligations under the Securities or of the relevant Guarantor's obligations under the relevant Guarantee, or (b) (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) the relevant Issuer's or affiliate's obligations under hedging transactions relating to the Securities, shall have become (or there is a substantial likelihood in the immediate future that it will become) unlawful or (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) impractical in whole or in part as a result of a change in applicable law or regulation or a change in the interpretation of applicable law or regulation, which results in the early termination or redemption of the Securities, the Calculation Agent will determine the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount of such Securities which may (if (a) specified in the relevant Issue Terms or (b) in respect of Securities the terms of which provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable, such unscheduled early redemption is due to such change in law event which renders the continuance of the Securities definitively impossible) be an amount determined in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner by the Calculation Agent as the fair market value of such Securities on the second Business Day prior to the date of such early redemption or settlement, determined by reference to such factors as Calculation Agent considers to be appropriate (including future selling commissions payable to the distributor of the Securities, if any).

23. What further determinations may the Calculation Agent have to make?

The terms and conditions of the Securities (comprising (i) the General Instrument Conditions or the General Note Conditions, as applicable, (ii) any relevant Coupon Payout Conditions, (iii) any relevant Autocall Payout Conditions, (iv) the Payout Conditions or the PSL Note Payout Conditions, as applicable, (v) the Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities (vi) any relevant Underlying Asset Conditions, as completed by (vii) the Issue Terms) also provide that the Calculation Agent is the entity responsible for determining whether certain events have occurred (some of which are mentioned above), and in circumstances where such events have occurred, whether the terms and conditions of the securities shall be amended to reflect such events and/or whether the Securities shall be early terminated or redeemed and/or applicable valuation(s) be postponed or alternative valuation methods be adopted and/or other consequences. Such determinations shall be made by the Calculation Agent acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner. A non-exhaustive summary of some events is set out below:

Commonly Asked Questions

- (a) Market Disruption Event – any event that means the value of the Underlying Asset(s) cannot be determined in the regular manner, for example, the exchange on which the relevant shares trade has closed early or been disrupted, the management company of the fund has failed to publish the net asset value of the shares, or the index sponsor or commodities exchange has failed to publish the reference level;
- (b) Potential Adjustment Event or Extraordinary Event (in respect of the Share Linked Conditions) – any event that results in significant changes to the nature of the shares, including a reclassification, an extraordinary dividend, a delisting of shares, a merger event, (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) a termination of listed derivatives, a tender offer, an insolvency or a nationalisation, and where the share is a fund, a non-publication of the net asset value of the share;

- (d) Index Calculation Agent Cessation Event (in respect of the Index Linked Conditions) – an event has occurred whereby an Index Calculation Agent (as so specified in the relevant Issue Terms) is not able to calculate or announce a relevant index, or is replaced by a successor index calculation agent, the occurrence of which could (I) materially interfere with the ability of the Issuer and/or any of its affiliate(s) to unwind, maintain or establish all or a material portion of their hedge positions in respect of the Securities, and/or (II) materially change the risks associated with maintaining such hedge positions (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable);
- (e) Commodity Index Adjustment Event (in respect of the Commodity Linked Conditions) – (i) a material non-prescribed change in the formula for determining the composition of a commodity index, (ii) the cancellation of a commodity index, which is then not replaced, (iii) the non-publication of a commodity index level, and (iv) if a commodity index or its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration (subject to applicable transitional provisions) with the effect that such commodity index may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent;
- (f) Delay in Publication or Cessation of Publication (in respect of Inflation Linked Conditions) – a delay in, or cessation of, publication of an inflation index level;

- (j) Physical Settlement Disruption Event – any event that has occurred as a result of which, in the opinion of the Calculation Agent, the relevant Issuer cannot, or it is commercially impracticable for such Issuer to effect physical settlement of all or any of the deliverable assets in satisfaction of such Issuer's obligation to pay a redemption amount;
- (k) Original Primary Rate Cessation Date - if an Original Primary Rate ceases to be provided permanently or indefinitely;

Commonly Asked Questions

- (l) Administrator/Benchmark Event Date - if an Original Primary Rate, Commodity Reference Price or FX Rate or its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration with the effect that the Original Primary Rate, Commodity Reference Price or FX Rate may not be used in certain ways by the Issuer or the Calculation Agent or it is materially modified;
- (m) Currency Conversion Disruption Event - an event occurs in which (i) a relevant currency conversion rate splits into dual or multiple currency exchange rates, (ii) it is generally impossible to convert any calculation currency into the converted currency through customary legal channels, (iii) it is generally impossible to deliver the converted currency from accounts inside a relevant jurisdiction to accounts outside such relevant jurisdiction, (iv) a default occurs with respect to any security or indebtedness for borrowed money of, or guaranteed by, any governmental authority, (v) it becomes impossible or not reasonably practicable for the Issuer or its affiliates to obtain a currency conversion rate from a typically used source, or to obtain a firm quote for any currency conversion rate, (vi) an action by a relevant governmental authority deprives the Issuer or its affiliates of all or substantially all of its assets in any relevant jurisdiction, or (vii) a relevant currency ceases to exist and is replaced by a new currency;
- (n) FX Linked Conditions Disruption Event - an event occurs in which (i) an FX Rate splits into dual or multiple currency exchange rates, (ii) it is generally impossible to convert any reference currency into the settlement currency through customary legal channels, (iii) it is generally impossible to deliver the settlement currency from accounts inside a relevant jurisdiction to accounts outside such relevant jurisdiction, (iv) a default occurs with respect to any security or indebtedness for borrowed money of, or guaranteed by, any governmental authority, (v) it becomes impossible or not reasonably practicable for the Issuer or its affiliates to obtain an FX Rate from a typically used source, or to obtain a firm quote for any FX Rate, (vi) an action by a relevant governmental authority deprives the Issuer or its affiliates of all or substantially all of its assets in any relevant jurisdiction, or (vii) a relevant currency ceases to exist and is replaced by a new currency;
- (o) Fund Market Disruption Event – if subscriptions or redemptions in a Fund are suspended or restricted, or the Calculation Agent is unable to receive a valuation for the Fund;
- (p) Potential Adjustment Event (in respect of the Fund Linked Conditions) – any event that may have a diluting or concentrative effect on the theoretical value of a Fund;
- (q) Potential Crystallisation Event (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) – any event that has the potential of (I) materially interfering with the ability of the Issuer and/or any of its affiliate(s) to unwind, maintain or establish all or a material portion of their hedge positions in respect of the Securities, and/or (II) materially changing the risks associated with maintaining such hedge positions. Such event may include a "Non-full Cash Redemption Proceeds Event", where a Fund fails to accept or execute subscriptions or redemptions wholly in cash and/or in accordance with any settlement schedule provided in the Fund's offering document (including the situation where the redemption proceeds that would be paid to an investor of the Fund in respect of redemption of a fund share differs from the net asset value of such fund share); and
- (r) Adjusted NAV Event (unless the terms of the Securities provide that "Supplementary Provisions for Belgian Securities" is applicable) - a failure to execute subscriptions or redemptions in units or shares of a Fund wholly in cash or on time.

If the Calculation Agent determines that a Market Disruption Event, a Potential Adjustment Event, an Extraordinary Event, an Index Adjustment Event, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event, a Delay in Publication or Cessation of Publication, a Change in Law, an FX Disruption Event, a CNY FX Disruption Event, a Physical Settlement Disruption Event, an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date, an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date, a Currency Conversion Disruption Event, a FX Linked Conditions Disruption Event, a Fund Market Disruption Event, a Potential Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event and any other applicable event has occurred, any consequential postponement of, or any alternative provisions for, valuation provided in the terms and conditions of any securities may have an adverse effect on the value of such securities.

The sections entitled "Introduction to the Share Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Index Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Commodity Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the FX Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Inflation Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Fund Linked Conditions", "Introduction to the Multi-Asset Basket Linked Conditions" and "Introduction to the Credit Linked Conditions" set out in more detail the circumstances which can lead to a disruption event and the postponement of, or a change in the process relating to, the valuation of the most common types of underlying assets (and in respect of Credit Linked Securities, the valuation of Deliverable Obligations).

Certain of the above events could also potentially lead to amendment and/or early redemption of the Securities. See risk factor 4.5 (Following the occurrence of certain extraordinary events in relation to the Underlying Asset(s) or the Original Primary Rate(s), or following the occurrence of an Index Adjustment Event in relation to an Index, a Commodity Index Adjustment Event in relation to a Commodity Index, a Disruption Event in relation to a Commodity Reference Price or a Potential Adjustment Event, a Crystallisation Event or an Adjusted NAV Event in relation to a Fund, or a merger of the Issuer and a Reference Entity in relation to Credit Linked Securities, as the case may be, the terms and conditions of your Securities may be adjusted or the Securities may be redeemed early at the non-scheduled early repayment amount).

24. Are the Calculation Agent's determinations binding on purchasers?

All calculations, determinations or adjustments made by the Calculation Agent shall, in the absence of manifest error, be final, conclusive and binding on the holders of the Securities.

More information about the most common types of underlying assets is set out below at questions 30 to 40.

30. What are share linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of a share or a basket of shares over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates. The shares of companies that are referenced by such Securities will be traded on a stock exchange and the prices of such shares will be published on recognised information services, for example, Bloomberg or Refinitiv screens, which means that the investor will be able to monitor the relevant share prices during the life of the Securities.

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of an exchange traded fund. The prices of the shares of such exchange traded funds will be published on recognised information services, for example, Bloomberg or Refinitiv screens, which means that the investor will be able to monitor the relevant share prices of the exchange traded funds during the life of the Securities.

An introduction to, and a summary of, the Share Linked Conditions is set out on pages 521 to 559 below.

31. What are index linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of (a) an equity index that references a synthetic portfolio of shares representing a particular market or portion of it or a basket of indices; or (b) a proprietary index that references the performance of a synthetic weighted basket of assets, over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates. Each index has its own calculation methodology and is usually expressed in terms of a change from a base value.

There are three types of equity indices that are referenced by securities: (i) a unitary index, where the underlying shares are deemed to trade on a single stock exchange and the level of such index is published on a recognised information service; (ii) a modified unitary index, where the underlying shares are deemed to trade on more than one stock exchange and the level of such index is published on a recognised information service, and (iii) a multi-exchange index, where the underlying shares are deemed to trade on more than one stock exchange and the level of such index is published on a recognised information service. A proprietary index is an index which is composed by the relevant issuer or by any legal entity belonging to the same group.

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of futures, options or other derivatives contract relating to an equity index or assets relating to a proprietary index. The prices of the futures, options or other derivatives contracts will be published on a recognised information service.

An introduction to, and a summary of, the Index Linked Conditions is set out on pages 569 to 607 below.

32. What are commodity linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of a commodity, a basket of commodities or a commodity index over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates.

Commodities (including contracts that provide for physical delivery or are based on the price of a deliverable commodity) and commodity indices are generally divided into four main classes: (i) energy, which includes crude oil, gasoline, heating oil and natural gas, (ii) agriculture, which includes corn, soybeans, wheat, sugar, cocoa, cotton and coffee, (iii) livestock, which includes cattle and hogs, and (iv) metals, which can be subdivided into base metals such as aluminium, copper, nickel, lead and zinc, and precious metals such as gold.

A commodity index generally references the performance of a synthetic weighted basket of commodities that satisfy specified criteria and is designed to be a liquid and diversified benchmark for commodities. Each commodity index has its own composition and calculation methodology and is usually expressed in terms of a change from a base value.

An introduction to, and a summary of, the Commodity Linked Conditions is set out on pages 618 to 653 below.

33. What are foreign exchange rate linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of a foreign exchange rate or a basket of foreign exchange rates over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates. Foreign exchange rates indicate the relationship between one specified currency and another currency. The values of such foreign exchange rates are published by recognised information services or are determined by central banks.

An introduction to, and a summary of, the FX Linked Conditions is set out on pages 657 to 673 below.

34. What are inflation linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of an inflation index or another consumer price index or a basket of inflation indices over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates. Inflation rates measure the percentage change in the general level of prices of goods and services in an economy over a period of time. The values of such inflation rates are published by recognised information services or are determined by central banks.

An introduction to, and a summary of, the Inflation Linked Conditions is set out on pages 676 to 680 below.

35. What are fund linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the net asset value of the shares or units in a fund or a basket of funds over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates. A fund is a synthetic portfolio of shares, bonds and other securities or derivative instruments representing a particular market or portion of it. Each fund has its own investment strategies and calculation methodology. The performance of a fund is usually measured by its net asset value. The net asset value of a fund is calculated and published by a fund manager or other service providers of the fund.

An introduction to, and a summary of, the Fund Linked Conditions is set out on pages 685 to 698 below.

36. What are multi-asset basket linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of a basket of two or more Underlying Assets over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates. Such basket will be composed of shares (see question 30 (What are share linked securities?)) and indices (see question 31 (What are index linked securities?)).

An introduction to, and a summary of, the Multi-Asset Basket Linked Conditions is set out on pages 703 to 712 below.

37. What are PSL Notes?

For a description of the PSL Notes see the section entitled "PSL Note Description" on pages 1190 to 1201 below.

38. What are exchange traded futures and options contracts on underlying indices?

An options contract linked to an Index is one where the buyer of the options contract purchases the right to a potential payment from the seller of the option, depending on the level of the Index. The sum that a buyer of an options contract pays to purchase the options contract is usually known as the premium, and options contracts will usually be call options, where the buyer will receive payment under the options contract if the level of the Index on one or more specified dates is above a specified level (known as the strike), or put options, where the buyer will receive payment under the options contract if the level of the Index on one or more specified dates is below the strike.

A cash settled futures contract linked to an Index is one where, depending on the level of the Index, the buyer of the futures contract either has a right to receive a payment (known as the settlement amount) from the seller of the futures contract or an obligation to make a payment to the seller of the futures contract. If the level of the Index on one or more specified dates (the "settlement price") is greater than a specified level in the contract (the "forward price"), then the seller shall pay to the buyer the difference between the settlement price and the forward price. If the settlement price is less than the forward price, the buyer of the futures contract will make a payment to the seller of the futures contract equal to such difference.

Index-linked derivatives contracts may be traded on the relevant futures or options exchanges and may be standardised with respect to the number of futures or options covered by one index-linked derivatives contract, the term of each index-linked derivatives contract, the dates on which various index-linked derivatives contracts expire and the manner in which the settlement amount is calculated.

39. What are swap rate or interest reference rate linked securities?

The payments of interest and/or repayment of principal and any additional amounts payable in respect of some Securities, as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms, will be calculated by reference to the performance of a swap rate for swap transactions in the specified currency with a designated maturity which appears on a relevant screen page in respect of a relevant day (or a basket of swap rates), or the performance of an interest rate which appears on a relevant screen page in respect of a relevant day (or a basket of reference rates), in each case, over a fixed period of time or on fixed dates.

40. What are credit linked securities?

For a description of Credit Linked Securities see the section entitled "Introduction to the Credit Linked Conditions" on pages 721 to 761 below and, in particular, the sub-section entitled "Description of the Credit Linked Conditions and the Reference CDS" therein.

- (d) Cash Settlement: Subject to General Instrument Condition 4(j) (Disclaimer as to Clearing Systems and their agents and operators), General Instrument Condition 9(e) (Physical Settlement) or General Instrument Condition 9(f) (Holder's Election for Physical Settlement), if the relevant Issue Terms specify Cash Settlement to be applicable, upon the exercise or deemed exercise of an Instrument by a Holder, such Holder shall be entitled to receive from the Issuer on the Maturity Date the Settlement Amount less any Taxes. The Settlement Amount will be rounded in accordance with General Instrument Condition 27 (Rounding), with Instruments exercised at the same time by the same Holder being aggregated for the purpose of determining the aggregate Settlement Amount payable in respect of such Instruments.

- (e) Physical Settlement: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Physical Settlement" to be applicable, upon the exercise or deemed exercise of an Instrument by a Holder, the Issuer shall transfer or procure the transfer on the Physical Settlement Date (in respect of such Instrument exercised by the Holder) of the Physical Settlement Amount in respect of each Instrument so exercised to the account specified for that purpose by the Holder in the relevant Exercise Notice ("Physical Settlement"), and following payment by the Holder to or to the order of the Issuer on or before the Physical Settlement Date of the Strike Price (if specified in the relevant Issue Terms) and, if applicable, all Taxes and stamp duties, transaction costs, and any other costs incurred by the Issuer and any of its affiliates in the delivery of the Deliverable Assets to the relevant Holder (such sums, the "Delivery Expenses"), all as more fully described in General Instrument Condition 10 (Exercise Procedure) and delivery of the Deliverable Assets shall take place only after the Delivery Expenses (if any) have been paid by such Holder to or to the order of the Issuer. No Instrument shall confer on a Holder any right to acquire the Deliverable Assets and the Issuer is not obliged to purchase or hold the Deliverable Assets. The delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount shall be made (i) if practicable and in respect of Securities represented by a Global Instrument or Swiss Securities, to the relevant Clearing System for the credit of the account of the Holder or (ii) in such other commercially reasonable manner as the Issuer shall determine to be appropriate for such delivery and will, where appropriate and if practicable, notify the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices). By purchasing or exercising an Instrument, the relevant Holder shall be deemed to have agreed to such form of settlement as provided herein. The obligation of the Issuer to deliver Shares is limited to the delivery of Shares having the characteristics and in the form that allows delivery via the relevant Clearing System and does not include registration of the Holder in the share register or in the list of shareholders, and none of the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or any other person shall have any liability for any such failure of (or delay in) registration.

This General Instrument Condition 9(e) is not applicable to Nordic Registered Instruments.

- (f) Holder's Election for Physical Settlement: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Holder's Election for Physical Settlement" to be applicable, upon the exercise of an Instrument by a Holder, such Holder may in the Exercise Notice elect not to receive the Settlement Amount as described in General Instrument Condition 9(d) (Cash Settlement), but instead, subject to a Physical Settlement Disruption Event, request the Issuer to transfer or procure the transfer of the Deliverable Assets in respect of each Instrument so exercised and such Exercise Notice will be irrevocable notice to the Issuer. Neither the Instruments nor the Exercise Notice confers any right on the Holder to acquire the Deliverable Assets and the Issuer is not obliged to purchase, hold or deliver the Deliverable Assets until the Holder has paid the Strike Price (if specified in the relevant Issue Terms) and/or any Taxes (if applicable).

This General Instrument Condition 9(f) is not applicable to Nordic Registered Instruments, Euroclear France Registered Instruments, French Law Instruments, Monte Titoli Registered Instruments, Swiss Securities and CREST Registered Instruments.

(g) Settlement Disruption: If, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount in accordance with General Instrument Condition 9(e) is not practicable by reason of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event having occurred and being continuing on the Physical Settlement Date, then the Physical Settlement Date shall be postponed to the first following Business Day in respect of which there is no such Physical Settlement Disruption Event, provided that, the Issuer may elect in its sole discretion to satisfy its obligations in respect of the relevant Instrument by delivering or procuring the delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount using such other commercially reasonable manner as it may select and in such event the Physical Settlement Date shall be such day as the Issuer deems appropriate in connection with delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount in such other commercially reasonable manner. For the avoidance of doubt, where a Physical Settlement Disruption Event affects some but not all of the Deliverable Assets comprising the Physical Settlement Amount, the Physical Settlement Date for the Deliverable Assets not affected by the Physical Settlement Disruption Event will be the originally designated Physical Settlement Date. For so long as delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount is not practicable by reason of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event, then in lieu of physical settlement and notwithstanding any other provision hereof the Issuer may elect in its sole and absolute discretion to satisfy its obligations in respect of the relevant Instrument by payment to the relevant Holder of the Physical Settlement Disruption Amount on the fifth Business Day following the date that notice of such election is given to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices). Payment of the Physical Settlement Disruption Amount will be made in such manner as shall be notified to the Holders. The Calculation Agent shall give notice as soon as practicable to the Holders that a Physical Settlement Disruption Event has occurred. No Holder shall be entitled to any payment in respect of the relevant Instrument in the event of any delay in the delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount due to the occurrence of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event and no liability in respect thereof shall attach to the Issuer, the relevant Guarantor (if applicable), the Calculation Agent or the Paying Agents.

(h) Instruments Void on Expiration: Any Euroclear/Clearstream Instrument with respect to which no Exercise Notice has been received by any of the Calculation Agent, Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg (the "Relevant Clearing System") or the Principal Programme Agent, in accordance with the provisions of General Instrument Condition 10 (Exercise Procedure), at or prior to 10.00 a.m. (or such other Specified Exercise Time) in Brussels, Luxembourg or the Local Exercise Place, if applicable, as the case may be), on the Expiration Date, may, at the discretion of the Calculation Agent, become null and void.

Notwithstanding this, if any Holder does so transfer or attempts so to transfer such Instruments, the Holder will be liable to the Issuer for any Expenses suffered or incurred by the Issuer or any of its affiliates through whom it has hedged its position, including those suffered or incurred as a consequence of the Issuer or any of its affiliates through whom it has hedged its position having terminated or commenced any related Hedge Positions in reliance on the relevant Exercise Notice and subsequently (i) entering into replacement Hedge Positions in respect of such Instruments or (ii) paying any amount on the subsequent exercise of such Instruments without having entered into any replacement Hedge Positions. A Holder exercising an Instrument shall pay all Expenses, if any, payable in connection with the exercise of the Instrument.

- (s) Receipt of Exercise Notice by Calculation Agent: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Receipt of Exercise Notice by Calculation Agent" to be applicable, then, without prejudice to General Instrument Conditions 10(q) (Effect of Exercise Notice – Euroclear/Clearstream Instruments only) and 10(r) (Effect of Exercise Notice – Euroclear France Registered Instruments, French Law Instruments, Monte Titoli Registered Instruments and CREST Registered Instruments), any Instrument in respect of which the Calculation Agent did not receive an Exercise Notice in accordance with General Instrument Condition 10(a) (Exercise Notice – Euroclear/Clearstream Instruments only) or 10(b) (Exercise Notice – Euroclear France Registered Instruments, French Law Instruments, Monte Titoli Registered Instruments, Swiss Securities and CREST Registered Instruments), as applicable, may at the discretion of the Calculation Agent, be deemed not to have been exercised.
- (t) Fractions: Where the Physical Settlement Amount would otherwise comprise, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, fractions of Deliverable Assets, a Holder will receive the Physical Settlement Amount comprising of the nearest number (rounded down) of Deliverable Assets capable of being delivered by the Issuer (provided that a Holder's entire holding may not be aggregated at the Issuer's discretion for the purpose of delivering the Physical Settlement Amount), and, if a Fractional Cash Amount is specified in the relevant Issue Terms, a Holder will also receive the Fractional Cash Amount (which may be zero) in respect of each Instrument capable of being paid by the Issuer (provided that a Holder's entire holding may not be aggregated at the Issuer's discretion for the purpose of paying the Fractional Cash Amount).

Payment of any Fractional Cash Amount shall be made by transfer by the Issuer to the account of the Principal Programme Agent whereupon the Principal Programme Agent shall transfer such amount to the account at the Relevant Clearing System specified in the relevant Exercise Notice as the account to be credited with the relevant Settlement Amount.

This General Instrument Condition 10(t) is not applicable to Nordic Registered Instruments, Euroclear France Registered Instruments, French Law Instruments, Monte Titoli Registered Instruments and CREST Registered Instruments.

- (u) Payments on Business Days: If the date specified for payment of any amount in respect of any Instrument is not a Business Day, the Holder shall not be entitled to payment of the amount due until the next succeeding Business Day and shall not be entitled to any interest or other payment in respect of any such delay.
- (v) Negative amounts: Notwithstanding anything else, in the event that any Settlement Amount, Interest Amount, Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount or any other amount payable by the Issuer in respect of an Instrument under the Conditions would otherwise be a negative amount, such amount shall be deemed to be zero.
- (w) Discharge of payment (and delivery) obligations by Issuer: The holder of a Global Instrument shall be the only person entitled to receive payments (or deliveries) in respect of Instruments represented by such Global Instrument and the Issuer's payment (or delivery) obligations under the Instruments will be discharged by payment (or delivery) to, or to the order of, the holder of such Global Instrument (being the common depositary or, as the case may be, its nominee, in respect of the Global Instrument) in respect of each amount so paid (or asset so delivered). Each of the persons shown in the records of the relevant Clearing System as the holder of a particular number (or Nominal Amount, as applicable) of Instruments must look solely to such Clearing System for its share of each payment (or delivery) made by the Issuer. No person other than the holder of such Global Instrument shall have any claim against the Issuer in respect of any payments (or deliveries) due on the Instruments represented by that Global Instrument.

11. Calculations, Determinations and Adjustments by the Calculation Agent

- (a) Calculation Agent: The Calculation Agent shall not act as an agent for the Holders but shall be the agent of the Issuer and all its calculations, determinations and adjustments hereunder (other than in relation to Swiss Securities) shall be made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, and (save in the case of manifest or proven error) shall be final and binding on the Issuer and the Holders. All calculation functions required of the Calculation Agent under these General Instrument Conditions may be delegated to any such person as the Calculation Agent, in its discretion, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, may decide. Notwithstanding anything else in these General Instrument Conditions to the contrary, in the case of French Law Instruments, any determination to be made by the Calculation Agent or the Issuer will be made in good faith and in a reasonable manner. In respect of all Swiss Securities, in all circumstances the Calculation Agent shall make such determinations and calculations in accordance with the standard of duly exercised discretion, and (save in the case of manifest or proven error) such determinations and calculations shall be final and binding on the relevant Issuer, the relevant Guarantor, the Paying Agent and the Holders.

- (c) Responsibility: None of the Issuer, the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) and the Calculation Agent shall have any responsibility for any errors or omissions in the calculation and dissemination of any variables published by a third party and used in any calculation made pursuant to these General Instrument Conditions or in the calculation of any Settlement Amount or of any Physical Settlement Amount arising from such errors or omissions.

12. Limits on the Number of Instruments Exercisable

- (a) Minimum Exercise Number: The Instruments are exercisable in the Minimum Exercise Number or integral multiples thereof (or, if a "Permitted Multiple" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms, and more than the Minimum Exercise Number is being exercised, a number equal to the sum of such Minimum Exercise Number and integral multiples of the Permitted Multiple) on any particular occasion or such lesser Minimum Exercise Number or other Permitted Multiple (or both) as the Issuer may from time to time notify the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices).
- (b) Maximum Exercise Number: If a Maximum Exercise Number is specified in the relevant Issue Terms and the Issuer determines in its absolute discretion on any Exercise Date that more than the Maximum Exercise Number of Instruments are being exercised by a single Holder or a group of Holders acting in concert, then the Issuer may deem the Exercise Date for the first Maximum Exercise Number of the Instruments exercised by such Holder or group of Holders to be such date and the Exercise Date for each additional Tranche of Maximum Exercise Number of the Instruments (or part thereof, in the case of the last Tranche) exercised by such Holder or group of Holders to be each succeeding Business Day thereafter until there shall have been an Exercise Date in respect of all such Instruments exercised by such Holder or group of Holders; provided that no such Exercise Date shall fall later than the Expiration Date. In any case where the Issuer determines that more than the Maximum Exercise Number of Instruments are so exercised on the same day by a Holder or group of Holders acting in concert, the order of settlement in respect of such Instruments shall be at the discretion of the Issuer. The Maximum Exercise Number may be waived on any occasion by the Issuer in its absolute discretion and may be amended from time to time by the Issuer by notice to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices).

13. Fixed Rate Instrument Conditions

This General Instrument Condition 13 is applicable to the Instruments only if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Fixed Rate Instrument Conditions" to be applicable.

- (a) Interest Amount: Subject as provided in these General Instrument Conditions, each Instrument pays interest from (and including) the Fixed Interest Commencement Date at the Rate of Interest payable in arrear on each Interest Payment Date (provided that each such date is subject to adjustment in accordance with the Business Day Convention, if so specified in the relevant Issue Terms). The amount payable in respect of each Instrument on each Interest Payment Date will be the Interest Amount for the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) such Interest Payment Date.
- (b) Fixed Coupon Amount: Where a Fixed Coupon Amount is specified in the relevant Issue Terms, the Interest Amount payable on an Interest Payment Date in respect of each Instrument for any Interest Period ending on (but excluding) such Interest Payment Date or the date on which such Interest Payment Date is scheduled to fall, as is applicable, shall be the Fixed Coupon Amount for such Interest Period, provided that if a Broken Amount is specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of an Interest Payment Date, the Interest Amount payable on such Interest Payment Date in respect of each Instrument shall be the Broken Amount.
- (c) Calculation of Interest Amount: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Fixed Coupon Amount" and "Deferred Interest Payments" to be not applicable, the Interest Amount payable on an Interest Payment Date in respect of each Instrument equal to the Calculation Amount for the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Payment Date, or for a period other than an Interest Period, shall be calculated by multiplying the Rate of Interest by the Calculation Amount per Instrument, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to such Interest Period, or such other period, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Instrument Condition 27 (Rounding).
- (d) Deferred Interest Payments: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Deferred Interest Payments" to be applicable and "Fixed Coupon Amount" to be not applicable, (i) the Calculation Agent shall calculate the Interest Amount in respect of each Instrument equal to the Calculation Amount per Instrument for any Interest Period, or for a period other than an Interest Period, by multiplying the Rate of Interest by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to such Interest Period, or such other period, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Instrument Condition 27 (Rounding), and (ii) the Accumulated Interest Amount shall be payable on the Interest Payment Date.
- (e) Step Up Fixed Rate Instrument Conditions: This General Instrument Condition 13(e) is applicable to Instruments only if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Step Up Fixed Rate Instrument Conditions" to be applicable. The Rate of Interest in respect of each Interest Period shall be the amount set forth in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Rate of Interest" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period.

The Interest Amount payable in respect of each Instrument on each Interest Payment Date shall be calculated in accordance with General Instrument Condition 13(c) (Calculation of Interest Amount), where the Day Count Fraction shall be applied to the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) such Interest Payment Date or the date on which such Interest Payment Date is scheduled to fall, as is applicable.

- (f) Business Day Convention: If a Business Day Convention is specified in the relevant Issue Terms and any Interest Payment Date (or other date) falls on a day which is not a Business Day, such Interest Payment Date (or such other date) will be adjusted in accordance with the Business Day Convention.
- (g) Accrual of Interest: Each Instrument will cease to accrue interest on (but excluding) the final Interest Payment Date unless payment of the Settlement Amount and/or delivery of any Physical Settlement Amount due on redemption is improperly withheld or refused by the Issuer in which case interest shall continue to accrue from the Expiration Date until the earlier of the day (i) such payment or delivery is made, as the case may be, or (ii) (if applicable) which is seven days after the Principal Programme Agent has notified the Holders that it has received all sums due in respect of the Instruments up to such seventh day (except to the extent that there is any subsequent default in payment). No interest on the Instruments shall accrue beyond the final Interest Payment Date in the event that delivery of any Physical Settlement Amount is postponed due to the occurrence of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event or otherwise as provided for in the Conditions.

- (h) Payment in respect of Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments; Swedish Paying Agent: Payments of principal and/or interest in respect of the Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments shall be made to the Euroclear Sweden Holders registered as such on the fourth business day (as defined by the then applicable Euroclear Sweden Rules) before the due date for such payment, or such other business day falling closer to the due date as then may be stipulated in the Euroclear Sweden Rules and will be made in accordance with the Euroclear Sweden Rules. Such day shall be the "Record Date" in respect of the Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments in accordance with the Euroclear Sweden Rules.
- (i) Payments in respect of VPS Registered Instruments; Norwegian Paying Agent: Payments of principal and/or interest in respect of the VPS Registered Instruments shall be made to the VPS Holders registered as such on the fourteenth calendar day before the due date for such payment, or such other business day falling closer to the due date as then may be stipulated in the VPS Rules and will be made in accordance with the VPS Rules. Such day shall be the "Record Date" in respect of the VPS Registered Instruments in accordance with the VPS Rules.
- (j) Payments of Interest and Principal in accordance with the Euroclear Finland Rules: Payments of principal and/or interest in respect of the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments shall be made to the Euroclear Finland Holders on the basis of information recorded in the relevant Euroclear Finland Holder's book-entry securities account on the first Business Day (or such other Specified Day(s)) before the due date for such payment. Such day shall be the "Record Date" in respect of the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments in accordance with the Euroclear Finland Rules. Euroclear Finland Holders will not be entitled to any interest or other compensation for any delay after the due date in receiving the amount due as a result of the due date for payment not being a Business Day.
- (k) Payments in respect of Swiss Securities: Payments of principal and/or interest in respect of Swiss Securities held through SIS or any other eligible entity, acting as custodian as defined in article 4 of the FISA shall be made, subject to applicable fiscal and other laws and regulations of SIS or such other eligible entity, acting as custodian as defined in article 4 of the FISA to the relevant Clearing System(s) or to its/their order for credit to the account(s) of the relevant account holder(s) in accordance with the Relevant Rules. The Issuer (or the Guarantor, if applicable) and the Swiss Paying Agent shall be discharged by payment to, or to the order of, such account holders.
- (l) Payments in respect of French Law Instruments: Payments of principal and/or interest (including, for the avoidance of doubt, any arrears of interest, where applicable) in respect of French Law Instruments shall be made by transfer to the account denominated in the relevant currency of the relevant Euroclear France Account Holders for the benefit of the Holders. All payments validly made to such Euroclear France Account Holders will be an effective discharge of the Issuer in respect of such payments.
- (m) Record Date: Where payment in respect of a registered Instrument is to be made by cheque, the cheque will be mailed to the address shown as the address of the Holder in the Register at the opening of business on the relevant Record Date. For Instruments in registered global form, the "Record Date" shall be the close of business (in the relevant clearing system) on the Clearing System Business Day (or such other Specified Day(s)) before the due date for payment, where the "Clearing System Business Day" means a day on which the relevant clearing system is open for business.

14. Floating Rate Instrument Conditions

- (a) Application: This General Instrument Condition 14 is applicable to the Instruments only if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" to be applicable. The Rate of Interest in respect of the Instruments and an Interest Period will be determined in accordance with Screen Rate Determination, SOFR Floating Rate Determination, SONIA Floating Rate Determination, TONA Floating Rate Determination, €STR Floating Rate Determination, ISDA Determination, or the Steepener Floating Rate Provisions, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms to be the manner in which the Rate of Interest is to be determined for such Interest Period.
- (b) Accrual of interest: The Instruments bear interest from the Floating Interest Commencement Date at the Rate of Interest payable in arrears on each Interest Payment Date. Each Instrument will cease to bear interest from the due date for final redemption unless, upon due presentation, payment of the Redemption Amount is improperly withheld or refused, in which case it will continue to bear interest in accordance with this General Instrument Condition 14 (after as well as before judgment) until whichever is the earlier of (i) the day on which all sums due in respect of such Instrument up to that day are received by or on behalf of the relevant Holder and (ii) the day which is seven days after the Principal Programme Agent has notified the Holders that it has received all sums due in respect of the Instrument up to such seventh day (except to the extent that there is any subsequent default in payment).
- (c) Screen Rate Determination: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Screen Rate Determination" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period, subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), the Rate of Interest applicable to the Instruments for such Interest Period will be determined by the Calculation Agent to be a rate equal to the Relevant Reference Rate (as defined below), and where a "Margin" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, plus or minus the Margin for such Interest Period, and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

The "Relevant Reference Rate" means, in respect of an Interest Period, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:

- (i) "Multiple Screen Rate Determination Rates" to be not applicable, the Reference Rate for such Interest Period determined in accordance with the paragraph below; or
- (ii) "Multiple Screen Rate Determination Rates" to be applicable, the Primary Reference Rate or the Secondary Reference Rate as is specified to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period.

"Primary Reference Rate" or the "Secondary Reference Rate" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period as a Reference Rate in accordance with the paragraph below where each of (where applicable) the relevant Reference Rate Currency, Interest Determination Date, Relevant Screen Page(s), Relevant Maturity, Relevant Time, Specified Time and Relevant Financial Centre shall be as specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of the Primary Reference Rate or the Secondary Reference Rate (as applicable).

The "Reference Rate" will be determined on the following basis:

- (i) the Calculation Agent will determine the Reference Rate to be the rate which appears on the specified Relevant Screen Page(s) as of the Relevant Time on the relevant Interest Determination Date;
- (ii) if such rate does not appear on at least one of the Relevant Screen Pages at or around the Relevant Time on the Interest Determination Date, then:
- (A) (save where (B) applies), the Reference Rate shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, having regard to alternative benchmarks then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). For the avoidance of doubt, the Calculation Agent may determine the relevant Reference Rate by reference to one or more of the following methods (or such other method(s) as it determines appropriate):

- (1) the Reference Rate may be determined on the basis of the relevant internally marked mid-rate (derived from externally executable bid and ask prices) of the Calculation Agent at the Specified Time on such Interest Determination Date, and applying principles that are recognized in the financial services industry for determining the value of such rate;
 - (2) the Reference Rate may be the arithmetic mean of the offered quotations that each of the Reference Banks is quoting to leading banks in the Relevant Financial Centre at the Relevant Time on the Interest Determination Date, after eliminating the highest quotation (or, in the event of equality, one of the highest) and the lowest quotation (or, in the event of equality, one of the lowest) (unless only two quotations are provided, in which case neither will be eliminated), provided that the Calculation Agent determines that at least two such Reference Banks are so quoting Reference Rates;
 - (3) the Reference Rate may be the rate formally recommended for use by the administrator of the Reference Rate or the supervisor or competent authority (or a committee endorsed or convened by any such entity) responsible for supervising the Reference Rate or the administrator thereof; and/or
 - (4) the Reference Rate may be the Reference Rate last provided or published by the relevant administrator; or
- (B) the relevant Issue Terms specify "Direct Calculation Agent Determination Fallback" to be applicable, the Reference Rate will instead be the rate determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, on the basis of the relevant internally marked mid-rate (derived from externally executable bid and ask prices) of the Calculation Agent at the Specified Time on such Interest Determination Date, and applying principles that are recognized in the financial services industry for determining the value of such rate.

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Reference Rate 0% Floor" to be applicable and the Reference Rate determined in accordance with the above would otherwise be less than zero, then such Reference Rate shall be deemed to be zero.

(d) SOFRR Floating Rate Determination

- (i) Compounded Daily SOFR - Non-Index Determination: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SOFR Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as Not Applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be Compounded Daily SOFR plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Instrument Condition 14(d), "Compounded Daily SOFR" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily Secured Overnight Financing Rate as the reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date as follows, and the resulting percentage will be rounded if necessary to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.000005 being rounded upwards:

- (A) where "Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily SOFR only compounds the SOFR Reference Rate in respect of a U.S. Government Securities Business Day. The SOFR Reference Rate applied to a day that is not a U.S. Government Securities Business Day will be taken by applying the SOFR Reference Rate for the previous U.S. Government Securities Business Day but without compounding.

"d" means:

- (i) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift) applies, the number of calendar days in the relevant SOFR Observation Period; or
- (ii) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Lag) applies, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period;

"d₀" means:

- (i) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift) applies, in respect of any SOFR Observation Period, the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days in the relevant SOFR Observation Period; or
- (ii) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Lag) applies, in respect of any Interest Period, the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a U.S. Government Securities Business Day, it means the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days plus 1 ;

"i" means:

- (i) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift) applies, a series of whole numbers from 1 to "d₀", each representing the relevant U.S. Government Securities Business Day in chronological order from, and including, the first U.S. Government Securities Business Day in the relevant SOFR Observation Period; or
- (ii) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Lag) applies, a series of whole numbers from 1 to "d₀", each representing the relevant U.S. Government Securities Business Days in chronological order from, and including, the first U.S. Government Securities Business Day in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a U.S. Government Securities Business Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d₀, where i=1 represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of i=2 to d₀ represents the relevant U.S. Government

Securities Business Day in chronological order from, and including, the first U.S. Government Securities Business Day in the Interest Period;

"n_i" for any U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i", means the number of calendar days from and including such U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following U.S. Government Securities Business Day and (b) the last day of the relevant SOFR Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable;

"p" means the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms;

"SOFR_i" means, in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i" in the SOFR Observation Period of the relevant Interest Period, the SOFR Reference Rate in respect of such day, as determined by the Calculation Agent;

"SOFR Observation Period" means in respect of each Interest Period, the period from and including the date falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the first date in such Interest Period to but excluding the date falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the Interest Period End Date in respect of the relevant Interest Period (or the date falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable);

"SOFR Reference Rate", in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day ("USBD_x"), is a rate equal to the Daily Secured Overnight Financing Rate ("SOFR") for such USBD_x as provided by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, as the administrator of such rate (or any successor administrator of such rate) on the website of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at <http://www.newyorkfed.org>, or any successor website or the website of any successor administrator for the publication of such rate (the "New York Federal Reserve's Website") (in each case, on or about 8:00 a.m., New York City time, or, if specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, on or about the Alternative SOFR Time, on the U.S. Government Securities Business Day immediately following such USBD_x) or, if the New York Federal Reserve's Website is unavailable, as otherwise published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator;

"SOFR_{i-pUSBD}" means in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i" falling in the relevant Interest Period, the SOFR Reference Rate for the U.S. Government Securities Business Day falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days prior to such U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i"; and

means $[(1 + X_1 / 360) - 1] \times [(1 + X_2 / 360) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X_{30} / 360) - 1]$.

If in respect of any relevant determination date a SOFR value has not been provided or published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator (or any successor administrator) or authorised distributor, or the relevant website is not available, the relevant SOFR value will be the last provided or published value for SOFR as applicable prior to the day on which the SOFR value is required. If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SOFR value in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SOFR value, which would have prevailed on such day, the SOFR value in respect of the relevant determination date shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

- (ii) Compounded Daily SOFR - Index Determination: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SOFR Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be calculated by reference to the following formula and based on the SOFR Index (as defined below) (the "SOFR Compounded Index") and the resulting percentage will be rounded if necessary to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.000005 being rounded upwards. Such Rate of Interest shall be plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period:

"d_c" is the number of calendar days from (and including) the day in relation to which SOFR Index_{Start} is determined to (but excluding) the day in relation to which SOFR Index_{End} is determined;

"Relevant Number" is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms;

"SOFR Index" means, in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day, the SOFR Compounded Index value as published by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, as the administrator of such index (or any successor administrator of such index) as such index appears on the website of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at <http://www.newyorkfed.org>, or any successor website or the website of any successor administrator for the publication of such index at 8:00 a.m. New York City time;

"SOFR Index_{End}" is the SOFR Index value for the day which is the Relevant Number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the Interest Period End Date for the relevant Interest Period; and

"SOFR Index_{Start}" is the SOFR Index value for the day which is the Relevant Number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the first date of the relevant Interest Period.

If in respect of any relevant determination date a SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, has not been provided or published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator (or any successor administrator) or authorised distributor, or the relevant website is not available, the relevant SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, will be the last provided or published value for the SOFR or SOFR Index as applicable prior to the day on which the SOFR or SOFR Index value is required. If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, in accordance with the preceding sentence or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, which would have prevailed on such day, the SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, in respect of the relevant determination date shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

- (e) SONIA Floating Rate Determination

- (i) Compounded Daily SONIA - Non-Index Determination: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SONIA Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as Not Applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be Compounded Daily SONIA as determined in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Instrument Condition 14(e)(i), "Compounded Daily SONIA" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily Sterling Overnight Index Average as reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one ten-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.00005 being rounded upwards):

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily SONIA only compounds the SONIA rate in respect of a London Banking Day. The SONIA rate applied to a day that is not a London Banking Day will be taken by applying the SONIA rate for the previous London Banking Day but without compounding.

"d" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period.

"d₀" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of London Banking Days in the relevant Observation Period; and is not a London Banking Day, it means the number of London Banking Days plus 1.
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of London Banking Days in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period

"i" means a series of whole numbers from one to d_0 , each representing the relevant London Banking Day in chronological order:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first London Banking Day in the relevant Observation Period to, and including, the last London Banking Day in such Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first London Banking Day in the relevant Interest Period to, and including, the last London Banking Day in such Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a London Banking Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d_0 , where $i=1$ represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of $i=2$ to d_0 represents the relevant London Banking Day in chronological order from, and including, the first London Banking Day in the Interest Period.

"n_i" for any London Banking Day "i", means the number of calendar days from, and including, such London Banking Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following London Banking Day and (b) the last day of the relevant Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable.

"Observation Period" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the period from, and including, the date falling "p" London Banking Days prior to the first day of such Interest Period and ending on, but excluding, the date falling "p" London Banking Days prior to the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Period (or the date falling "p" London Banking Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable).

"p" means the number of London Banking Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

"SONIA_i" or "SONIA rate" in respect of any London Banking Day "i", in the relevant Observation Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily Sterling Overnight Index Average (SONIA) rate for such London Banking Day as provided by the administrator of SONIA to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the London Banking Day immediately following such London Banking Day).

"SONIA_{i-pLBD}" in respect of any London Banking Day "i", in the relevant Interest Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily Sterling Overnight Index Average (SONIA) rate for the London Banking Day falling "p" London Banking Days prior to such London Banking Day "i" as provided by the administrator of SONIA to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the London Banking Day immediately following the London Banking Day falling "p" London Banking Days prior to such London Banking Day "i").

means $[(1 + X_1 / 365) - 1] \times [(1 + X_2 / 365) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X_{30} / 365) - 1]$.

If, in respect of any relevant London Banking Day, the Calculation Agent determines that the SONIA rate is not available on the Relevant Screen Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors, the Calculation Agent will determine such SONIA rate as being the SONIA rate published on the Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding London Banking Day on which the SONIA rate was published on such Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors). If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SONIA rate in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SONIA rate which would have prevailed on such day, the SONIA rate in respect of the relevant London Banking Day shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

- (ii) Compounded Daily SONIA - Index Determination: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SONIA Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be calculated by reference to the screen rate or index administered by the administrator of the Sterling Overnight Index Average reference rate that is published or displayed by such administrator or other information service from time to time at the relevant time on the relevant determination dates specified below (the "SONIA Compounded Index") and the following formula (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one ten-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.00005 being rounded upwards). Such Rate of Interest will be plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period:

"d" is the number of calendar days from (and including) the day in relation to which "x" is determined to (but excluding) the day in relation to which "y" is determined;

"Relevant Number" is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms;

"x" denotes the value of the relevant SONIA Compounded Index determined in relation to the day falling the Relevant Number of London Banking Days prior to the first day of the relevant Interest Period; and

"y" denotes the value of the relevant SONIA Compounded Index determined in relation to the day falling the Relevant Number of London Banking Days prior to the Interest Period End Date of the relevant Interest Period.

If in respect of any relevant determination date a SONIA Compounded Index value has not been provided or published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator (or any successor administrator) or authorised distributors or the relevant website is not available, the relevant SONIA Compounded Index value will be the last such value provided for the SONIA Compounded Index. If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SONIA Compounded Index value in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SONIA Compounded Index value which would have prevailed on such day, the SONIA Compounded Index value in respect of the relevant determination date shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

(f) TONA Floating Rate Determination

Compounded Daily TONA: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where TONA Floating Rate Determination is specified in the relevant Issue Terms as the manner in which the Rate of Interest is to be determined, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall be Compounded Daily TONA as determined in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Instrument Condition 14(f), "Compounded Daily TONA" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily Tokyo Overnight Average Rate as reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.000005 per cent. being rounded upwards):

- (1) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

- (2) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily TONA only compounds the TONA rate in respect of any Tokyo Banking Day. The TONA rate applied to a day that is not a Tokyo Banking Day will be taken by applying the TONA rate for the previous Tokyo Banking Day but without compounding.

"d_b" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of Tokyo Banking Days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of Tokyo Banking Days in the relevant Interest Period except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a Tokyo Banking Day, it means the number of Tokyo Banking Days plus 1.

"i" means a series of whole numbers from one to d_b, each representing the relevant Tokyo Banking Day in chronological order:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first Tokyo Banking Day in the relevant Observation Period to, and including, the last Tokyo Banking Day in such Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first Tokyo Banking Day in the relevant Interest Period to, and including, the last Tokyo Banking Day in such Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a Tokyo Banking Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d_b , where $i=1$ represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of $i=2$ to d_b represents the relevant Tokyo Banking Day in chronological order from, and including, the first Tokyo Banking Day in the Interest Period.

" n_i " for any Tokyo Banking Day "i", means the number of calendar days from, and including, such Tokyo Banking Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following Tokyo Banking Day and (b) the last day of the relevant Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable.

"Observation Period" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the period from, and including, the date falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to the first day of such Interest Period and ending on, but excluding, the date falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Period (or the date falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable).

"p" means the number of Tokyo Banking Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

" $tn_{a,b}$ " means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period.

"Tokyo Banking Day" means any calendar day (other than a Saturday and Sunday) on which commercial banks are open for general business (including dealings in foreign exchange and foreign currency deposits) in Tokyo.

"TONA" means the Tokyo Overnight Average Rate (TONA) administered by the Bank of Japan (or any successor administrator).

"TONA_i" or "TONA rate" in respect of any Tokyo Banking Day "i", in the relevant Observation Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily TONA for such Tokyo Banking Day, as provided by the administrator of TONA to authorised distributors of TONA and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the Tokyo Banking Day immediately following such Tokyo Banking Day).

"TONA_{i-pTBD}" in respect of any Tokyo Banking Day "i", in the relevant Interest Period, means a reference rate equal to TONA for the Tokyo Banking Day falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to such Tokyo Banking Day "i" as provided by the administrator of TONA to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the Tokyo Banking Day immediately following the Tokyo Banking Day falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to such Tokyo Banking Day "i").

means $[(1 + X1 / 365) - 1] \times [(1 + X2 / 365) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X30 / 365) - 1]$.

If, in respect of any relevant Tokyo Banking Day, the Calculation Agent determines that the TONA rate is not available on the Relevant Screen Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors, the Calculation Agent will determine such TONA rate as being the TONA rate published on the Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding Tokyo Banking Day on which the TONA rate was published on such Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors). If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the TONA rate in accordance with the preceding sentence or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the TONA rate which would have prevailed on such day, the TONA rate in respect of the relevant Tokyo Banking Day shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

(g) €STR Floating Rate Determination

Compounded Daily €STR: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where €STR Floating Rate Determination is specified in the relevant Issue Terms as applicable, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall be Compounded Daily €STR plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Instrument Condition 14(g), "Compounded Daily €STR" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily euro short-term rate as reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one ten-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.00005 being rounded upwards):

- (1) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

- (2) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily €STR only compounds the €STR rate in respect of a TARGET Settlement Day. The €STR reference rate applied to a day that is not a TARGET Settlement Day will be taken by applying the €STR reference rate for the previous TARGET Settlement Day but without compounding.

"d" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period.

"d₀" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of TARGET Settlement Days in the relevant Observation Period; and

- (ii) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of TARGET Settlement Days in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a TARGET Settlement Day, it means the number of TARGET Settlement Days plus 1.

"i" means a series of whole numbers from one to d_0 , each representing the relevant TARGET Settlement Day in chronological order:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first TARGET Settlement Day in the relevant Observation Period to, and including, the last TARGET Settlement Day in such Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first TARGET Settlement Day in the relevant Interest Period to, and including, the last TARGET Settlement Day in such Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a TARGET Settlement Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d_0 , where $i=1$ represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of $i=2$ to d_0 represents the relevant TARGET Settlement Day in chronological order from, and including, the first TARGET Settlement Day in the Interest Period.

" n_i " for any TARGET Settlement Day "i", means the number of calendar days from, and including, such TARGET Settlement Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following TARGET Settlement Day and (b) the last day of the relevant Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable.

"Observation Period" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the period from, and including, the date falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to the first day of such Interest Period and ending on, but excluding, the date falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Period (or the date falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable).

"p" means the number of TARGET Settlement Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

"€STR_i" or "€STR rate" in respect of any TARGET Settlement Day "i", in the relevant Observation Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily euro short-term rate ("€STR") for such TARGET Settlement Day as provided by the administrator of €STR to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the TARGET Settlement Day immediately following such TARGET Settlement Day).

"€STR_{i-pTSD}" in respect of any TARGET Settlement Day "i", in the relevant Interest Period, means a reference rate equal to €STR for the TARGET Settlement Day falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to such TARGET Settlement Day "i" as provided by the administrator of €STR to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the TARGET Settlement Day immediately following the TARGET Settlement Day falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to such TARGET Settlement Day "i").

" $\prod_{i=1}^n$ "" means the product of the relevant factors up to the amount of n. For example,

means $[(1 + X1 / 360) - 1] \times [(1 + X2 / 360) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X30 / 360) - 1]$.

If, in respect of any relevant TARGET Settlement Day, the Calculation Agent determines that the €STR rate is not available on the Relevant Screen Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors, the Calculation Agent will determine such €STR rate as being the €STR rate published on the Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding TARGET Settlement Day on which the €STR rate was published on such Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors). If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the €STR rate in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the €STR rate which would have prevailed on such day, the €STR rate in respect of the relevant TARGET Settlement Day shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

(h) ISDA Determination: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), if the relevant Issue Terms specify "ISDA Determination" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period, the Rate of Interest applicable to the Instruments for such Interest Period will be determined by the Calculation Agent as a rate equal to the Relevant ISDA Rate (as defined below), and where a "Margin" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, plus or minus the Margin for such Interest Period, and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period. The "Relevant ISDA Rate" means, in respect of an Interest Period, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:

- (i) "Multiple ISDA Determination Rates" to be not applicable, the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period determined in accordance with the paragraph below; or
- (ii) "Multiple ISDA Determination Rates" to be applicable, the Primary ISDA Rate or the Secondary ISDA Rate as is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms.

The "Primary ISDA Rate" or the "Secondary ISDA Rate" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period as an ISDA Rate in accordance with the paragraph below where the relevant Floating Rate Option, Designated Maturity (if applicable), compounding or averaging method (if applicable), and Reset Date shall be specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of the Primary ISDA Rate or the Secondary ISDA Rate (as applicable).

The "ISDA Rate" in relation to any Interest Period means a rate equal to the Floating Rate (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) that would be determined by the Calculation Agent under an interest rate swap transaction if the Calculation Agent were acting as Calculation Agent for that interest rate swap transaction under the terms of an ISDA 2002 Master Agreement incorporating the ISDA Definitions and under which:

- (i) the Floating Rate Option (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, provided that if a "Non-Standard ISDA Rate Lag" is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, then any provisions in the Floating Rate Option that specify the relevant day preceding a Reset Date on which a screen rate is to be observed or dealer poll or other method of valuation to be undertaken shall be deemed to be amended and replaced by the "Non-Standard ISDA Rate Lag Specified Day" specified in the relevant Issue Terms;
- (ii) the Designated Maturity (as defined in the ISDA Definitions), if applicable, is the period specified in the relevant Issue Terms;
- (iii) the Overnight Rate Compounding Method or Overnight Rate Averaging Method (each, as defined in the 2021 Definitions), if any and as applicable, is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, and the relevant number of Applicable Business Days (for Compounding with Lookback or Averaging with Lookback) or Observation Period Shift Business Days (for Compounding with Observation Period Shift or Averaging with Observation Period Shift) is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms; and

- (iv) the relevant Reset Date (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) is the last day of that Interest Period, unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms, provided that if, prior to:

- (A) the occurrence of an Index Cessation Effective Date (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) in respect of the ISDA Rate; and
- (B) the occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date (as defined in the 2021 Definitions); and
- (C) the application of any provision relating to discontinued rates maturities (as described in the ISDA Definitions),

the Calculation Agent determines that such ISDA Rate cannot be determined in accordance with the ISDA Definitions read with the above provisions and the provisions of the ISDA Determination Schedule, the ISDA Rate for an Interest Period shall be such rate as is determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to comparable benchmarks then available.

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "ISDA Rate 0% Floor" to be applicable and the ISDA Rate in relation to any Interest Period determined in accordance with the above would otherwise be less than zero, then such ISDA Rate shall be deemed to be zero.

- (i) Steeper Floating Rate Provisions: Subject to General Instrument Condition 14(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Instrument Condition 14(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Steeper Floating Rate Provisions" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest applicable to the Instruments for such Interest Period will be determined by the Calculation Agent as a rate equal to the Steeper Rate, and where a "Margin" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, plus or minus the Margin for such Interest Period, and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period. The "Steeper Rate" means, in respect of an Interest Period, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:

- (i) "ISDA Determination Steeper Rates" to be applicable and:
 - (A) "Multiple Steeper Rates" to be not applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between ISDA Rate 1 minus ISDA Rate 2; or
 - (B) "Multiple Steeper Rates" to be applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:
 - (I) "Steeper Rate 1" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, ISDA Rate 1 minus ISDA Rate 2; or
 - (II) "Steeper Rate 2" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, ISDA Rate 3 minus ISDA Rate 4.

Each of "ISDA Rate 1", "ISDA Rate 2", "ISDA Rate 3" and "ISDA Rate 4" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14(h) (ISDA Determination) above as an ISDA Rate where the relevant Floating Rate Option, Designated Maturity, if applicable, compounding or averaging method, if applicable, and Reset Date shall be specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of ISDA Rate 1, ISDA Rate 2, ISDA Rate 3 or ISDA Rate 4 (as applicable) provided that, if: (i) an ISDA Rate 1 Cap or an ISDA Rate 1 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 1 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 1 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 1 Floor (as applicable), (ii) an ISDA Rate 2 Cap or an ISDA Rate 2

Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 2 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 2 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 2 Floor (as applicable), (iii) an ISDA Rate 3 Cap or an ISDA Rate 3 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 3 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 3 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 3 Floor (as applicable), or (iv) an ISDA Rate 4 Cap or an ISDA Rate 4 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 4 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 4 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 4 Floor (as applicable); or

- (ii) "Screen Rate Determination Steepener Rates" to be applicable, and:
 - (A) "Multiple Steepener Rates" to be not applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between Reference Rate 1 minus Reference Rate 2; or
 - (B) "Multiple Steepener Rates" to be applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:
 - (I) "Steepener Rate 1" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, Reference Rate 1 minus Reference Rate 2; or
 - (II) "Steepener Rate 2" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, Reference Rate 3 minus Reference Rate 4.

Each of "Reference Rate 1", "Reference Rate 2", "Reference Rate 3" and "Reference Rate 4" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14(c) (Screen Rate Determination) above as a Reference Rate where each of (where applicable) the relevant Reference Rate Currency, Interest Determination Date, Relevant Screen Page(s), Relevant Maturity, Relevant Time, Specified Time, Relevant Financial Centre, and the applicability of the Direct Calculation Agent Determination Fallback, shall be specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of Reference Rate 1, Reference Rate 2, Reference Rate 3 or Reference Rate 4 (as applicable) provided that, if: (i) a Reference Rate 1 Cap or a Reference Rate 1 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 1 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 1 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 1 Floor (as applicable), (ii) a Reference Rate 2 Cap or a Reference Rate 2 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 2 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 2 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 2 Floor (as applicable), (iii) a Reference Rate 3 Cap or a Reference Rate 3 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 3 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 3 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 3 Floor (as applicable), or (iv) a Reference Rate 4 Cap or a Reference Rate 4 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 4 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 4 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 4 Floor (as applicable).

- (j) Maximum or Minimum Rate of Interest: If: (i) any Maximum Rate of Interest is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Maximum Rate of Interest for such Interest Period, or (ii) any Minimum Rate of Interest is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period shall not be less than the Minimum Rate of Interest for such Interest Period, or (iii) a Maximum Rate of Interest and a Minimum Rate of Interest is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period shall not be less than the Minimum Rate of Interest and shall not be greater than the Maximum Rate of Interest for such Interest Period.

(k) Capped Floored Floating Rate Instrument Conditions: This General Instrument Condition 14(k) is applicable to Instruments only if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Capped Floored Floating Rate Instrument Conditions" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period.

- (i) If the relevant Issue Terms specify a Minimum Rate of Interest for an Interest Period, if the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period determined in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14(c), General Instrument Condition 14(d) or General Instrument Condition 14(j) is less than such Minimum Rate of Interest, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period shall be such Minimum Rate of Interest. If Minimum Rate of Interest is specified to be not applicable, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period will not be subject to any minimum amount.
- (ii) If the relevant Issue Terms specify a Maximum Rate of Interest for an Interest Period, if the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period determined in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14(c), General Instrument Condition 14(d) or General Instrument Condition 14(j) is greater than such Maximum Rate of Interest, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period shall be such Maximum Rate of Interest. If Maximum Rate of Interest is specified to be not applicable, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period will not be subject to any maximum amount.

(l) Original Primary Rate Cessation:

- (i) If the Calculation Agent determines, in its discretion and acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, that an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and its related Original Primary Rate Cessation Date have occurred or are existing on any day in respect of (i) an Original Primary Rate or, (ii) where the Original Primary Rate is a compounded rate of an RFR (as determined by the Calculation Agent), the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR, in each case in respect of the Securities (such affected rate, a "Discontinued Original Primary Rate"), the Calculation Agent shall determine the Rate of Interest for the relevant Interest Period (or relevant day, as applicable) in respect of such Securities in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, after consulting any source it deems to be reasonable, as:
 - (A) a substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source that it has determined is the industry-accepted standard in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source for the Discontinued Original Primary Rate; or
 - (B) if it determines that there is no such industry-accepted standard in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source, then a substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source that it determines is a commercially reasonable alternative to the Discontinued Original Primary Rate, taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market), in each case provided that (i) any such substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source determined in accordance with (A) or (B) above (as applicable) (the "Replacement Primary Rate"), may (without limitation) comprise a replacement rate, index, benchmark or other price source, which is determined on a backward-looking compounding basis by reference to a "risk-free rate", (ii) there may be more than one Replacement Primary Rates (which may be applied as of one or more effective dates), (iii) the Rate of Interest may include an adjustment factor or Adjustment Spread and (iv) the Conditions may be subject to adjustment pursuant to the paragraph immediately below.

If the Calculation Agent determines the Rate of Interest in accordance with this General Instrument Condition 14(l)(i), it may make such adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Securities to account for such change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest, including (but not limited to) any such adjustment(s) that the Calculation Agent determines are required in order to reduce or eliminate, to the extent reasonably practicable, any change in the economic value of the Securities from such change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest. Any such adjustment(s) which the Calculation Agent determines to be appropriate (1) shall be made to the extent reasonably practicable, but also taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market), (2) may include an adjustment factor and/or Adjustment Spread (which may be positive or negative) together with any technical, administrative or operational changes, and (3) may be applied on more than one occasion and may be made as of one or more effective dates.

- (ii) If the Calculation Agent determines that the application of General Instrument Condition 14(l)(i) would not achieve a commercially reasonable result (because it is not possible or commercially reasonable to identify a Replacement Primary Rate, or relevant adjustments or for any other reason) and/or is or would likely be unlawful at any time under any applicable law or regulation or it would contravene any applicable licensing requirements to determine the Rate of Interest in accordance with the terms of such provisions, the Calculation Agent may determine that the Securities shall be redeemed, in which event the Issuer will cause to be paid to each Holder in respect of each Security held by it an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount.
- (iii) The Calculation Agent shall deliver a notice to the Holders as soon as practicable in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices), which shall specify any Replacement Primary Rate(s) and any related amendments to the Conditions.

Neither the Calculation Agent nor any of the Issuer, the Guarantor (if any) or any of the other Agents shall have any duty to monitor, enquire or satisfy itself as to whether any Original Primary Rate Cessation Event or Original Primary Rate Cessation Date has occurred.

- (m) Administrator/Benchmark Event: if the Calculation Agent determines that an Administrator/Benchmark Event and its related Administrator/Benchmark Event Date have occurred or are existing on any day in respect of any Securities and a Relevant Benchmark, the Calculation Agent may:
 - (i) make such adjustment to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the economic effect on the Securities of such Administrator/Benchmark Event (including without limitation, to select a successor Relevant Benchmark) and any adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Securities to account for such replacement and/or change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest, including (but not limited to) any such adjustment(s) that the Calculation Agent determines are required in order to reduce or eliminate, to the extent reasonably practicable, any change in the economic value of the Securities from such replacement and/or change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest; or
 - (ii) determine that the Securities shall be redeemed, in which event the Issuer shall redeem the Instruments on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) and pay to the Holder in respect of each Instrument the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day.

Notwithstanding anything else in this General Instrument Condition 14(m), in the event that the Administrator/Benchmark Event comprises a Material Methodology Change Event, the Calculation Agent may determine not to undertake any or all of the actions described in this General Instrument Condition 14(m).

Neither the Calculation Agent nor any of the Issuer, the Guarantor (if any) or any of the other Agents shall have any duty to monitor, enquire or satisfy itself as to whether an Administrator/Benchmark Event or Administrator/Benchmark Event Date has occurred.

- (n) Interim measures: If, at any time, following (i) an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date but prior to any replacement or amendment having become effective pursuant to General Instrument Condition 14(l) above, or (ii) the occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date but prior to any adjustment and/or redemption and/or cancellation and/or any other action the Issuer may take under General Instrument Condition 14(m) above taking effect, the relevant Original Primary Rate is required for any determination in respect of the Securities, then:
- (i) if the Original Primary Rate is still available, and it is still permitted under applicable law or regulation for the Securities to reference the Original Primary Rate and for the Issuer and/or the Calculation Agent to use the Original Primary Rate to perform its or their respective obligations under the Securities, the level of the Original Primary Rate shall be determined pursuant to the terms that would apply to the determination of the Original Primary Rate as if no Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or Administrator/Benchmark Event Date (as applicable) had occurred; or
 - (ii) if the Original Primary Rate is no longer available or it is no longer permitted under applicable law or regulation applicable to the Issuer and/or to the Calculation Agent (as applicable) for the Securities to reference the Original Primary Rate or for any such entity to use the Original Primary Rate to perform its or their respective obligations under the Securities, the level of the Original Primary Rate shall be determined by the Calculation Agent acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to such sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market), as (a) a substitute or successor rate that it has determined is the industry-accepted (in the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate for the relevant Original Primary Rate or (b) if it determines there is no such industry-accepted (in the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate, a substitute or successor rate that it determines is a commercially reasonable alternative to the Original Primary Rate, taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). If such Original Primary Rate is determined as any such substituted or successor rate, the Calculation Agent may determine such other amendments to the Securities which it considers are necessary and/or appropriate in order to reflect the replacement of the Original Primary Rate with such substituted or successor rate. If the Calculation Agent determines the Original Primary Rate in accordance with this sub-paragraph, the Calculation Agent shall notify the Issuer of such determination made by it and the action that it proposes to take in respect of any such determination and the Issuer, in turn, shall notify the Holders thereof as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter.
- (o) Hierarchy if both an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and an Administrator/Benchmark Event occur: If the Calculation Agent determines that an event constitutes both an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and an Administrator/Benchmark Event, then it will be deemed to be an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and not an Administrator/Benchmark Event, provided that if an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date has not occurred before the Original Primary Rate Cessation Date occurs, then General Instrument Condition 14(n) (Interim measures) above shall apply as if an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date had occurred.
- (p) Corrections to Published and Displayed Rates: In the event that (i) the Original Primary Rate determined in accordance with this General Instrument Condition 14 (Floating Rate Instrument Conditions) or, (ii) where the relevant Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR, the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR, is subsequently corrected, and the correction (the "Corrected Rate") is published after the original publication but no later than the longer of (a) one hour after such original publication and (b) any other period for corrections specified by a relevant administrator in its methodology for the relevant Original Primary Rate (or, where the Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR, the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR), then, provided that such Corrected Rate is published on or prior to the date falling two Business Days prior to the date on which a related payment is scheduled to be made under the Securities (the "Relevant Scheduled Payment Date"), such Corrected Rate shall be deemed to be the relevant Original Primary Rate (or where the Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR, the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR) and the Calculation Agent shall use such Corrected Rate in determining the relevant Rate of Interest and related Interest Amount. Any corrections published after the second Business Day prior to the Relevant Scheduled Payment Date shall be disregarded for the purposes of determining the relevant Rate of Interest.

- (q) Calculation of Interest Amount: If "Deferred Interest Payments" is specified to be not applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the Calculation Agent will, as soon as practicable after the time at which the Rate of Interest is to be determined in relation to each Interest Period, calculate the Interest Amount payable on an Interest Payment Date in respect of each nominal amount of each Instrument equal to the Calculation Amount for the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Payment Date. The Interest Amount will be calculated by multiplying the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to such Interest Period, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Instrument Condition 27 (Rounding).
- (r) Deferred Interest Payments: If "Deferred Interest Payments" is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, (i) the Calculation Agent will, as soon as practicable after the time at which the Rate of Interest is to be determined in relation to each Interest Period, calculate the Interest Amount in respect of each nominal amount of each Instrument equal to the Calculation Amount for such Interest Period, and (ii) the Accumulated Interest Amount shall be payable on the Interest Payment Date. The Interest Amount for each Interest Period will be calculated by multiplying the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) the relevant Interest Period End Date, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Instrument Condition 27 (Rounding).
- (s) Calculation of other amounts: In respect of any other amount referred to in the Conditions which is to be calculated by the Calculation Agent, the Calculation Agent will, as soon as practicable after the time or times at which any such amount is to be determined, calculate the relevant amount in accordance with the Conditions.
- (t) Publication: The Calculation Agent will cause each Rate of Interest and Interest Amount determined by it, together with the relevant Interest Payment Date, and any other amount(s) required to be determined by it together with any relevant payment date(s) to be notified to the Paying Agents and, if required by each competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system (if any) to which the Instruments have then been admitted to listing, trading and/or quotation, to such competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system (if any) as soon as practicable after such determination. Notice thereof shall also promptly be given to the Holders. The Calculation Agent will be entitled to recalculate any Interest Amount (on the basis of the foregoing provisions) without notice in the event of an extension or shortening of the relevant Interest Period. If the Calculation Amount is less than the minimum Nominal Amount the Calculation Agent shall not be obliged to publish each Interest Amount but instead may publish only the Calculation Amount and the Interest Amount in respect of an Instrument having the minimum Nominal Amount.

15. Change of Interest Basis

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Change of Interest Basis" to be applicable, the Rate of Interest applicable to an Interest Period shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with the Interest Basis set forth in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Interest Basis" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period.

Where the Interest Basis applicable to an Interest Period is: (i) "Fixed Coupon", the Rate of Interest shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with General Instrument Condition 13 (Fixed Rate Instrument Conditions) or (ii) "Floating Coupon", the Rate of Interest shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14 (Floating Rate Instrument Conditions).

16. Consequences of an FX Disruption Event, a CNY FX Disruption Event or a Currency Conversion Disruption Event

- (a) FX Disruption Event: Unless the relevant Issue Terms specify that "FX Disruption Event" is not applicable to the Instruments, if the Calculation Agent has determined that an FX Disruption Event has occurred and is continuing, the Issuer may (i) postpone any payment obligation under the Instruments by up to 30 calendar days, and/or (ii) satisfy its obligation to make the payment in the Settlement Currency by making the payment in U.S. dollars, on the basis of the exchange rate determined by the Calculation Agent, in its discretion, and/or (iii) make commercially reasonable adjustments to the Conditions of the Instruments, taking into account the circumstances leading to the FX Disruption Event.
- (b) Postponement or Payment in USD: If the Calculation Agent has determined that (1) a CNY FX Disruption Event or a Currency Conversion Disruption Event, as the case may be, has occurred and is continuing and (2) such CNY FX Disruption Event or Currency Conversion Disruption Event, as the case may be, is material in relation to the Issuer's payment obligations under the Instruments (including in relation to the Issuer's hedge position under the Instruments) in respect of any forthcoming Interest Payment Date, Maturity Date or other date on which amounts are payable under the Instruments by the Issuer under the Conditions (each such date, an "Affected Payment Date"), then:
- (i) if the relevant Issue Terms specify that "Currency Conversion Disruption Event" is applicable to the Instruments, the Affected Payment Date shall be postponed until the earlier of (A) the Adjusted Affected Payment Date and (B) the Affected Payment Cut-off Date. The amount payable on such postponed date shall not be adjusted from the amount originally payable; or
- (ii) if the relevant Issue Terms specifies that "CNY FX Disruption Event" is applicable to the Instruments, then the Issuer may, on giving not less than five days' and not more than 30 days' irrevocable notice to Holders prior to the relevant Affected Payment Date, make payment (in whole or in part) of the USD Equivalent Amount of the relevant Interest Amount, Settlement Amount or other amount payable (if applicable) on the relevant Affected Payment Date in full and final settlement of its obligations to pay such Interest Amount, Settlement Amount or other amount in respect of the Instruments.
- (c) Payment of USD Equivalent Amount: In the event that, pursuant to paragraph (b)(i) above, an Affected Payment Date is adjusted to fall on the Affected Payment Cut-off Date (and the Calculation Agent determines a Currency Conversion Disruption Event exists or is continuing on the FX Disruption Event Cut-off Date), then the Issuer may, by giving notice to Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices), elect to make payment (in whole or in part) of the USD Equivalent Amount of the relevant Interest Amount, Settlement Amount or other amount payable (if applicable) on the relevant Affected Payment Cut-off Date in full and final settlement of its obligations to pay such Interest Amount, Settlement Amount or other amount in respect of the Instruments.
- (d) Priorities: If the Calculation Agent determines a CNY FX Disruption Event or Currency Conversion Disruption Event, as the case may be, coincides with a Market Disruption Event (as defined in the Share Linked Conditions and the Index Linked Conditions), a Disruption Event (as defined in the Commodity Linked Conditions), a Fund Market Disruption Event (as defined in the Fund Linked Conditions) or a Physical Settlement Disruption Event (as determined by the Calculation Agent) or any postponement (if applicable, as determined by the Calculation Agent) under the Credit Linked Conditions, as the case may be, the provisions of this General Instrument Condition 16 shall take effect only after such postponements or adjustments have been made as a result of such Market Disruption Event, Disruption Event, Fund Market Disruption Event, Physical Settlement Disruption Event in accordance with the Share Linked Conditions, the Index Linked Conditions, the Commodity Linked Conditions or General Instrument Condition 9(g) (Settlement Disruption) or the Credit Linked Conditions, as applicable, and, notwithstanding the provisions of the Share Linked Conditions, the Index Linked Conditions, the Commodity Linked Conditions, the Fund Linked Conditions or General Instrument Condition 9(g) (Settlement Disruption) or the Credit Linked Conditions, as the case may be, the Issuer's payment obligation of the Settlement Amount shall continue to be postponed or varied in accordance with the provisions of this General Instrument Condition 16.

17. Automatic Early Exercise

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Automatic Early Exercise" to be applicable, if the Calculation Agent determines that an Automatic Early Exercise Event has occurred in respect of an Applicable Date, then the Instruments shall for all purposes be treated as being "Automatic Exercise Instruments", and the Expiration Date shall for all purposes be treated as being such Applicable Date. The Instruments will thereby be exercised on such Applicable Date, and each Holder shall be entitled to receive from the Issuer on the Automatic Early Exercise Date the Automatic Early Exercise Amount in respect of each Instrument.

18. Optional Early Redemption

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Redemption at the option of the Issuer" to be applicable, all of the Instruments may be redeemed at the option of the Issuer (such option, the "Call Option") on any Optional Redemption Date (Call) by the Issuer giving notice (such notice, the "Call Option Notice") to the Holders of the Instruments of the relevant Series on or before the Call Option Notice Date corresponding to such Optional Redemption Date (Call). The notice shall be irrevocable and shall oblige the Issuer to redeem the Instruments on the relevant Optional Redemption Date (Call) by payment of the Optional Redemption Amount (Call) corresponding to such Optional Redemption Date (Call) in respect of each Instrument and where the relevant Issue Terms specify "Accrued interest payable", plus accrued interest (if any) to such date, as calculated by the Calculation Agent. In the case of Instruments held or cleared through Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, such notice shall not be less than five Business Days (or such other period of time as may be provided by any applicable rules of Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg) and in the case of Instruments not held or cleared through Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, such notice shall be given in accordance with any applicable rules of the relevant Clearing System.

19. Redemption following an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or Administrator/Benchmark Event Date

If, following the occurrence of (i) an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or (ii) an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date:

- (i) the Calculation Agent determines that it cannot identify a Replacement Primary Rate or determine an Adjustment Spread in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14(l) on or before the Cut-off Date;
- (ii) it (A) is or would be unlawful at any time under any applicable law or regulation; or (B) would contravene any applicable licensing requirements, for the Calculation Agent to perform the actions prescribed in General Instrument Condition 14(l) (or it would be unlawful or would contravene those licensing requirements were a determination to be made at such time);
- (iii) the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Spread is or would be a benchmark, index or other price source whose production, publication, methodology or governance would subject either the Issuer or the Calculation Agent to material additional regulatory obligations (such as the obligations for administrators under the EU Benchmarks Regulation) which it is unwilling to undertake; or
- (iv) the Calculation Agent determines that having identified a Replacement Primary Rate and determined an Adjustment Spread on or before the Cut-off Date in accordance with General Instrument Condition 14(l), the adjustments provided for in General Instrument Condition 14(l) would not achieve a commercially reasonable result for either the Issuer, Calculation Agent or the Holders, then the Issuer shall redeem the Instruments on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 22 and pay to the Holder, in respect of each Instrument, the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day.

20. Change in law

At any time following the occurrence of a Change in Law Event, the Issuer shall have the right to (i) redeem the Instruments on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) and will, if and to the extent permitted by applicable law, pay to the Holder in respect of each Instrument the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day; or (ii) determine the appropriate adjustment, if any, to be made to any one or more of the terms of the Instruments, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under such Conditions applicable to the Instruments, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the Change in Law Event, and determine the effective date of that adjustment.

A "Change in Law Event" shall be deemed to have occurred upon the Issuer becoming aware of (i) the adoption or announcement of, or any change in, any relevant law, rule, regulation, judgment, order, sanction, directive, designation or procedure of any governmental, administrative, legislative or judicial authority or power (including any tax law and any Sanction Rules as if applicable to the Issuer and each of its affiliates in relation to the Securities and/or any related Hedge Positions) ("applicable law"), or (ii) the promulgation of, or any change in, the formal or informal interpretation by a court, tribunal, governmental, administrative, legislative, regulatory or judicial authority or power with competent jurisdiction (including, without limitation, taxing authority) or any relevant exchange or Relevant Clearing System of any applicable law or regulation or rule or requirement (including any tax law or rule or requirement), which has the effect (as determined by the Issuer in its discretion, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner) that:

- (a) its performance under the Instruments or the relevant Guarantor's performance under the relevant Guarantee in whole or in part or its performance or that of the relevant Guarantor (if any) or any of its affiliates under any related Hedge Positions; or
- (b) the performance of any of its affiliates under the Instruments had such affiliate been an issuer of the Instruments or under any related Hedge Positions had such affiliate been a party to any such Hedge Positions, has or will become unlawful or impractical in whole or in part or there is a substantial likelihood of the same in the immediate future.

21. Purchase by the Issuer

The Issuer may at any time purchase Instruments at any price in the open market or by tender or private treaty. Any Instruments so purchased may be held, surrendered for cancellation or reissued or resold, and Instruments so reissued or resold shall for all purposes be deemed to form part of the original Series of Instruments.

22. Paying Agents and Calculation Agent

The initial Calculation Agent (if any) is specified in the relevant Issue Terms. The Issuer reserves the right at any time to vary or terminate the appointment of the Calculation Agent or any Paying Agent, provided that (a) so long as any Instrument which is held in a Clearing System is outstanding, there will at all times be a Principal Programme Agent, (b) so long as any Instruments are listed on the Official List of the Luxembourg Stock Exchange (or any other stock exchange), there will be a Paying Agent with a Specified Office in Luxembourg (or in such other place as is required by the rules of such other stock exchange) and (c) so long as any French Law Instruments or Euroclear France Registered Instruments are cleared through Euroclear France, there will be a French Paying Agent. Notice of any termination of appointment and of any changes in the Specified Office of a Paying Agent or a Calculation Agent will be given to Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices). In acting under the Programme Agency Agreement, each Paying Agent acts solely as agent of the Issuer and does not assume any obligation or duty to, or any relationship of agency or trust for or with, the Holders.

23. Further Issues

The Issuer shall be at liberty from time to time without the consent of the Holders to create and issue further Instruments so as to form a single Series with the Instruments of any particular Series. For the purposes of applying the Conditions to all Instruments in any particular Series, including all such further Instruments in such Series, any reference in such Conditions (except in General Instrument Condition 3(a) to "Issue Date" shall be deemed to be a reference to the Issue Date of the first Tranche of the Instruments, unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

- (i) all values and all percentages used in or resulting from such calculations will be rounded, if necessary, in the case of (A) a value, to the nearest five decimal places (with 0.000005 being rounded up to 0.00001), and (B) a percentage, to the nearest one hundred thousandth of a percentage point (with 0.000005 per cent. being rounded up to 0.00001 per cent.), unless the relevant Issue Terms specify "Non-Default Rounding – calculation values and percentages" to be applicable, in which case, all percentages and all values used in or resulting from such calculations shall be rounded, if necessary, to the Specified Decimal Place (with halves being rounded up or down, as is specified in the relevant Issue Terms);
- (ii) all amounts due and payable denominated in any currency (including an Interest Amount and the Settlement Amount) will be rounded to the nearest five decimal places (with 0.000005 being rounded up to 0.00001), unless the relevant Issue Terms specify "Non-Default Rounding – amounts due and payable" to be applicable, in which case, all amounts due and payable (or such amounts as specified in the relevant Issue Terms) denominated in any currency will be rounded to the nearest Specified Sub-Unit of such currency (with halves of the Specified Sub-Unit being rounded up or down, as is specified in the relevant Issue Terms), or, in any case, if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Other Rounding Convention" is applicable to any relevant percentage, amount or figure as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, such percentage, amount or figure shall be rounded to the nearest such Specified Sub-Unit of currency or Specified Decimal Place, as the case may be, in each case, with halves being rounded up or down, as is specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

(b) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Conditions or the Programme Agency Agreement, each calculation of an amount payable in cash in respect of each Instrument shall be based on the aggregate nominal amount or number of all such Instruments outstanding on such date (or the relevant affected portion thereof), rounded in accordance with the method provided in paragraph (a) above and distributed in accordance with the Relevant Rules.

28. Substitution

(a) In respect of Instruments other than French Law Instruments, the Issuer is entitled at any time, with the consent of the Guarantor (if any), without the consent of the Holders of the Instruments, to substitute the Issuer with another company, provided that such company is either the Guarantor or a directly or indirectly wholly-owned subsidiary of GSG (the "New Issuer"), in respect of all its obligations under or in relation to the Instruments, and provided further that:

- (i) the New Issuer assumes, by means of a deed poll (the "Deed Poll") substantially in the form of Schedule 17 to the Programme Agency Agreement, all obligations of the Issuer arising from or in connection with the Instruments (the "Assumption");
- (ii) under the applicable law in force as at the Effective Date (as defined in the Deed Poll) (the "Effective Date"), no withholding or deduction for or on account of tax is required to be made in respect of payments on the Instruments by the New Issuer which would not have arisen but for the Assumption;
- (iii) the New Issuer provides an indemnity in favour of the Holders of the Instruments in relation to:
 - (A) any amounts withheld or deducted for or on account of tax in respect of any amounts payable under the Instruments; and

General Terms and Conditions of the Instruments

(B) any tax or duty otherwise assessed in relation to the Instruments by (or by any authority in or of) the jurisdiction of the country of the New Issuer's residence for tax purposes and, if different, of its incorporation (the "New Jurisdiction");

but in each case if and only to the extent that such amount in (A) or tax or duty in (B):

1. would not have arisen but for the Assumption; and
2. is payable under the applicable law in force as at the Effective Date; and
3. in the case of sub paragraph (iii)(B) only, would not have arisen if the Holder did not have some connection with the New Jurisdiction other than the mere holding of the Instrument;

(iv) with effect from and including the Effective Date, the New Issuer has obtained all necessary approvals from any applicable regulatory authorities in order that the New Issuer can fulfil all obligations of the Issuer arising from or in connection with the Instruments and whether arising prior to or on or after the Effective Date; and

(v) if there is a Guarantor in respect of the Instruments, the Guarantor (except in the case where it is the New Issuer itself) unconditionally guarantees the fulfilment of the obligations of the New Issuer arising from or in connection with the Instruments.

(b) In respect of French Law Instruments, the Issuer is entitled at any time, with the consent of the Guarantor (if any), without the consent of the Holders of the French Law Instruments, to substitute the Issuer with another company, the New Issuer (as defined in (a) above), in respect of all its obligations under or in relation to the French Law Instruments, and provided further that:

(i) the New Issuer assumes all obligations of the Issuer arising from or in connection with the French Law Instruments (the "French Law Instruments Assumption");

(ii) under the applicable law in force as at the date of substitution, no withholding or deduction for or on account of tax is required to be made in respect of payments on the French Law Instruments by the New Issuer which would not have arisen but for the French Law Instruments Assumption;

(iii) the New Issuer provides an indemnity in favour of the Holders of the French Law Instruments in relation to:

(A) any amounts withheld or deducted for or on account of tax in respect of any amounts payable under the French Law Instruments; and

(B) any tax or duty otherwise assessed in relation to the French Law Instruments by (or by any authority in or of) the New Jurisdiction (as defined in (a)(iii)(B) above);

but in each case if and only to the extent that such amount in (A) or tax or duty in (B):

- (1) would not have arisen but for the French Law Instruments Assumption; and
- (2) is payable under the applicable law in force as at the date of substitution; and
- (3) in the case of sub-paragraph (iii)(B) only, would not have arisen if the Holder did not have some connection with the New Jurisdiction other than the mere holding of the French Law Instrument;

(iv) with effect from and including the date of substitution, the New Issuer has obtained all necessary approvals from any applicable regulatory authorities in order that the New Issuer can fulfil all obligations of the Issuer arising from or in connection with the French Law Instruments and whether arising prior to or on or after the date of substitution;

- (v) if there is a Guarantor in respect of the French Law Instruments, the Guarantor (except in the case where it is the New Issuer itself) unconditionally guarantees the fulfilment of the obligations of the New Issuer arising from or in connection with the French Law Instruments;
 - (vi) the New Issuer becomes party to the Programme Agency Agreement (unless the New Issuer is already a party to the Programme Agency Agreement) with any appropriate consequential amendments, as if it had been an original party to it; from the date of substitution; and
 - (vii) the substitution will not have a material impact on the interests of the Holders and the New Issuer will not deduct any costs relating to the substitution from amounts due to the Holder.
- (c) From and including the Effective Date (or, in the case of French Law Instruments, the date of substitution of the Issuer by the New Issuer in accordance with General Instrument Condition 28(b) (Substitution)), the New Issuer shall replace the Issuer in every respect under the Conditions of the Instruments or French Law Instruments (as the case may be) and each reference to the Issuer in the Conditions of the Instruments or French Law Instruments (as the case may be) shall be deemed to be a reference to the New Issuer, and the Issuer shall be released from all obligations towards the Holders of the Instruments or French Law Instruments (as the case may be) in connection with the function of Issuer arising from or in connection with the Instruments or French Law Instruments (as the case may be).
- (d) The substitution of the Issuer in accordance with General Instrument Condition 28(a) (Substitution) or, in the case of French Law Instruments, in accordance with General Instrument Condition 28(b) (Substitution) shall be notified in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices), but failure to provide such notice shall not affect the effectiveness of the substitution.
- (e) In connection with such right of substitution, the Issuer shall not be obliged to have regard to the tax, legal or regulatory consequences of the exercise of such right for any individual Holders resulting from their being for any purpose domiciled or resident in, or otherwise connected with or subject to the jurisdiction of, any particular jurisdiction or territory, and no Holder shall be entitled to claim from the Issuer or the New Issuer or any Guarantor any indemnification or payment in respect of any tax, legal or regulatory consequence of any such substitution upon such Holder.
- (f) In respect of Instruments other than French Law Instruments, where any Holder is not the beneficial owner of an Instrument to which this General Instrument Condition 28 applies (or any payment thereunder), none of the Issuer, the New Issuer or (if applicable) the Guarantor shall have any obligations under sub-paragraphs (a)(iii) or (e) above more onerous than that obligation would have been, had the relevant beneficial owner of such Instrument or payment (as the case may be) actually been the Holder for these purposes.

29. Prescription

- (a) In respect of Instruments (other than French Law Instruments), claims against the Issuer or, as the case may be, the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) for payment or delivery in respect of the Instruments shall be prescribed and become void unless made within five years from the Maturity Date and no claims shall be made after such date.
- (b) In respect of French Law Instruments and Swiss Securities, claims for payment of principal shall be prescribed upon the expiry of ten years from the due date thereof and claims for payment of interest (if any) shall be prescribed upon the expiry of five years, from the due date thereof.

30. Taxation

Subject to the paragraph below, the Issuer shall not be liable for or otherwise obliged to pay any tax, duty, withholding or other similar payment which may arise as a result of the ownership, transfer or exercise of any Instruments.

Where such withholding or deduction is required by law, the appropriate withholding or deduction shall be made and neither the Issuer nor the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) shall have any obligation to pay any additional amounts to compensate for such withholding or deduction.

In addition, any amounts to be paid on the Instruments by or on behalf of the Issuer or the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) will be paid net of any deduction or withholding imposed or required pursuant to Sections 1471 through 1474 of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), any current or future regulations or official interpretations thereof, any agreement entered into pursuant to Section 1471(b) of the Code, or any fiscal or regulatory legislation, rules or practices adopted pursuant to any intergovernmental agreement entered into in connection with the implementation of such Sections of the Code, and no additional amounts will be required to be paid by the Issuer or the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) on account of any such deduction or withholding.

34. Events of Default

(a) Events of Default: an Event of Default with respect to any issuance of Instruments will mean any of the following:

- (i) the Issuer, and failing whom, the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) does not pay the Settlement Amount or other termination amount or any other amount payable (other than Interest Amount) on any of the Instruments when the same is due and payable and such failure continues for 30 days;
- (ii) the Issuer, and failing whom, the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) does not pay interest on any of the Instruments when the same is due and payable or does not deliver any Deliverable Asset when the same is due and deliverable and such failure continues for 30 days;
- (iii) in the case of Instruments issued by GSI an order is made or an effective resolution is passed for the winding up, liquidation or dissolution of GSI, (otherwise than for the purposes of or pursuant to an amalgamation, reorganisation or restructuring whilst solvent);

- (v) any event occurs under the laws of any member state where in the case of Instruments issued by GSW or GSBE, GSW or GSBE is deemed to have its "centre of main interest" for the purposes of Regulation (EU) 2015/848 on insolvency proceedings (recast) that has an analogous effect to any of the events referred to in paragraph (iii) above; or

- (vi) where a New Issuer (other than GSW, GSI, GSFCI or GSBE) has assumed all the obligations of the Issuer pursuant to General Instrument Condition 28 (Substitution), any event occurs which (a) under the laws of the jurisdiction of incorporation of the New Issuer or (b) under the laws of the country where the successor firm has its "centre of main interest" for the purposes of Regulation (EU) 2015/848 on insolvency proceedings (recast), has an analogous effect to any of the events referred to in paragraph (iii) above.
- (b) Consequences: If an Event of Default occurs and is continuing, the Holder of any Instrument may, by written notice addressed to the Issuer and delivered to the Issuer or to the Specified Office of the Principal Programme Agent declare its Instrument to be immediately due and payable and unless all such defaults have been cured by the Issuer or the relevant Guarantor (if applicable) prior to the receipt of such notice, the Nominal Amount of the Instrument (if any) shall be immediately due and payable together with accrued interest (if any) unless either (or both) the Settlement Amount or Interest Amount of the Instrument is linked to or determined by reference to one or more Underlying Asset(s), in which case the amount payable upon such acceleration shall be equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount (and the payment of such amount shall be postponed until the Business Day after the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount has been finally determined).

Notwithstanding anything else in these Conditions, in the event the relevant Issuer, the relevant Guarantor, or any of their respective affiliates, becomes subject to a U.S. Special Resolution Regime, the foregoing default rights against the Issuer or the relevant Guarantor (as applicable) with respect to the Relevant Agreements are permitted to be exercised to no greater extent than such default rights could be exercised under such U.S. Special Resolution Regime if the Relevant Agreements were governed by the laws of the United States or a state of the United States.

- (c) Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments: If an Event of Default with respect to Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of any Series at the time outstanding occurs and is continuing, then in every such case, unless the Settlement Amount of all of the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of such Series shall have already become due and payable, the Euroclear Finland Holders, Euroclear Sweden Holders or VPS Holders of at least 25 per cent. in Nominal Amount (if applicable) or in total number of the outstanding Instruments of that Series may declare the Settlement Amount of all of the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of that Series to be due and payable immediately (or on such later date on which the relevant Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments have been transferred to the account designated by the Finnish Paying Agent, Swedish Paying Agent or Norwegian Paying Agent and blocked for further transfer by the Finnish Paying Agent, Swedish Paying Agent or Norwegian Paying Agent) at their Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount, by a notice in writing to the Issuer, and upon any such declaration such Non-Scheduled Early Repayment Amount, together with the unpaid interest, if any, shall become immediately due and payable.

At any time after such a declaration of acceleration with respect to Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of any Series has been made and before a judgment or decree for payment of the money due has been obtained, the Euroclear Finland Holders, Euroclear Sweden Holders or VPS Holders of at least a majority in Nominal Amount (if applicable) or total number of outstanding Instruments of that Series, by written notice to the Issuer and the Principal Programme Agent (or the Finnish Paying Agent, Swedish Paying Agent or Norwegian Paying Agent (as the case may be)), may rescind and annul such declaration and its consequences if the Issuer or, if applicable, the relevant Guarantor, has paid or deposited with the Principal Programme Agent (or the Finnish Paying Agent, Swedish Paying Agent or Norwegian Paying Agent (as the case may be)) a sum sufficient to pay in the Settlement Currency in which the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of such Series are payable:

- (i) all overdue interest, if any, on all Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of that Series;
- (ii) the Settlement Amount or other amount of any Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of that Series which have become due otherwise than by such declaration of acceleration and (if applicable) interest thereon at the Interest Rate applicable to that Series; and
- (iii) all Events of Default with respect to Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of that Series, other than the non-payment of the Settlement Amount or other amount of Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of that Series, which have become due solely by such declaration of acceleration, have been cured or waived as provided below. No such rescission shall affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereon.

The Euroclear Finland Holders, Euroclear Sweden Holders or VPS Holders of at least a majority in Nominal Amount (if applicable) or total number of the outstanding Instruments of any Series may on behalf of the Euroclear Finland Holders, Euroclear Sweden Holders or VPS Holders of all the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of such Series waive any past default hereunder with respect to such Series and its consequences, except a default in the payment of the Settlement Amount of or interest, if any, on any Euroclear Finland Registered Instrument, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instrument or VPS Registered Instrument of such Series, or in the payment of any sinking fund instalment or analogous obligation with respect to the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments, such Series. Upon any such waiver, such default shall cease to exist, and any Event of Default arising therefrom shall be deemed to have been cured, for every purpose of the Programme Agency Agreement and the Euroclear Finland Registered Instruments, Euroclear Sweden Registered Instruments or VPS Registered Instruments of such Series, but no such waiver shall extend to any subsequent or other default or impair any right consequent thereon.

35. Hedging Disruption

Where 'Hedging Disruption' is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, at any time following the occurrence of a Hedging Disruption, the Issuer shall have the right to (i) redeem the Instruments on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) and will, if and to the extent permitted by applicable law, pay to the Holder in respect of each Instrument the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day; or (ii) determine the appropriate adjustment, if any, to be made to any one or more of the terms of the Instruments, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under such Conditions applicable to the Instruments, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the Hedging Disruption, and determine the effective date of that adjustment.

In the case of (b) above, the Issuer's Notice of Early Redemption shall include the Put Redemption Amount or (if applicable) the Best of Amount (save that in either case it may provide that the calculation is illustrative only and subject to change depending on the date of early redemption, as the amount of Pro Rata Issuer Cost Reimbursement will be affected) and (save where payment of the Best of Amount is applicable) shall include the cut-off date for exercise of the option to redeem the Instrument for the Put Redemption Amount at early redemption ("Cut-off Date"), together with the early redemption date.

In order to make a valid election to exercise its option referred to in (b)(i) above to redeem some or all of its Instruments for the Put Redemption Amount at early redemption, a Holder must by no later than the Cut-off Date, give notice to the Registrar of such exercise in accordance with the standard procedures of Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as applicable (which may include notice being given on his instruction by Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as applicable, or any common depositary, as the case may be, for them, as applicable, to the Registrar by electronic means), in a form acceptable to Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg, as applicable, from time to time.

Notwithstanding anything else in the Conditions, in respect of each Instrument equal to the Calculation Amount for which (b)(i) above is applicable and for which:

- (a) a valid election to exercise the Holder's option to redeem such Instruments for the Put Redemption Amount at early redemption has been made, the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount shall be payable on the early redemption date specified as such in the Issuer's Notice of Early Redemption; and
- (b) a valid election to exercise the Holder's option to redeem such Instruments for the Put Redemption Amount at early redemption has not been made, the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount shall be payable on the Maturity Date.

but in each case if and only to the extent that such amount in (A) or tax or duty in (B) or losses in (C):

- 1. would not have arisen but for the Assumption; and
 - 2. is payable under the applicable law in force as at the Effective Date;
- (iv) with effect from and including the Effective Date, the New Issuer has obtained all necessary approvals from any applicable regulatory authorities in order that the New Issuer can fulfil all obligations of the Issuer arising from or in connection with the Instruments and whether arising prior to or on or after the Effective Date; and

The Calculation Agent may, but need not, determine the appropriate adjustment by reference to the adjustment in respect of such Potential Adjustment Event made by an Options Exchange to options on the Shares traded on that Options Exchange."

8. Share Linked Condition 3.2 (Occurrence of an Extraordinary Event)

Share Linked Condition 3.2 (Occurrence of an Extraordinary Event) is amended by deleting the section in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

- "(a) the Calculation Agent may determine the appropriate adjustment, if any, to be made to any one or more of the terms of the Share Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Share Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the Extraordinary Event in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Securities and determine the effective date of that adjustment. The relevant adjustments may include, without limitation, adjustments to account for changes in volatility, expected dividends, stock loan rate or liquidity relevant to the Shares or to the Share Linked Securities. The Calculation Agent may (but need not) determine the appropriate adjustment by reference to the adjustment in respect of such Extraordinary Event made by any Options Exchange to options on the Shares traded on that Options Exchange; or
- (b) the Calculation Agent may determine to redeem the Share Linked Securities, in which case, the Issuer shall redeem all, but not some only, of the Share Linked Securities by giving notice to Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices), as the case may be. If the Share Linked Securities are so redeemed in whole, the Issuer will pay to each Holder in respect of each Share Linked Security held by such Holder an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount of such Share Linked Security, taking into account the Extraordinary Event, as determined by the Calculation Agent. Payments will be made in such manner as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices), as the case may be; or

- (c) the Calculation Agent may determine to effect Share Substitution (as defined below), in which case, on or after the relevant Announcement Date, Merger Date or Tender Offer Date or the date of the Delisting, Insolvency, Nationalisation, or where the Share is a share of an Exchange Traded Fund, NAV Publication Suspension, as the case may be, the Issuer may (in addition to the consequences set out in paragraphs (a) to (b) above) adjust the Shares or Share Basket, as the case may be, to include shares selected by it (the "Substitute Shares") in place of the Shares (the "Affected Share(s)" which are affected by such Extraordinary Event, and such Substitute Shares and their issuer will be deemed to be "Shares" and a "Share Issuer" for the purposes of these Share Linked Conditions, respectively, and the Calculation Agent may determine to make such further adjustment, if any, to any one or more of the terms of the Share Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Share Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Share Linked Securities (together, the "Share Substitution"). For the avoidance of doubt, such Substitute Shares may include Depositary Receipts and/or shares of Exchange Traded Funds. In this regard:
- (i) such substitution and the relevant adjustment to the terms of the Share Linked Securities will be deemed to be effective as of the date determined by the Calculation Agent (the "Substitution Date") which may, but need not, be the Announcement Date, Merger Date or Tender Offer Date or the date of the Delisting, Insolvency or Nationalisation or, where the Share is a share of an Exchange Traded Fund, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, as is applicable, NAV Publication Suspension (as the case may be);
 - (ii) the weighting of each Substitute Share in the relevant Share Basket, if applicable, will be equal to the weighting of the relevant Affected Share, unless otherwise determined by the Calculation Agent; and or the Daily Settlement Price of a single Index-Linked Derivatives Contract relating to an Index, with an expiration date that matches the maturity date of such Securities, published by the exchange or quotation system in respect of such Index-Linked Derivatives Contract, on one or more Reference Dates or Averaging Reference Dates (as set out in the Issue Terms).

If the relevant Issue Terms specify that "Index-Linked Derivatives Contract Provisions" shall be applicable:

Following the occurrence of an Index Modification in respect of an Index, the Calculation Agent shall (if "Calculation Agent Adjustment" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms) determine if such Index Modification has a material effect on the Index Linked Securities and, if so, may in its discretion take one of, or both of, or neither of, the following actions: (i) continue to calculate the relevant Index Level using the published level for such Index; and/or (ii) make the appropriate adjustments, if any, to any one or more of the terms of the Index Linked Securities, including, without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Index Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Index Linked Conditions.

- (b) "Index Substitution": The Calculation Agent may rebase the Index Linked Securities against another index or basket of indices, as applicable, selected by the Calculation Agent to be reasonably comparable to the relevant Index in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Index Linked Securities, and, following such rebasing, the Calculation Agent will make such adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Index Linked Securities to account for such rebasing; or
- (c) "Related Exchange Adjustment": the Calculation Agent may make the appropriate adjustments, if any, to any one or more of the terms of the Index Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Index Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate, in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Index Linked Securities, which adjustment will be effective as of the date determined by the Calculation Agent to be the effective date of the corresponding adjustment made by the Options Exchange. - (b) the Calculation Agent determines that none of the actions set out in paragraphs (a), (b) or (c) above, as is applicable, would achieve a commercially reasonable result for any of the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or the Holders, on giving notice to Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) or General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be, the Issuer shall redeem the Index Linked Securities in whole but not in part, each Index Linked Security being redeemed by payment of an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount of such Index Linked Security, as determined by the Calculation Agent. Payments will be made in such manner as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) or General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be."

19. Commodity Linked Condition 3 (Corrections to Published Commodity Reference Prices)

Commodity Linked Condition 3 (Corrections to Published Commodity Reference Prices) is amended by deleting the section in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

"If a Commodity Reference Price published or announced on a given day and used or to be used by the Calculation Agent to determine a Relevant Price or other amount on any Pricing Date or any other relevant date which is utilised for any calculation or determination is subsequently corrected and the correction is published or announced by the Trading Facility or any other person responsible for such publication or announcement (i) by the second Scheduled Commodity Business Day prior to the date on which any payment is due (or such other time frame as may be specified in the relevant Issue Terms; provided that different time frames may be specified in the relevant Issue Terms for different days or Pricing Dates) after the original publication or announcement, or (ii) if a Correction Cut-off Date is specified in the relevant Issue Terms to be applicable to such Pricing Date, if earlier, by such Correction Cut-off Date, such corrected price shall be the Commodity Reference Price, and the Calculation Agent, to the extent it reasonably considers it to be necessary, may determine to make appropriate adjustments to any of the terms of the Commodity Linked Securities to account for such correction in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Commodity Linked Securities."

20. Commodity Linked Condition 6.2 (Occurrence of a Commodity Index Adjustment Event)

Commodity Linked Condition 6.2 (Occurrence of a Commodity Index Adjustment Event) is amended by deleting the section in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

"If, in respect of a Commodity Index, the Calculation Agent determines that,

- (a) on or prior to any Reference Date, Averaging Reference Date or other relevant date, (i) the relevant Commodity Index Sponsor makes in the determination of the Calculation Agent, a material change in the weighting or composition of the Commodity Index or the formula for, or the method of, calculating or determining the composition of such Commodity Index, as the case may be, or in any other way materially modifies such Commodity Index (other than a change or modification prescribed in that formula or method relating to the weighting or composition of such Commodity Index, the weighting of the components of such Commodity Index and/or other routine events or modifications as determined by the Calculation Agent) (a "Commodity Index Modification"), (ii) the relevant Commodity Index Sponsor permanently cancels or ceases to calculate the relevant Commodity Index and no Successor Commodity Index exists as at the date of such cancellation or cessation (a "Commodity Index Cancellation"), or (iii) an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date has occurred in respect of such Commodity Index; or
- (b) on any Reference Date, Averaging Reference Date or other relevant date, (i) in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the Closing Level of the relevant Commodity Index contains a manifest error, or (ii) in the absence of a Disruption Event, the Commodity Index Sponsor fails to calculate and announce the Closing Level of such Commodity Index and a Successor

Commodity Index is not calculated and announced (a "Commodity Index Failure" and, together with a Commodity Index Modification, a Commodity Index Cancellation and an Administrator/Benchmark Event, each a "Commodity Index Adjustment Event"), then the Calculation Agent shall determine if such Commodity Index Adjustment Event has a material effect on the Commodity Linked Securities and, if so,

- (A) shall calculate the relevant Closing Level using, in lieu of a published level for that Commodity Index, the level for such Commodity Index as at that Reference Date, Averaging Reference Date or other relevant date, as the case may be, in accordance with the formula for, and method of, calculating the Closing Level of such Commodity Index last in effect prior to the relevant Commodity Index Adjustment Event, utilising any adjustment to such formula for or the method of calculating the Closing Level of such Commodity Index as it determines to be commercially reasonable, or
- (B) may rebase the Commodity Linked Securities against another commodity index or basket of indices, as applicable, selected by the Calculation Agent to be reasonably comparable to the relevant Commodity Index in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Commodity Linked Securities, and, following such rebasing, the Calculation Agent will make such adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Commodity Index Linked Securities to account for such rebasing in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Commodity Linked Securities, or
- (C) may determine the appropriate adjustment, if any, to be made to any one or more of the terms of the Commodity Linked Securities in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Commodity Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Commodity Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for such Commodity Index Adjustment Event in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Commodity Linked Securities, and shall determine the effective date of that adjustment but,

- (1) it (aa) is or would be unlawful at any time under any applicable law or regulation; or (bb) would contravene any applicable licensing requirements for the Calculation Agent to perform the actions prescribed in paragraphs (A) or (B) above (or it would be unlawful or would contravene those licensing requirements were a determination to be made at such time); or
- (2) the Calculation Agent determines that none of paragraphs (A), (B) or (C) above, as is applicable, would achieve a commercially reasonable result for any of the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or the Holders, then on giving notice to Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) or General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be, the Issuer shall redeem the Commodity Linked Securities in whole but not in part, each Commodity Linked Security being redeemed by payment of an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount of such Commodity Linked Security, as determined by the Calculation Agent. Payments will be made in such manner as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) or General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be.

- (D) Notwithstanding paragraphs (A), (B) and (C) above, if such Commodity Index Adjustment Event has a material effect on the Commodity Linked Securities, the Calculation Agent may, in its discretion, instead determine the relevant level of the Commodity Index, in lieu of a published level for the Commodity Index, in a commercially reasonable manner.

In any such circumstances as described in the preceding paragraph or in paragraphs (A), (B), (C) and (D) above, the Calculation Agent will have no responsibility (in the absence of manifest error) to any person for errors or omissions made in the calculation of the Commodity Index. The Calculation Agent shall not act as agent of the Holders."

"Tax Disruption" means, in respect of a Commodity, the imposition of, change in or removal of an excise, severance, sales, use, value-added, transfer, stamp, documentary, recording or similar tax on, or measured by reference to, such Commodity (other than a tax on, or measured by reference to overall gross or net income) by any government or taxation authority after the Issue Date or such other date as may be specified in the relevant Issue Terms, if the direct effect of such imposition, change, or removal is to materially raise or lower the Relevant Price on the day that would otherwise be a Pricing Date (or such other relevant date as may be specified in the relevant Issue Terms) from what it would have been without that imposition, change, or removal."

23. Introduction to the Fund Linked Provisions

The section entitled "Introduction to the Fund Linked Provisions" is amended by:

- (a) deleting the sub-section headed "Determinations and Calculations" in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

Such actions include certain determinations and calculations relating to, among others, the occurrence of a Fund Calculation Day or a Fund Market Disruption Event, the calculation of the Fund Reference Price of a Fund, or the occurrence and materiality of a Change in Law Event (such terms are described below). In all circumstances, the Calculation Agent must make such determinations and calculations in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner."; and

- (b) deleting the sub-sections headed "Change in Law Event", "Crystallisation Event" and "Adjusted NAV Event" in their entirety and replacing them with the following:

"1. Consequences of Fund Market Disruption Days

If the Calculation Agent determines that any Scheduled Reference Date is a Fund Market Disruption Day in respect of a Fund, then the relevant Reference Date for such Fund shall be the first Fund Calculation

Day for such Fund following the Fund Market Disruption Event End Date for the relevant Reference Date for such Fund, unless the Calculation Agent determines that each of the 60 consecutive calendar days following such Scheduled Reference Date is either a Fund Market Disruption Day for such Fund or not a Fund Calculation Day for such Fund, or both, in which case:

- (a) the Business Day immediately following the 60th calendar day shall be deemed to be the relevant Reference Date for such Fund, notwithstanding the fact that such day is a Fund Market Disruption Day for such Fund and/or is not a Fund Calculation Day for such Fund; and
- (b) the Calculation Agent may determine the net asset value per share or unit of such Fund on such last consecutive Business Day acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner (which may be zero), and such net asset value shall be the Reference Price for the Reference Date for the relevant Reference Date."

25. Fund Linked Condition 2 (Early Exercise Event or Early Redemption Event)

Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, if the Early Exercise Date or the Early Redemption Date, as the case may be, would otherwise fall on or after the Scheduled Maturity Date, the Early Exercise Notice or the Early Redemption Notice, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be void and of no effect."

26. Fund Linked Condition 3 (Consequences of a Potential Adjustment Event)

"3. Consequences of a Potential Adjustment Event

Following the determination by the Calculation Agent that a Potential Adjustment Event has occurred in respect of a Fund, the Calculation Agent will determine whether such Potential Adjustment Event has a diluting or concentrative effect on the theoretical value of such Fund and, if so, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, will (a) make the corresponding adjustment, if any, to any one or more of the terms of the Fund Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under such Fund Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for that diluting or concentrative effect (provided that no adjustments will be made to account solely for changes in volatility or liquidity relative to such Fund), and (b) determine the effective date of that adjustment."

2. Definitions and Interpretation

- (a) Definitions: In these General Note Conditions the following expressions have the following meanings:

"Accrual Commencement Date" means the date specified as such in the relevant Issue Terms or, if no such date is specified, the Issue Date;

"Accrual Yield" means the percentage specified as such in the relevant Issue Terms;

"Accumulated Interest Amount" means the sum of each Interest Amount accrued for each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount in respect of each Interest Period ending on or prior to the Interest Payment Date (or, if the relevant Issue Terms specify that the relevant Interest Period shall be "Unadjusted", ending on or prior to the date on which such Interest Payment Date is scheduled to fall), provided that if Accumulated Interest Cap is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, then the Accumulated Interest Amount shall be the lower of the Accumulated Interest Cap and the sum determined in accordance with the first part of this sentence;

"Accumulated Interest Cap" means the sum of each Capped Interest Amount determined in respect of each Interest Period ending on or prior to the Interest Payment Date (or, if the relevant Issue Terms specify that the relevant Interest Period shall be "Unadjusted", ending on or prior to the date on which such Interest Payment Date is scheduled to fall), and rounding the resultant figure in accordance with General Note Condition 24 (Rounding). The "Capped Interest Amount" in respect of each Interest Period will be calculated by multiplying the Target Rate by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to such Interest Period, and rounding the resultant figure in accordance with General Note Condition 24 (Rounding);

"Additional Financial Centre" means the place(s) specified as such in the relevant Issue Terms;

"Adjusted Affected Payment Date" means, in respect of the occurrence of an FX Disruption Event or a Currency Conversion Disruption Event, the Specified Day(s) following the day on which an FX Disruption Event or Currency Conversion Disruption Event ceases to exist (as determined by the Calculation Agent), unless the relevant Issue Terms specify "Default Adjusted Affected Payment Date", in which case, "Adjusted Affected Payment Date" means the second Business Day following the day on which an FX Disruption Event or Currency Conversion Disruption Event ceases to exist (as determined by the Calculation Agent);

"Adjusted Calculation Amount" means the amount specified as such in the relevant Issue Terms;

"Adjustment Spread" means, in respect of a Replacement Primary Rate, the adjustment, if any, to such Replacement Primary Rate that the Calculation Agent determines, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, is required in order to reduce or eliminate, to the extent reasonably practicable, any transfer of economic value from the Issuer to the Holders (or vice versa) as a result of the replacement of the Original Primary Rate with such Replacement Primary Rate. Any such adjustment may take account of, without limitation, any transfer of economic value as a result of any difference in the term structure or tenor of the Replacement Primary Rate by comparison to the Original Primary Rate. The Adjustment Spread may be positive, negative or zero, or determined pursuant to a formula or methodology. If a spread or formula or methodology for calculating a spread has been formally designated, nominated or recommended by any Relevant Nominating Body in relation to the replacement of the Original Primary Rate with such Replacement Primary Rate, that spread shall apply or that formula or methodology shall be used to determine the Adjustment Spread (as the case may be), and such spread, formula or methodology (as the case may be) shall be adjusted as necessary to reflect the fact that the spread, formula or methodology (as the case may be) is used in the context of the Notes. If no spread or formula methodology has been so designated, nominated or recommended, and the Calculation Agent is required to determine the Adjustment Spread, it shall consider (i) any Relevant Market Data and (ii) the spread or formula or methodology for calculating a spread or payment (as applicable), that is, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, recognised or acknowledged as being the industry-accepted standard (or otherwise customarily widely adopted) for over-the-counter derivative transactions which reference such Original Primary Rate;

"Administrator/Benchmark Event" in respect of any Notes and an Original Primary Rate, the occurrence or existence, as determined by the Calculation Agent, of any of the following events in respect of such Original Primary Rate:

in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount (immediately prior to such Interest Payment Date) shall be the Broken Amount.

- (d) Calculation of Interest Amount: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Fixed Coupon Amount" and "Deferred Interest Payments" to be not applicable, the Interest Amount payable on an Interest Payment Date in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount for the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Payment Date, or for a period other than an Interest Period, shall be calculated by multiplying the Rate of Interest by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to such Interest Period, or such other period, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Note Condition 24 (Rounding).

10. Floating Rate Note Conditions

- (a) Application: This General Note Condition 10 is applicable to the Notes only if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Floating Rate Note Conditions" to be applicable. The Rate of Interest in respect of the Notes and an Interest Period will be determined in accordance with Screen Rate Determination, SOFR Floating Rate Determination, SONIA Floating Rate Determination, TONA Floating Rate Determination, €STR Floating Rate Determination, ISDA Determination, or the Steeper Floating Rate Provisions, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms to be the manner in which the Rate of Interest is to be determined for such Interest Period.
- (b) Accrual of interest: The Notes bear interest from the Floating Interest Commencement Date at the Rate of Interest payable in arrears on each Interest Payment Date, subject as provided in General Note Condition 13 (Payments – Registered Notes). Each Note will cease to bear interest from the due date for final redemption unless payment of the Redemption Amount is improperly withheld or refused, in which case it will continue to bear interest in accordance with this General Note Condition 10 (after as well as before judgment) until whichever is the earlier of (i) the day on which all sums due in respect of such Note up to that day are received by or on behalf of the relevant Noteholder and (ii) the day which is seven days after the Fiscal Agent has notified the Noteholders that it has received all sums due in respect of the Notes up to such seventh day (except to the extent that there is any subsequent default in payment).
- (c) Screen Rate Determination: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Screen Rate Determination" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period, subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), the Rate of Interest applicable to the Notes for such Interest Period will be determined by the Calculation Agent to be a rate equal to the Relevant Reference Rate (as defined below), and where a "Margin" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, plus or minus the Margin for such Interest Period, and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

The "Relevant Reference Rate" means, in respect of an Interest Period, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:

- (i) "Multiple Screen Rate Determination Rates" to be not applicable, the Reference Rate for such Interest Period determined in accordance with the paragraph below; or
- (ii) "Multiple Screen Rate Determination Rates" to be applicable, the Primary Reference Rate or the Secondary Reference Rate as is specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

"Primary Reference Rate" or the "Secondary Reference Rate" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period as a Reference Rate in accordance with the paragraph below where each of (where applicable) the relevant Reference Rate Currency, Interest Determination Date, Relevant Screen Page(s), Relevant Maturity, Relevant Time, Specified Time and Relevant Financial Centre (if applicable) shall be as specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of the Primary Reference Rate or the Secondary Reference Rate (as applicable).

The "Reference Rate" will be determined on the following basis:

- (i) the Calculation Agent will determine the Reference Rate to be the rate which appears on the specified Relevant Screen Page(s) as of the Relevant Time on the relevant Interest Determination Date;
- (ii) if such rate does not appear on at least one of the Relevant Screen Pages at or around the Relevant Time on the Interest Determination Date, then:
 - (A) (save where (B) applies) the Reference Rate shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, having regard to alternative benchmarks then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). For the avoidance of doubt, the Calculation Agent may determine the relevant Reference Rate by reference to one or more of the following methods (or such other method(s) as it determines appropriate):
 - (1) the Reference Rate may be determined on the basis of the relevant internally marked mid-rate (derived from externally executable bid and ask prices) of the Calculation Agent at the Specified Time on such Interest Determination Date, and applying principles that are recognized in the financial services industry for determining the value of such rate;
 - (2) the Reference Rate may be the arithmetic mean of the offered quotations that each of the Reference Banks is quoting to leading banks in the Relevant Financial Centre at the Relevant Time on the Interest Determination Date, after eliminating the highest quotation (or, in the event of equality, one of the highest) and the lowest quotation (or, in the event of equality, one of the lowest) (unless only two quotations are provided, in which case neither will be eliminated), provided that the Calculation Agent determines that at least two such Reference Banks are so quoting Reference Rates;
 - (3) the Reference Rate may be the rate formally recommended for use by the administrator of the Reference Rate or the supervisor or competent authority (or a committee endorsed or convened by any such entity) responsible for supervising the Reference Rate or the administrator thereof; and/or
 - (4) the Reference Rate may be the Reference Rate last provided or published by the relevant administrator; or

- (B) if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Direct Calculation Agent Determination Fallback" to be applicable, the Reference Rate will instead be the rate determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, on the basis of the relevant internally marked mid-rate (derived from externally executable bid and ask prices) of the Calculation Agent at the Specified Time on such Interest Determination Date, and applying principles that are recognized in the financial services industry for determining the value of such rate.

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Reference Rate 0% Floor" to be applicable and the Reference Rate determined in accordance with the above would otherwise be less than zero, then such Reference Rate shall be deemed to be zero.

(d) SOFR Floating Rate Determination

- (i) Compounded Daily SOFR - Non-Index Determination: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SOFR Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as Not Applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be Compounded Daily SOFR plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Note Condition 10(d), "Compounded Daily SOFR" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily Secured Overnight Financing Rate as the reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date as follows, and the resulting percentage will be rounded if necessary to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.000005 being rounded upwards:

- (A) where "Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily SOFR only compounds the SOFR Reference Rate in respect of a U.S. Government Securities Business Day. The SOFR Reference Rate applied to a day that is not a U.S. Government Securities Business Day will be taken by applying the SOFR Reference Rate for the previous U.S. Government Securities Business Day but without compounding.

"d" means:

- (i) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift) applies, the number of calendar days in the relevant SOFR Observation Period; or

General Terms and Conditions of the Notes

- (ii) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Lag) applies, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period;

"d₀" means:

- (i) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift) applies, in respect of any SOFR Observation Period, the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days in the relevant SOFR Observation Period; or
- (ii) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Lag) applies, in respect of any Interest Period, the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a U.S. Government Securities Business Day, it means the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days plus 1;

"i" means:

- (i) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Shift) applies, a series of whole numbers from 1 to "d₀", each representing the relevant U.S. Government Securities Business Day in chronological order from, and including, the first U.S. Government Securities Business Day in the relevant SOFR Observation Period; or
- (ii) where Compounded Daily SOFR (Lag) applies, a series of whole numbers from 1 to "d₀", each representing the relevant U.S. Government Securities Business Days in chronological order from, and including, the first U.S. Government Securities Business Day in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a U.S. Government Securities Business Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d₀, where i=1 represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of i=2 to d₀ represents the relevant U.S. Government Securities Business Day in chronological order from, and including, the first U.S. Government Securities Business Day in the Interest Period;

"n_i" for any U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i", means the number of calendar days from and including such U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following U.S. Government Securities Business Day and (b) the last day of the relevant SOFR Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable;

"p" means the number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms;

"SOFR_i" means, in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i" in the SOFR Observation Period of the relevant Interest Period, the SOFR Reference Rate in respect of such day, as determined by the Calculation Agent;

"SOFR Observation Period" means in respect of each Interest Period, the period from and including the date falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the first date in such Interest Period to but excluding the date falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the Interest Period End Date in respect of the relevant Interest Period (or the date falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable);

"SOFR Reference Rate", in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day ("USBDx"), is a rate equal to the Daily Secured Overnight Financing Rate ("SOFR") for such USBDx as provided by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, as the administrator of such rate (or any successor administrator of such rate) on the website of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at <http://www.newyorkfed.org>, or any successor website or the website of any successor administrator for the publication of such rate (the "New York Federal Reserve's Website") (in each case, on or about 8:00 a.m., New York City time, or, if specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, on or about the Alternative SOFR Time, on the U.S. Government Securities Business Day immediately following such USBDx) or, if the New York Federal Reserve's Website is unavailable, as otherwise published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator;

"SOFR_{i-pUSBD}" means in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i" falling in the relevant Interest Period, the SOFR Reference Rate for the U.S. Government Securities Business Day falling "p" U.S. Government Securities Business Days prior to such U.S. Government Securities Business Day "i"; and

If in respect of any relevant determination date a SOFR value has not been provided or published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator (or any successor administrator) or authorised distributor, or the relevant website is not available, the relevant SOFR value will be the last provided or published value for SOFR as applicable prior to the day on which the SOFR value is required. If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SOFR value in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SOFR value which would have prevailed on such day, the SOFR value in respect of the relevant determination date shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

- (ii) Compounded Daily SOFR - Index Determination: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SOFR Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as Applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be calculated by reference to the following formula and based on the SOFR Index (as defined below) (the "SOFR Compounded Index") and the resulting percentage will be rounded if necessary to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.000005 being rounded upwards. Such Rate of Interest shall be plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period:

"d_c" is the number of calendar days from (and including) the day in relation to which SOFR Index_{Start} is determined to (but excluding) the day in relation to which SOFR Index_{End} is determined;

"Relevant Number" is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms;

"SOFR Index" means, in respect of any U.S. Government Securities Business Day, the SOFR Compounded Index value as published by the Federal Reserve

General Terms and Conditions of the Notes

Bank of New York, as the administrator of such index (or any successor administrator of such index) as such index appears on the website of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at <http://www.newyorkfed.org>, or any successor website or the website of any successor administrator for the publication of such index at 8:00 a.m. New York City time;

"SOFR Index_{End}" is the SOFR Index value for the day which is the Relevant Number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the Interest Period End Date for the relevant Interest Period; and

"SOFR Index_{Start}" is the SOFR Index value for the day which is the Relevant Number of U.S. Government Securities Business Days preceding the first date of the relevant Interest Period.

If in respect of any relevant determination date a SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, has not been provided or published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator (or any successor administrator) or authorised distributor, or the relevant website is not available, the relevant SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, will be the last provided or published value for the SOFR or SOFR Index as applicable prior to the day on which the SOFR or SOFR Index value is required. If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, in accordance with the preceding sentence or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, which would have prevailed on such day, the SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, in respect of the relevant determination date shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

(e) SONIA Floating Rate Determination

- (i) Compounded Daily SONIA - Non-Index Determination: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SONIA Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as Not Applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be Compounded Daily SONIA as determined in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Note Condition 10(e)(i), "Compounded Daily SONIA" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily Sterling Overnight Index Average as reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one ten-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.00005 being rounded upwards):

- (A) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily SONIA only compounds the SONIA rate in respect of a London Banking Day. The SONIA rate applied to a day that is not a London Banking Day will be taken by applying the SONIA rate for the previous London Banking Day but without compounding.

"d" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period.

"d₀" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of London Banking Days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of London Banking Days in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a London Banking Day, it means the number of London Banking Days plus 1.

"i" means a series of whole numbers from one to d_0 , each representing the relevant London Banking Day in chronological order:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first London Banking Day in the relevant Observation Period to, and including, the last London Banking Day in such Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily SONIA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first London Banking Day in the relevant Interest Period to, and including, the last London Banking Day in such Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a London Banking Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d_0 , where $i=1$ represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of $i=2$ to d_0 represents the relevant London Banking Day in chronological order from, and including, the first London Banking Day in the Interest Period.

"n_i" for any London Banking Day "i", means the number of calendar days from, and including, such London Banking Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following London Banking Day and (b) the last day of the relevant Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable.

"Observation Period" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the period from, and including, the date falling "p" London Banking Days prior to the first day of such Interest Period and ending on, but excluding, the date falling "p" London Banking Days prior to the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Period (or the date falling "p" London Banking Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable).

"p" means the number of London Banking Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

"SONIA_i" or "SONIA rate" in respect of any London Banking Day "i", in the relevant Observation Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily Sterling Overnight Index Average (SONIA) rate for such London Banking Day as provided by the administrator of SONIA to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the London Banking Day immediately following such London Banking Day).

"SONIA_{i-pLBD}" in respect of any London Banking Day "i", in the relevant Interest Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily Sterling Overnight Index Average (SONIA) rate for the London Banking Day falling "p" London Banking Days prior to such London Banking Day "i" as provided by the administrator of SONIA to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the London Banking Day immediately following the London Banking Day falling "p" London Banking Days prior to such London Banking Day "i").

means $[(1 + X1 / 365) - 1] \times [(1 + X2 / 365) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X30 / 365) - 1]$.

If, in respect of any relevant London Banking Day, the Calculation Agent determines that the SONIA rate is not available on the Relevant Screen Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors, the Calculation Agent will determine such SONIA rate as being the SONIA rate published on the Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding London Banking Day on which the SONIA rate was published on such Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors). If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SONIA rate in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SONIA rate which would have prevailed on such day, the SONIA rate in respect of the relevant London Banking Day shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

- (ii) Compounded Daily SONIA - Index Determination: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where in the relevant Issue Terms SONIA Floating Rate Determination is specified as applicable and Index Determination is specified as applicable, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, be calculated by reference to the screen rate or index administered by the administrator of the Sterling Overnight Index Average reference rate that is published or displayed by such administrator or other information service from time to time at the relevant time on the relevant determination dates specified below (the "SONIA Compounded Index") and the following formula (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one ten-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.00005 being rounded upwards). Such Rate of Interest will be plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation

For the purposes of the above definition, the following terms have the following meanings:

"d" is the number of calendar days from (and including) the day in relation to which "x" is determined to (but excluding) the day in relation to which "y" is determined;

"Relevant Number" is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms;

"x" denotes the value of the relevant SONIA Compounded Index determined in relation to the day falling the Relevant Number of London Banking Days prior to the first day of the relevant Interest Period; and

"y" denotes the value of the relevant SONIA Compounded Index determined in relation to the day falling the Relevant Number of London Banking Days prior to the Interest Period End Date of the relevant Interest Period.

If in respect of any relevant determination date a SONIA Compounded Index value has not been provided or published by or on behalf of the relevant administrator (or any successor administrator) or authorised distributors or the relevant website is not available, the relevant SONIA Compounded Index value will be the last such value provided for the SONIA Compounded Index. If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the SONIA Compounded Index in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the SONIA Compounded Index value which would have prevailed on such day, the SONIA Compounded Index value in respect of the relevant determination date shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

(f) TONA Floating Rate Determination

Compounded Daily TONA: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where TONA Floating Rate Determination is specified in the relevant Issue Terms as the manner in which the Rate of Interest is to be determined, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall be Compounded Daily TONA as determined in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Note Condition 10(f), "Compounded Daily TONA" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily Tokyo Overnight Average Rate as reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.000005 per cent. being rounded upwards):

- (1) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

- (2) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily TONA only compounds the TONA rate in respect of any Tokyo Banking Day. The TONA rate applied to a day that is not a Tokyo Banking Day will be taken by applying the TONA rate for the previous Tokyo Banking Day but without compounding.

" d_b " means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of Tokyo Banking Days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of Tokyo Banking Days in the relevant Interest Period except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a Tokyo Banking Day, it means the number of Tokyo Banking Days plus 1.

" i " means a series of whole numbers from one to d_b , each representing the relevant Tokyo Banking Day in chronological order:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first Tokyo Banking Day in the relevant Observation Period to, and including, the last Tokyo Banking Day in such Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first Tokyo Banking Day in the relevant Interest Period to, and including, the last Tokyo Banking Day in such Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a Tokyo Banking Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d_b , where $i=1$ represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of $i=2$ to d_b represents the relevant Tokyo Banking Day in chronological order from, and including, the first Tokyo Banking Day in the Interest Period.

" n_i " for any Tokyo Banking Day " i ", means the number of calendar days from, and including, such Tokyo Banking Day " i " up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following Tokyo Banking Day and (b) the last day of the relevant Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable.

"Observation Period" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the period from, and including, the date falling " p " Tokyo Banking Days prior to the first day of such Interest Period and ending on, but excluding, the date falling " p " Tokyo Banking Days prior to the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Period (or the date falling " p " Tokyo Banking Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable).

" p " means the number of Tokyo Banking Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

- (i) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily TONA (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period.

"Tokyo Banking Day" means any calendar day (other than a Saturday and Sunday) on which commercial banks are open for general business (including dealings in foreign exchange and foreign currency deposits) in Tokyo.

"TONA" means the Tokyo Overnight Average Rate (TONA) administered by the Bank of Japan (or any successor administrator).

"TONA_i" or "TONA rate" in respect of any Tokyo Banking Day "i", in the relevant Observation Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily TONA for such Tokyo Banking Day, as provided by the administrator of TONA to authorised distributors of TONA and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the Tokyo Banking Day immediately following such Tokyo Banking Day).

"TONA_{i-pTBD}" in respect of any Tokyo Banking Day "i", in the relevant Interest Period, means a reference rate equal to TONA for the Tokyo Banking Day falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to such Tokyo Banking Day "i" as provided by the administrator of TONA to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the Tokyo Banking Day immediately following the Tokyo Banking Day falling "p" Tokyo Banking Days prior to such Tokyo Banking Day "i").

means $[(1 + X1 / 365) - 1] \times [(1 + X2 / 365) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X30 / 365) - 1]$.

If, in respect of any relevant Tokyo Banking Day, the Calculation Agent determines that the TONA rate is not available on the Relevant Screen Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors, the Calculation Agent will determine such TONA rate as being the TONA rate published on the Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding Tokyo Banking Day on which the TONA rate was published on such Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors). If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the TONA rate in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the TONA rate which would have prevailed on such day, the TONA rate in respect of the relevant Tokyo Banking Day shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

(g) €STR Floating Rate Determination

Compounded Daily €STR: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), where €STR Floating Rate Determination is specified in the relevant Issue Terms as applicable, subject as provided in the final paragraph of this provision, the Rate of Interest for each Interest Period shall be Compounded Daily €STR plus or minus (as indicated in the relevant Issue Terms) the Margin (if any) and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period.

For the purposes of this General Note Condition 10(g), "Compounded Daily €STR" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily euro short-term rate as reference rate for the calculation of interest) calculated by the Calculation Agent in respect of the relevant Interest Determination Date (and the resulting percentage will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one ten-thousandth of a percentage point, with 0.00005 being rounded upwards):

- (1) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

- (2) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, as follows:

In each case, for the avoidance of doubt, the formula for the calculation of Compounded Daily €STR only compounds the €STR rate in respect of a TARGET Settlement Day. The €STR reference rate applied to a day that is not a TARGET Settlement Day will be taken by applying the €STR reference rate for the previous TARGET Settlement Day but without compounding.

"d" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of calendar days in the relevant Interest Period.

"d₀" means:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of TARGET Settlement Days in the relevant Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the number of TARGET Settlement Days in the relevant Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a TARGET Settlement Day, it means the number of TARGET Settlement Days plus 1.

"i" means a series of whole numbers from one to d_0 , each representing the relevant TARGET Settlement Day in chronological order:

- (i) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Shift)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first TARGET Settlement Day in the relevant Observation Period to, and including, the last TARGET Settlement Day in such Observation Period; and
- (ii) where "Compounded Daily €STR (Lag)" is specified as applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, from, and including, the first TARGET Settlement Day in the relevant Interest Period to, and including, the last TARGET Settlement Day in such Interest Period, except that, if the first calendar day of the Interest Period is not a TARGET Settlement Day, it means a series of whole numbers from 1 to d_0 , where $i=1$ represents the first calendar day of the Interest Period, and each of $i=2$ to d_0 represents the relevant TARGET Settlement Day in chronological order from, and including, the first TARGET Settlement Day in the Interest Period.

"n_i" for any TARGET Settlement Day "i", means the number of calendar days from, and including, such TARGET Settlement Day "i" up to, but excluding, the earlier of (a) the following TARGET Settlement Day and (b) the last day of the relevant Observation Period or Interest Period, as applicable.

"Observation Period" means, in respect of an Interest Period, the period from, and including, the date falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to the first day of such Interest Period and ending on, but excluding, the date falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Period (or the date falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to such earlier date, if any, on which the Securities become due and payable).

"p" means the number of TARGET Settlement Days specified in the relevant Issue Terms.

"€STR" or "€STR rate" in respect of any TARGET Settlement Day "i", in the relevant Observation Period, means a reference rate equal to the daily euro short-term rate ("€STR") for such TARGET Settlement Day as provided by the administrator of €STR to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the TARGET Settlement Day immediately following such TARGET Settlement Day).

"€STR_{i-pTSD}" in respect of any TARGET Settlement Day "i", in the relevant Interest Period, means a reference rate equal to €STR for the TARGET Settlement Day falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to such TARGET Settlement Day "i" as provided by the administrator of €STR to authorised distributors and as then published on the Relevant Screen Page or, if such Relevant Screen Page is unavailable, as otherwise published by such authorised distributors (on the TARGET Settlement Day immediately following the TARGET Settlement Day falling "p" TARGET Settlement Days prior to such TARGET Settlement Day "i").

" $\prod_{i=1}^n$ " means the product of the relevant factors up to the amount of n. For example,

means $[(1 + X1 / 360) - 1] \times [(1 + X2 / 360) - 1] \times \dots \times [(1 + X30 / 360) - 1]$.

If, in respect of any relevant TARGET Settlement Day, the Calculation Agent determines that the €STR rate is not available on the Relevant Screen Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors, the Calculation Agent will determine such €STR rate as being the €STR rate published on the Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding TARGET Settlement Day on which the €STR rate was published on such Relevant Screen Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors). If the Calculation Agent determines that it is unable to determine the €STR rate in accordance with the preceding sentence, or that it is likely to be materially unrepresentative of the €STR rate which would have prevailed on such day, the €STR rate in respect of the relevant TARGET Settlement Day shall be such other rate as determined by the Calculation Agent, taking into account any sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

- (h) ISDA Determination: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), if the relevant Issue Terms specify "ISDA Determination" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period, the Rate of Interest applicable to the Notes for such Interest Period will be determined by the Calculation Agent as a rate equal to the Relevant ISDA Rate (as defined below), and where a "Margin" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, plus or minus the Margin for such Interest Period, and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period. The "Relevant ISDA Rate" means, in respect of an Interest Period, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:

General Terms and Conditions of the Notes

- (i) "Multiple ISDA Determination Rates" to be not applicable, the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period determined in accordance with the paragraph below; or
- (ii) "Multiple ISDA Determination Rates" to be applicable, the Primary ISDA Rate or the Secondary ISDA Rate as is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms.

The "Primary ISDA Rate" or the "Secondary ISDA Rate" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period as an ISDA Rate in accordance with the paragraph below where the relevant Floating Rate Option, Designated Maturity (if applicable), compounding or averaging method (if applicable), and Reset Date shall be specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of the Primary ISDA Rate or the Secondary ISDA Rate (as applicable).

The "ISDA Rate" in relation to any Interest Period means a rate equal to the Floating Rate (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) that would be determined by the Calculation Agent under an interest rate swap transaction if the Calculation Agent were acting as Calculation Agent for that interest rate swap transaction under the terms of an ISDA 2002 Master Agreement incorporating the ISDA Definitions and under which:

- (i) the Floating Rate Option (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, provided that if a "Non-Standard ISDA Rate Lag" is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, then any provisions in the Floating Rate Option that specify the relevant day preceding a Reset Date on which a screen rate is to be observed or dealer poll or other method of valuation to be undertaken shall be deemed to be amended and replaced by the "Non-Standard ISDA Rate Lag Specified Day" specified in the relevant Issue Terms;
- (ii) the Designated Maturity (as defined in the ISDA Definitions), if applicable, is the period specified in the relevant Issue Terms;
- (iii) the Overnight Rate Compounding Method or Overnight Rate Averaging Method (each, as defined in the 2021 Definitions), if any and as applicable, is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, and the relevant number of Applicable Business Days (for Compounding with Lookback or Averaging with Lookback) or Observation Period Shift Business Days (for Compounding with Observation Period Shift or Averaging with Observation Period Shift) is as specified in the relevant Issue Terms; and
- (iv) the relevant Reset Date (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) is the last day of that Interest Period, unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms,

provided that if, prior to:

- (A) the occurrence of an Index Cessation Effective Date (as defined in the ISDA Definitions) in respect of the ISDA Rate; and
- (B) the occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date (as defined in the 2021 Definitions); and
- (C) the application of any provision relating to discontinued rates maturities (as described in the ISDA Definitions),

the Calculation Agent determines that such ISDA Rate cannot be determined in accordance with the ISDA Definitions read with the above provisions and the provisions of the ISDA Determination Schedule, the ISDA Rate for an Interest Period shall be such rate as is determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to comparable benchmarks then available.

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "ISDA Rate 0% Floor" to be applicable and the ISDA Rate in relation to any Interest Period determined in accordance with the above would otherwise be less than zero, then such ISDA Rate shall be deemed to be zero.

- (i) Steeper Floating Rate Provisions: Subject to General Note Condition 10(l) (Original Primary Rate Cessation) and General Note Condition 10(m) (Administrator/Benchmark Event), if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Steeper Floating Rate Provisions" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest applicable to the Notes for such Interest Period will be determined by the Calculation Agent as a rate equal to the Steeper Rate, and where a "Margin" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, plus or minus the Margin for such Interest Period, and where a "Participation Rate" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for such Interest Period, multiplying the resulting amount by the Participation Rate for such Interest Period. The "Steeper Rate" means, in respect of an Interest Period, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:

- (i) "ISDA Determination Steeper Rates" to be applicable and:
 - (A) "Multiple Steeper Rates" to be not applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between ISDA Rate 1 minus ISDA Rate 2; or
 - (B) "Multiple Steeper Rates" to be applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:
 - (I) "Steeper Rate 1" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Note Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, ISDA Rate 1 minus ISDA Rate 2; or
 - (II) "Steeper Rate 2" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Note Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, ISDA Rate 3 minus ISDA Rate 4.

Each of "ISDA Rate 1", "ISDA Rate 2", "ISDA Rate 3" and "ISDA Rate 4" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period in accordance with General Note Condition 10(h) (ISDA Determination) above as an ISDA Rate where the relevant Floating Rate Option, Designated Maturity, if applicable, compounding or averaging method, if applicable, and Reset Date shall be specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of ISDA Rate 1, ISDA Rate 2, ISDA Rate 3 or ISDA Rate 4 (as applicable) provided that, if: (i) an ISDA Rate 1 Cap or an ISDA Rate 1 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 1 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 1 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 1 Floor (as applicable), (ii) an ISDA Rate 2 Cap or an ISDA Rate 2 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 2 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 2 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 2 Floor (as applicable), (iii) an ISDA Rate 3 Cap or an ISDA Rate 3 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 3 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 3 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 3 Floor (as applicable), or (iv) an ISDA Rate 4 Cap or an ISDA Rate 4 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then ISDA Rate 4 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such ISDA Rate 4 Cap and shall not be less than such ISDA Rate 4 Floor (as applicable); or

- (ii) "Screen Rate Determination Steeper Rates" to be applicable, and:
 - (A) "Multiple Steeper Rates" to be not applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between Reference Rate 1 minus Reference Rate 2; or
 - (B) "Multiple Steeper Rates" to be applicable, an amount determined by the Calculation Agent as the difference between, if the relevant Issue Terms specify:
 - (I) "Steeper Rate 1" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Note Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, Reference Rate 1 minus Reference Rate 2; or
 - (II) "Steeper Rate 2" to be applicable in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Applicable Floating Rate Note Conditions" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period, Reference Rate 3 minus Reference Rate 4.

Each of "Reference Rate 1", "Reference Rate 2", "Reference Rate 3" and "Reference Rate 4" (as applicable) shall be determined for the relevant Interest Period in accordance with General Note Condition 10(c) (Screen Rate Determination) above as a Reference Rate where each of (where applicable) the relevant Reference Rate Currency, Interest Determination Date, Relevant Screen Page(s), Relevant Maturity, Relevant Time, Specified Time, Relevant Financial Centre, and the applicability of the Direct Calculation Agent Determination Fallback, shall be specified in the relevant Issue Terms in respect of Reference Rate 1, Reference Rate 2, Reference Rate 3 or Reference Rate 4 (as applicable) provided that, if: (i) a Reference Rate 1 Cap or a Reference Rate 1 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 1 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 1 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 1 Floor (as applicable), (ii) a Reference Rate 2 Cap or a Reference Rate 2 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 2 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 2 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 2 Floor (as applicable), (iii) a Reference Rate 3 Cap or a Reference Rate 3 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 3 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 3 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 3 Floor (as applicable), or (iv) a Reference Rate 4 Cap or a Reference Rate 4 Floor is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then Reference Rate 4 for such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Reference Rate 4 Cap and shall not be less than such Reference Rate 4 Floor (as applicable).

- (j) Maximum or Minimum Rate of Interest: If: (i) any Maximum Rate of Interest is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period shall not be greater than such Maximum Rate of Interest for such Interest Period, or (ii) any Minimum Rate of Interest is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period shall not be less than the Minimum Rate of Interest for such Interest Period, or (iii) a Maximum Rate of Interest and a Minimum Rate of Interest is specified in the relevant Issue Terms for an Interest Period, then the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period shall not be less than the Minimum Rate of Interest and shall not be greater than the Maximum Rate of Interest for such Interest Period.
- (k) Capped Floored Floating Rate Note Conditions: This General Note Condition 10(k) is applicable to Notes only if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Capped Floored Floating Rate Note Conditions" to be applicable in respect of an Interest Period.
 - (i) If the relevant Issue Terms specify a Minimum Rate of Interest for an Interest Period, if the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period determined in accordance with General Note Condition 10(c), General Note Condition 10(d) or General Note Condition 10(j) is less than such Minimum Rate of Interest, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period shall be such Minimum Rate of Interest. If Minimum Rate of Interest is specified to be not applicable, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period will not be subject to any minimum amount.
 - (ii) If the relevant Issue Terms specify a Maximum Rate of Interest for an Interest Period, if the Rate of Interest in respect of such Interest Period determined in accordance with General Note Condition 10(c), General Note Condition 10(d) or General Note Condition 10(j) is greater than such Maximum Rate of Interest, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period shall be such Maximum Rate of Interest. If Maximum Rate of Interest is specified to be not applicable, the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period will not be subject to any maximum amount.
- (l) Original Primary Rate Cessation:
 - (i) If the Calculation Agent determines, in its discretion and acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, that an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and its related Original Primary Rate Cessation Date have occurred or are existing on any day in respect of (i) an Original Primary Rate or, (ii) where the Original Primary Rate is a compounded rate of an RFR (as determined by the Calculation Agent), the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR, in each case in respect of the Securities (such affected rate, a "Discontinued Original Primary Rate"), the Calculation Agent shall determine the Rate of Interest for the relevant Interest Period (or relevant day, as applicable) in respect of such Securities in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, after consulting any source it deems to be reasonable, as:

- (A) a substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source that it has determined is the industry-accepted standard in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source for the Discontinued Original Primary Rate; or
- (B) if it determines that there is no such industry-accepted standard in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source, then a substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source that it determines is a commercially reasonable alternative to the Discontinued Original Primary Rate, taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market),

in each case provided that (i) any such substitute or successor rate, index, benchmark or other price source determined in accordance with (A) or (B) above (as applicable) (the "Replacement Primary Rate"), may (without limitation) comprise a replacement rate, index, benchmark or other price source, which is determined on a backward-looking compounding basis by reference to a "risk-free rate", (ii) there may be more than one Replacement Primary Rates (which may be applied as of one or more effective dates), (iii) the Rate of Interest may include an adjustment factor or Adjustment Spread and (iv) the Conditions may be subject to adjustment pursuant to the paragraph immediately below.

If the Calculation Agent determines the Rate of Interest in accordance with this General Note Condition 10(1)(i), it may make such adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Securities to account for such change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest, including (but not limited to) any such adjustment(s) that the Calculation Agent determines are required in order to reduce or eliminate, to the extent reasonably practicable, any change in the economic value of the Securities from such change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest. Any such adjustment(s) which the Calculation Agent determines to be appropriate (1) shall be made to the extent reasonably practicable, but also taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market), (2) may include an adjustment factor and/or Adjustment Spread (which may be positive or negative) together with any technical, administrative or operational changes, and (3) may be applied on more than one occasion and may be made as of one or more effective dates.

- (ii) If the Calculation Agent determines that the application of General Note Condition 10(1)(i) would not achieve a commercially reasonable result (because it is not possible or commercially reasonable to identify a Replacement Primary Rate or relevant adjustments or for any other reason) and/or is or would likely be unlawful at any time under any applicable law or regulation or it would contravene any applicable licensing requirements to determine the Rate of Interest in accordance with the terms of such provisions, the Calculation Agent may determine that the Securities shall be redeemed, in which event the Issuer will cause to be paid to each Holder in respect of each Security held by it an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount.
- (iii) The Calculation Agent shall deliver a notice to the Holders as soon as practicable in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices), which shall specify any Replacement Primary Rate(s) and any related amendments to the Conditions.

Neither the Calculation Agent nor any of the Issuer, the Guarantor (if any) or any of the other Agents shall have any duty to monitor, enquire or satisfy itself as to whether any Original Primary Rate Cessation Event or Original Primary Rate Cessation Date has occurred.

- (m) Administrator/Benchmark Event: if the Calculation Agent determines that an Administrator/Benchmark Event and its related Administrator/Benchmark Event Date have occurred or are existing on any day in respect of any Securities and a Relevant Benchmark, the Calculation Agent may:
- (A) make such adjustment to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the economic effect on the Securities of such Administrator/Benchmark Event (including without limitation, to select a successor Relevant Benchmark) and any adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Securities to account for such replacement and/or change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest, including (but not limited to) any such adjustment(s) that the Calculation Agent determines are required in order to reduce or eliminate, to the extent reasonably practicable, any change in the economic value of the Securities from such replacement and/or change to the method of determination of the Rate of Interest; or
 - (B) determine that the Securities shall be redeemed, in which event the Issuer shall redeem the Notes on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices) and pay to the Holder in respect of each Note the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day.

Notwithstanding anything else in this General Note Condition 10(m), in the event that the Administrator/Benchmark Event comprises a Material Methodology Change Event, the Calculation Agent may determine not to undertake any or all of the actions described in this General Note Condition 10(m).

Neither the Calculation Agent nor any of the Issuer, the Guarantor (if any) or any of the other Agents shall have any duty to monitor, enquire or satisfy itself as to whether an Administrator/Benchmark Event or Administrator/Benchmark Event Date has occurred.

- (n) Interim measures: If, at any time, following (i) an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date but prior to any replacement or amendment having become effective pursuant to General Note Condition 10(l) above, or (ii) the occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date but prior to any adjustment and/or redemption and/or cancellation and/or any other action the Issuer may take under General Note Condition 10(m) above taking effect, the relevant Original Primary Rate is required for any determination in respect of the Securities, then:
- (A) if the Original Primary Rate is still available, and it is still permitted under applicable law or regulation for the Securities to reference the Original Primary Rate and for the Issuer and/or the Calculation Agent to use the Original Primary Rate to perform its or their respective obligations under the Securities, the level of the Original Primary Rate shall be determined pursuant to the terms that would apply to the determination of the Original Primary Rate as if no Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or Administrator/Benchmark Event Date (as applicable) had occurred; or
 - (B) if the Original Primary Rate is no longer available or it is no longer permitted under applicable law or regulation applicable to the Issuer and/or to the Calculation Agent (as applicable) for the Securities to reference the Original Primary Rate or for any such entity to use the Original Primary Rate to perform its or their respective obligations under the Securities, the level of the Original Primary Rate shall be determined by the Calculation Agent acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to such sources as it considers appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market), as (a) a substitute or successor rate that it has determined is the industry-accepted (in the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate for the relevant Original Primary Rate or (b) if it determines there is no such industry-accepted (in the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate, a substitute or successor rate that it determines is a commercially reasonable alternative to the Original Primary Rate, taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). If such Original Primary Rate is determined as any such substituted or successor rate, the Calculation Agent may determine such other amendments to the Securities which it considers are necessary and/or appropriate in order to reflect the replacement of the Original Primary Rate with such substituted or successor rate. If the Calculation Agent determines the Original Primary Rate in accordance with this sub-paragraph, the Calculation Agent shall notify the Issuer of such determination made by it and the action that it proposes to take in respect of any such determination and the Issuer, in turn, shall notify the Holders thereof as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter.

- (o) Hierarchy if both an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and an Administrator/Benchmark Event occur: If the Calculation Agent determines that an event constitutes both an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and an Administrator/Benchmark Event, then it will be deemed to be an Original Primary Rate Cessation Event and not an Administrator/Benchmark Event, provided that if an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date has not occurred before the Original Primary Rate Cessation Date occurs, then General Note Condition 10(n) (Interim measures) above shall apply as if an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date had occurred.
- (p) Corrections to Published and Displayed Rates: In the event that (i) the Original Primary Rate determined in accordance with this General Note Condition 10 (Floating Rate Note Conditions) or, (ii) where the relevant Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR, the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR, is subsequently corrected, and the correction (the "Corrected Rate") is published after the original publication but no later than the longer of (a) one hour after such original publication and (b) any other period for corrections specified by a relevant administrator in its methodology for the relevant Original Primary Rate (or, where the Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR, the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR), then, provided that such Corrected Rate is published on or prior to the date falling two Business Days prior to the date on which a related payment is scheduled to be made under the Securities (the "Relevant Scheduled Payment Date"), such Corrected Rate shall be deemed to be the relevant Original Primary Rate (or where the Original Primary Rate is a Compounded RFR, the RFR referenced in such Compounded RFR) and the Calculation Agent shall use such Corrected Rate in determining the relevant Rate of Interest and related Interest Amount. Any corrections published after the second Business Day prior to the Relevant Scheduled Payment Date shall be disregarded for the purposes of determining the relevant Rate of Interest.
- (q) Calculation of Interest Amount: If "Deferred Interest Payments" is specified to be not applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the Calculation Agent will, as soon as practicable after the time at which the Rate of Interest is to be determined in relation to each Interest Period, calculate the Interest Amount payable on an Interest Payment Date in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount for the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) the Interest Period End Date for such Interest Payment Date. The Interest Amount will be calculated by multiplying the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to such Interest Period, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Note Condition 24 (Rounding).
- (r) Deferred Interest Payments: If "Deferred Interest Payments" is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, (i) the Calculation Agent will, as soon as practicable after the time at which the Rate of Interest is to be determined in relation to each Interest Period, calculate the Interest Amount in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount for such Interest Period, and (ii) the Accumulated Interest Amount shall be payable on the Interest Payment Date. The Interest Amount for each Interest Period will be calculated by multiplying the Rate of Interest for such Interest Period by the Calculation Amount, and further multiplying the product by the relevant Day Count Fraction applicable to the Interest Period ending on (but excluding) the relevant Interest Period End Date, and rounding the resulting figure in accordance with General Note Condition 24 (Rounding).

- (s) Calculation of other amounts: In respect of any other amount referred to in the Conditions which is to be calculated by the Calculation Agent, the Calculation Agent will, as soon as practicable after the time or times at which any such amount is to be determined, calculate the relevant amount in accordance with the Conditions.
- (t) Publication: The Calculation Agent will cause each Rate of Interest and Interest Amount determined by it, together with the relevant Interest Payment Date, and any other amount(s) required to be determined by it together with any relevant payment date(s) to be notified to the Paying Agents and, if required by each competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system (if any) to which the Notes have then been admitted to listing, trading and/or quotation, to such competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system (if any) as soon as practicable after such determination. Notice thereof shall also promptly be given to the Noteholders. The Calculation Agent will be entitled to recalculate any Interest Amount (on the basis of the foregoing provisions) without notice in the event of an extension or shortening of the relevant Interest Period. If the Calculation Amount is less than the minimum Specified Denomination the Calculation Agent shall not be obliged to publish each Interest Amount but instead may publish only the Calculation Amount and the Interest Amount in respect of a Note having the minimum Specified Denomination.

11. Change of Interest Basis

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Change of Interest Basis" to be applicable, the Rate of Interest applicable to an Interest Period shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with the Interest Basis set forth in the Interest Rate Table in the column entitled "Interest Basis" in the row corresponding to such Interest Period.

Where the Interest Basis applicable to an Interest Period is: (i) "Fixed Coupon", the Rate of Interest shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with General Note Condition 09 (Fixed Rate Note Conditions) or (ii) "Floating Coupon", the Rate of Interest shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with General Note Condition 10 (Floating Rate Note Conditions).

12. Redemption and Purchase

- (a) Scheduled redemption: Unless previously redeemed, or purchased and cancelled, the Notes will be redeemed at their Final Redemption Amount or if so specified in the relevant Issue Terms, at their Physical Settlement Amount, on the Maturity Date, subject as provided in General Note Condition 13 (Payments – Registered Notes).
- (b) Payments and Deliveries of the Physical Settlement Amount in respect of Swiss Securities: Payments of principal and/or interest and/or Delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount in respect of Swiss Securities held through SIS or any other eligible entity, acting as custodian as defined in Article 4 of the FISA shall be made, subject to applicable fiscal and other laws and regulations of SIS or such other eligible entity, acting as custodian as defined in article 4 of the FISA to the relevant Clearing System(s) or to its/their order for credit to the account(s) of the relevant account holder(s) in accordance with the Relevant Rules. The Issuer (or the Guarantor, if applicable) and the Paying Agent shall be discharged by payment or delivery to, or to the order of, such account holders.
- (c) Redemption at the option of the Issuer: If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Redemption at the option of the Issuer" to be applicable, all of the Notes may be redeemed at the option of the Issuer (such option, the "Call Option") on any Optional Redemption Date (Call) by the Issuer giving notice to the Noteholders on or before the Call Option Notice Date corresponding to such Optional Redemption Date (Call). The notice shall be irrevocable and shall oblige the Issuer to redeem the Notes on the relevant Optional Redemption Date (Call) by payment of the Optional Redemption Amount (Call) corresponding to such Optional Redemption Date (Call) in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount and where the relevant Issue Terms specify "Accrued interest payable", plus accrued interest (if any) to such date, as calculated by the Calculation Agent. In the case of Notes held or cleared through Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, such notice shall not be less than five Business Days (or such other period of time as may be provided by any applicable rules of Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg) and in the case of Notes not held or cleared through Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, such notice shall be given in accordance with any applicable rules of the relevant Clearing System.

- (d) Redemption at the option of Noteholders: Subject to General Note Conditions 12(f) (Exercise of Put Option – Notes represented by Individual Note Certificates), 12(g) (Exercise of Put Option – Global Registered Notes), 12(h) (Exercise of Put Option – Euroclear France Registered Notes), 12(i) (Exercise of Put Option – French Law Notes), 12(j) (Exercise of Put Option – Euroclear Finland Registered Notes), 12(k) (Exercise of Put Option – Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes), and 12(l) (Exercise of Put Option – VPS Registered Notes) below, if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Redemption at the option of Noteholders" to be applicable, the Issuer shall, at the option of the Holder of any Note (such option, the "Put Option") redeem each nominal amount of such Note equal to the Calculation Amount on the Optional Redemption Date (Put) by payment of the Optional Redemption Amount (Put) in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount on the Optional Redemption Date (Put), and where the relevant Issue Terms specify "Accrued interest payable", plus accrued interest (if any) to such date, as calculated by the Calculation Agent.
- (e) Redemption following an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date: If, following the occurrence of an Original Primary Rate Cessation Date or an Administrator/Benchmark Event Date:
- (i) the Calculation Agent determines that it cannot identify a Replacement Primary Rate or determine an Adjustment Spread in accordance with General Note Condition 10(l) on or before the Cut-off Date;
 - (ii) it (A) is or would be unlawful at any time under any applicable law or regulation; or (B) would contravene any applicable licensing requirements, for the Calculation Agent to perform the actions prescribed in General Note Condition 10(l) (or it would be unlawful or would contravene those licensing requirements were a determination to be made at such time);
 - (iii) the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Spread is or would be a benchmark, index or other price source whose production, publication, methodology or governance would subject either the Issuer or the Calculation Agent to material additional regulatory obligations (such as the obligations for administrators under the EU Benchmarks Regulation and/or UK Benchmarks Regulation) which it is unwilling to undertake; or
 - (iv) the Calculation Agent determines that having identified a Replacement Primary Rate and determined an Adjustment Spread on or before the Cut-off Date in accordance with General Note Condition 10(l), the adjustments provided for in General Note Condition 10(h) would not achieve a commercially reasonable result for either the Issuer, Calculation Agent or the Holders, then the Issuer shall redeem the Notes on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices) and pay to the Holder in respect of each Note the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day.

- (f) Exercise of Put Option – Notes represented by Individual Note Certificates: Notes represented by Individual Note Certificates: The Holder of a Note represented by an Individual Note Certificate shall exercise the Put Option by depositing a duly completed Put Option Notice and the Individual Note Certificate representing such Note with any Paying Agent within the Put Option Notice Period. The Paying Agent with which a Note is so deposited shall deliver a duly completed Put Option Receipt to the depositing Noteholder. Any such Put Option Notice will be irrevocable and may not be withdrawn and no Note, once deposited with a duly completed Put Option Notice in accordance with this General Note Condition 12(f), may be withdrawn; provided that if, prior to the relevant Optional Redemption Date (Put), any such Note becomes immediately due and payable or payment of the redemption moneys is improperly withheld or refused, the relevant Paying Agent shall mail notification thereof to the depositing Noteholder at such address as may have been given by such Noteholder in the relevant Put Option Notice and shall hold such Note at its Specified Office for collection by the depositing Noteholder against surrender of the relevant Put Option Receipt. General Terms and Conditions of the Notes

The calculation described in sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii)(A) can be expressed as a formula as follows:

$$\text{ZCRF} \times (1 + \text{Accrual Yield})^{\text{DCF(ZC)}}; \text{ or}$$

- (B) if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Daily Compounding" to be applicable, the product of the Accrual Yield (compounded daily) being applied to the Zero Coupon Reference Price from the Accrual Commencement Date (and including or excluding such Accrual Commencement Date, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms) to the date fixed for redemption or (as the case may be) the date upon which the Note becomes due and payable (such final date, as is applicable being the "Zero Coupon Period End Date") (and including or excluding such Zero Coupon Period End Date, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms). The calculation described in sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii)(B) can be expressed as a formula as follows:

- (C) if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Compounding" and "Daily Compounding" to be not applicable, the product of the Accrual Yield (without any compounding) being applied to the Zero Coupon Reference Price from the Accrual Commencement Date (and including or excluding such Accrual Commencement Date, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms) to the date fixed for redemption or (as the case may be) the date upon which the Note becomes due and payable (such final date, as is applicable being the "Zero Coupon Period End Date") (and including or excluding such Zero Coupon Period End Date, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms). The calculation described in sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii)(C) can be expressed as a formula as follows:

- (t) Late payment on Zero Coupon Notes: If the Redemption Amount payable in respect of any Zero Coupon Note is improperly withheld or refused and "Accreted Value" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms as being applicable, subject as provided in General Note Condition 12(s) above, the Redemption Amount shall thereafter be an amount equal to the sum of:

- (i) the Zero Coupon Reference Price; and
- (ii) (A) if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Compounding" to be applicable, an amount calculated in accordance with the following formula:

- (B) if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Daily Compounding" to be applicable, an amount calculated in accordance with the following formula:

- (C) if the relevant Issue Terms specify "Compounding" and "Daily Compounding" to be not applicable, an amount calculated in accordance with the following formula:

$$\text{ZCRF} \times (1 + \text{Accrual Yield} \times \text{DCF}(\text{ZC})),$$

where the relevant Day Count Fraction (the "DCF(ZC)") is applied to the Zero Coupon Reference Price from the Accrual Commencement Date (and including or excluding such Accrual Commencement Date, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms) to whichever is the earlier of (1) the day on which all sums due in respect of such Note up to that day are received by or on behalf of the relevant Noteholder and (2) the day which is seven days after the Fiscal Agent has notified the Noteholders that it has received all sums due in respect of the Notes up to such seventh day (except to the extent that there is any subsequent default in payment) (such final date, as is applicable being the "Zero Coupon Period Late Payment End Date").

- (u) Instalment Notes: Unless previously redeemed or purchased and cancelled, each Instalment Note shall:
- (i) be partially redeemed on the Initial Instalment Date by payment of the Initial Instalment Amount in respect of each nominal amount of each Instalment Note equal to the Initial Calculation Amount; and
 - (ii) be redeemed on the Final Instalment Date by payment of the Final Instalment Amount in respect of each nominal amount of each Instalment Note equal to the Adjusted Calculation Amount.

Following payment on the Initial Instalment Date of the Initial Instalment Amount in respect of each nominal amount of each Instalment Note equal to the Initial Calculation Amount, the outstanding nominal amount of each nominal amount of each Instalment Note equal to the Initial Calculation Amount shall be reduced by an amount equal to the Initial Instalment Amount for all purposes with effect from the Initial Instalment Date.

Euroclear Finland Holders will not be entitled to any interest or other compensation for any delay after the due date in receiving the amount due as a result of the due date for payment not being a Business Day.

In respect of each Series of Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, the Issuer shall at all times maintain a Registrar which shall be the duly authorised Finnish central securities depository under the Finnish Act on the Book-Entry System and Clearing Operations and a Finnish Paying Agent duly authorised as an account operator (in Finnish: tilinhoitajayhteisö) under the Finnish Act on the Book-Entry System and Clearing Operations.

Where payment in respect of a Registered Note is to be made by cheque, the cheque will be mailed to the address shown as the address of the Holder in the Register at the opening of business on the relevant Record Date. For Global Registered Notes, the "Record Date" shall be the close of business (in the relevant Clearing System) on the Clearing System Business Day or, if specified in the relevant Issue Terms, such other Specified Day(s) before the due date for payment where "Clearing System Business Day" means a day on which the relevant Clearing System is open for business.
- (viii) Payments subject to fiscal laws: All payments in respect of the Registered Notes are subject in all cases to any applicable fiscal or other laws and regulations in the place of

- (ix) Payments on Business Days: In respect of any Registered Notes in definitive form, where payment is to be made by transfer to an account, payment instructions (for value the due date, or, if the due date is not a Payment Business Day, for value the next succeeding Payment Business Day) will be initiated and, where payment is to be made by cheque, the cheque will be mailed (i) (in the case of payments of principal and interest payable on redemption) on the later of the due date for payment and the day on which the relevant Note Certificate is surrendered (or, in the case of part payment only, endorsed) at the Specified Office of a Paying Agent and (ii) (in the case of payments of interest payable other than on redemption) on the due date for payment. If the due date for payment of any amount in respect of any Global Registered Note is not a Payment Business Day, the Holder shall not be entitled to payment in such place of the amount due until the next succeeding Payment Business Day and shall not be entitled to any interest or other payment in respect of any such delay. A Holder of a Registered Note shall not be entitled to any interest or other payment in respect of any delay in payment resulting from (A) the due date for a payment not being a Payment Business Day or (B) a cheque mailed in accordance with this General Note Condition 13 arriving after the due date for payment or being lost in the mail.

- (b) French Law Notes: In respect of French Law Notes, payments of principal and/or interest (including, for the avoidance of doubt, any arrears of interest, where applicable) shall be made by transfer to the account denominated in the relevant currency of the relevant Euroclear France Account Holders for the benefit of the Holders. All payments validly made to such Euroclear France Account Holders will be an effective discharge of the Issuer in respect of such payments.
- (c) Negative amounts: Notwithstanding anything else, in the event that any Redemption Amount, Interest Amount, Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount or any other amount payable by the Issuer in respect of a Note under the Conditions would otherwise be a negative amount, such amount shall be deemed to be zero.
- (d) Discharge of payment (and delivery) obligations by Issuer: The holder of a Global Registered Note shall be the only person entitled to receive payments (or deliveries) in respect of Notes represented by such Global Registered Note and the Issuer's payment (or delivery) obligations under the Notes will be discharged by payment (or delivery) to, or to the order of, the holder of such Global Registered Note (being the common depositary or, as the case may be, its nominee, in respect of the Global Registered Note (or, in the case of Global Registered Note issued under the NSS, a Common Safekeeper and registered in the name of a nominee for such Common Safekeeper)) in respect of each amount so paid (or asset so delivered). Each of the persons shown in the records of the relevant Clearing System as the holder of a particular principal amount of Notes must look solely to such Clearing System for its share of each payment (or delivery) made by the Issuer. No person other than the holder of such Global Registered Note shall have any claim against the Issuer in respect of any payments (or deliveries) due on the Notes represented by that Global Registered Note.

14. Physical Settlement

- (a) Physical Settlement: If the relevant Issue Terms specify General Note Condition 14(a) or "Physical Settlement" to be applicable, in order to obtain the Deliverable Assets in respect of each Note ("Physical Settlement"), the relevant Holder must deliver, not later than the close of business in each place of receipt on the Physical Settlement Cut-off Date to: (i) the Paying Agent and the Registrar and (ii) if such Note is represented by a Global Registered Note, Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as the case may be, a duly completed Asset Transfer Notice (the Asset Transfer Notice requirement shall not apply to Swiss Securities), provided that the relevant Holder shall be liable for all Taxes and stamp duties, transaction costs, and any other costs incurred by the Issuer and any of its affiliates in the delivery of the Deliverable Assets to such Holder (such sums, the "Delivery Expenses"), and delivery of the Deliverable Assets shall take place only after the Delivery Expenses (if any) have been paid by such Holder to or to the order of the Issuer. No Note shall confer on a Holder any right to acquire the Deliverable Assets and the Issuer is not obliged to purchase or hold the Deliverable Assets.

If any Holder fails properly to complete and deliver an Asset Transfer Notice which results in such Asset Transfer Notice being treated as null and void, the Issuer may determine, in its sole and absolute discretion whether to waive the requirement to deliver a properly completed Asset Transfer Notice prior to the Physical Settlement Cut-off Date in order for such Holder to receive the Redemption Amount and/or Interest Amount, as the case may be, by obtaining delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount in respect of such Note(s) and shall give notice of such waiver to Euroclear, Clearstream, Luxembourg or any other Clearing System, as the case may be, and to each of the Paying Agents and the Calculation Agent.

The delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount shall be made (i) if practicable and in respect of Notes represented by a Global Registered Note, to the relevant Clearing System for the credit of the account of the Noteholder or (ii) in such other commercially reasonable manner as the Issuer shall determine to be appropriate for such delivery and will, where appropriate and if practicable, notify the Noteholders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices).

Subject as provided in this General Note Condition 14, in relation to each Note which is to be redeemed by delivery of a Physical Settlement Amount, the Physical Settlement Amount will be delivered at the risk of the relevant Holder in the manner provided above on the relevant Physical Settlement Date, provided that the Asset Transfer Notice is duly delivered as provided above not later than the Physical Settlement Cut-off Date. The obligation of the Issuer to deliver Shares is limited to the delivery of Shares having the characteristics and in the form that allows delivery via the relevant Clearing System and does not include registration of the Holder in the share register or in the list of shareholders, and none of the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or any other Person shall have any liability for any such failure of (or delay in) registration.

Where the Physical Settlement Amount would otherwise comprise, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, fractions of Deliverable Assets, a Holder will receive the Physical Settlement Amount comprising the nearest number (rounded down) of Deliverable Assets capable of being delivered by the Issuer (provided that a Holder's entire holding may not be aggregated at the Issuer's discretion for the purpose of delivering the Physical Settlement Amounts and, if a Fractional Cash Amount is specified in the relevant Issue Terms, a Holder will also receive the Fractional Cash Amount (if any) in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount capable of being paid by the Issuer (provided that a Holder's entire holding may not be aggregated at the Issuer's discretion for the purpose of paying the Fractional Cash Amounts).

Physical Settlement for French Law Notes: if the relevant Issue Terms specify General Note Condition 14(a) or "Physical Settlement" to be applicable, in order to obtain the Deliverable Assets in respect of each Note ("Physical Settlement"), the relevant Holder must arrange for the Euroclear France Account Holder through which its Notes are held to deliver on its behalf, not later than the close of business in each place of receipt on the Physical Settlement Cut-off Date to: (i) the French Paying Agent and (ii) Euroclear France, a duly completed Asset Transfer Notice and to simultaneously transfer the relevant Notes to the Euroclear France account of the French Paying Agent, provided that the relevant Holder shall be liable for all Taxes and stamp duties, transaction costs, and any other costs incurred by the Issuer and any of its affiliates in the delivery of the Deliverable Assets to such Holder (such sums, the "Delivery Expenses"), and delivery of the Deliverable Assets shall take place only after the Delivery Expenses (if any) have been paid by such Holder to or to the order of the Issuer. No Note shall confer on a Holder any right to acquire the Deliverable Assets and the Issuer is not obliged to purchase or hold the Deliverable Assets.

If any Holder fails properly to complete and to have an Asset Transfer Notice delivered, on its behalf, which results in such Asset Transfer Notice being treated as null and void, the Issuer may determine, in its sole and absolute discretion whether to waive the requirement to deliver a properly completed Asset Transfer Notice prior to the Physical Settlement Cut-off Date in order for such Holder to receive the Redemption Amount and/or Interest Amount, as the case may be, by obtaining delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount in respect of such Note(s) and shall give notice of such waiver to Euroclear France and to the French Paying Agent and the Calculation Agent.

The delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount shall be made (i) if practicable to Euroclear France for the credit of the account of the Noteholder or (ii) in such other commercially reasonable manner as the Issuer and/or the French Paying Agent shall determine to be appropriate for such delivery and will, where appropriate and if practicable, notify the Noteholders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices).

Subject as provided in this General Note Condition 14, in relation to each Note which is to be redeemed by delivery of a Physical Settlement Amount, the Physical Settlement Amount will be delivered at the risk of the relevant Holder in the manner provided above on the relevant Physical Settlement Date, provided that the Asset Transfer Notice is duly delivered as provided above not later than the Physical Settlement Cut-off Date. The obligation of the Issuer and/or of the French Paying Agent to deliver Shares is limited to the delivery of Shares having the characteristics and in the form that allows delivery via Euroclear France and does not include registration of the Holder in the share register or in the list of shareholders, and none of the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or any other Person shall have any liability for any such failure of (or delay in) registration.

Where the Physical Settlement Amount would otherwise comprise, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, fractions of Deliverable Assets, a Holder will receive the Physical Settlement Amount comprising the nearest number (rounded down) of Deliverable Assets capable of being delivered by the Issuer and/or by the French Paying Agent (provided that a Holder's entire holding may not be aggregated at the Issuer's discretion for the purpose of delivering the Physical Settlement Amounts), and, if a Fractional Cash Amount is specified in the relevant Issue Terms, a Holder will also receive the Fractional Cash Amount (if any) in respect of each nominal amount of each Note equal to the Calculation Amount capable of being paid by the Issuer (provided that a Holder's entire holding may not be aggregated at the Issuer's discretion for the purpose of paying the Fractional Cash Amounts).

This General Note Condition 14(a) is not applicable to the Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes, the VPS Registered Notes or the Euroclear France Registered Notes.

- (b) Holder's Election for Physical Settlement: If the relevant Issue Terms specify General Note Condition 14(b) or "Holder's Election for Physical Settlement" to be applicable, upon the redemption of a Note by a Holder, such Holder may in the Asset Transfer Notice elect not to receive the Final Redemption Amount, but instead, subject to a Physical Settlement Disruption Event, request the Issuer to transfer or procure the transfer of the Deliverable Assets in respect of each Note so redeemed and such Asset Transfer Notice will be irrevocable notice to the Issuer. Neither the Notes nor the Asset Transfer Notice confers any right on the Holder to acquire the Deliverable Assets and the Issuer is not obliged to purchase, hold or deliver the Deliverable Assets until the Holder has paid any Taxes (if applicable).

This General Note Condition 14(b) is not applicable to the Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes, VPS Registered Notes, Euroclear France Registered Notes or the French Law Notes.

- (c) Settlement Disruption: If, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount using the method of delivery specified in General Note Condition 14(a) is not practicable by reason of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event having occurred and being continuing on the Physical Settlement Date, then the Physical Settlement Date shall be postponed to the first following Business Day in respect of which there is no such Physical Settlement Disruption Event, provided that the Issuer may elect in its sole discretion to satisfy its obligations in respect of the relevant Note by delivering or procuring the delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount using such other commercially reasonable manner as it may select and in such event the Physical Settlement Date shall be such day as the Issuer deems appropriate in connection with delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount in such other commercially reasonable manner. For the avoidance of doubt, where a Physical Settlement Disruption Event affects some but not all of the Deliverable Assets comprising the Physical Settlement Amount, the Physical Settlement Date for the Deliverable Assets not affected by the Physical Settlement Disruption Event will be the originally designated Physical Settlement Date. For so long as delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount is not practicable by reason of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event, then in lieu of physical settlement and notwithstanding any other provision hereof the Issuer may elect in its sole and absolute discretion to satisfy its obligations in respect of the relevant Note by payment to the relevant Holder of the Physical Settlement Disruption Amount on the fifth Business Day following the date that notice of such election is given to the Holders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices). Payment of the Physical Settlement Disruption Amount will be made in such manner as shall be notified to the Holders. The Calculation Agent shall give notice as soon as practicable to the Holders that a Physical Settlement Disruption Event has occurred. No Holder shall be entitled to any payment in respect of the relevant Note in the event of any delay in the delivery of the Physical Settlement Amount due to the occurrence of a Physical Settlement Disruption Event and no liability in respect thereof shall attach to the Issuer, the relevant Guarantor (if applicable), the Calculation Agent or the Paying Agent.

15. Consequences of an FX Disruption Event, a CNY FX Disruption Event or a Currency Conversion Disruption Event

- (a) FX Disruption Event: Unless the relevant Issue Terms specify that 'FX Disruption Event' is not applicable to the Notes, if the Calculation Agent has determined that an FX Disruption Event has occurred and is continuing, the Issuer may (i) postpone any payment obligation under the Notes by up to 30 calendar days, and/or (ii) satisfy its obligation to make the payment in the Specified Currency by making the payment in U.S. dollars, on the basis of the rate of exchange as determined by the Calculation Agent, in its discretion, and/or (iii) make commercially reasonable adjustments to the Conditions of the Notes, taking into account the circumstances leading to the FX Disruption Event.
- (b) Postponement or Payment in USD: If the Calculation Agent has determined that (1) a CNY FX Disruption Event or a Currency Conversion Disruption Event, as the case may be, has occurred and is continuing and (2) such CNY FX Disruption Event or Currency Conversion Disruption Event, as the case may be, is material in relation to the Issuer's payment obligations under the Notes (including, for the avoidance of doubt, in relation to the Issuer's hedge position under the Notes) in respect of any forthcoming Interest Payment Date, Maturity Date or other date on which amounts are payable under the Notes by the Issuer under the Conditions (each such date, an "Affected Payment Date"), then:
- (i) if the relevant Issue Terms specify that "Currency Conversion Disruption Event" is applicable to the Notes, the Affected Payment Date shall be postponed until the earlier of (A) the Adjusted Affected Payment Date and (B) the Affected Payment Cut-off Date. The amount payable on such postponed date shall not be adjusted from the amount originally payable; or

- (iii) all Events of Default with respect to Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes or VPS Registered Notes of that Series, other than the non-payment of the principal of Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes or VPS Registered Notes of that Series, which have become due solely by such declaration of acceleration, have been cured or waived as provided below. No such rescission shall affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereon.

The Euroclear Finland Holders, Euroclear Sweden Holders or VPS Holders of at least a majority in principal amount of the outstanding notes of any Series may on behalf of the Euroclear Finland Holders, Euroclear Sweden Holders or VPS Holders of all the Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes or VPS Registered Notes of such Series waive any past default hereunder with respect to such Series and its consequences, except a default in the payment of the principal of (or premium, if any, and, if such Note is a Zero Coupon Note and "Accreted Value" is specified to be applicable in the relevant Issue Terms, the Accrual Yield payable in respect thereof) or interest, if any, on any Euroclear Finland Registered Note, Euroclear Sweden Registered Note or VPS Registered Note of such Series, or in the payment of any sinking fund instalment or analogous obligation with respect to the Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes or VPS Registered Notes, such Series. Upon any such waiver, such default shall cease to exist, and any Event of Default arising therefrom shall be deemed to have been cured, for every purpose of the Programme Agency Agreement and the Euroclear Finland Registered Notes, Euroclear Sweden Registered Notes or VPS Registered Notes of such Series, but no such waiver shall extend to any subsequent or other default or impair any right consequent thereon.

If the relevant Issue Terms specify "Contractual Representation of Holders/No Masse", the following meeting and voting provisions shall apply as follows.

(1) General

Pursuant to Article L.213-6-3 I of the French financial and monetary code (Code monétaire et financier), the Holders shall not be grouped in a masse having separate legal personality and acting in part through a representative of the Holders (représentant de la masse) and in part through general meetings;

A Resolution may be passed on any proposal relating to the modification of the General Note Conditions including any proposal, (i) whether for a compromise or settlement, regarding rights which are the subject of litigation or in respect of which a judicial decision has been rendered, and (ii) relating to a total or partial waiver of the guarantees granted to the Holders, the deferral of any interest payment and the modification of the amortization or interest rate provisions.

Where the relevant Issue Terms specify "Full Masse" or "Contractual Masse", if and for so long as the French Law Notes of a given Series are held by a single Holder, the relevant Holder will exercise directly the powers delegated to the Representative and General Meetings of Holders under the General Note Conditions. For the avoidance of doubt, if a Representative has been appointed while the French Law Notes of a given Series are held by a single Holder, such Representative shall be devoid of powers. A Representative shall only be appointed if the French Law Notes of a Series are held by more than one Holder.

(H) Terms and Conditions:

In the case of French Law Notes which (A) have a Specified Denomination of at least EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date); or (B) can only be traded in amounts of at least EUR 100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date), the Issuer may modify the Terms and Conditions of the French Law Notes without the consent of the Holders to correct a manifest error.

18. Replacement of Registered Notes

If any Registered Note in definitive form is lost, stolen, mutilated, defaced or destroyed, it may be replaced at the Specified Office of the Registrar (and, if the Registered Notes are then admitted to listing, trading and/or quotation by any competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system which requires the appointment of a Paying Agent in any particular place, the Paying Agent having its Specified Office in the place required by such competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system), subject to all applicable laws and competent authority, stock exchange and/or quotation system requirements, upon payment by the claimant of the expenses incurred in connection with such replacement and on such terms as to evidence, security, indemnity and otherwise as the Issuer may reasonably require. Mutilated or defaced Notes must be surrendered before replacements will be issued.

At any time following the occurrence of a Change in Law Event, the Issuer shall have the right to (i) redeem the Notes on such day as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Note

Condition 22 (Notices) and will, if and to the extent permitted by applicable law, pay to the Holder in respect of each Note the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount on such day; or (ii) determine the appropriate adjustment, if any, to be made to any one or more of the terms of the Notes, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under such Conditions applicable to the Notes, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the Change in Law Event, and determine the effective date of that adjustment.

A "Change in Law Event" shall be deemed to have occurred upon the Issuer becoming aware of (i) the adoption or announcement of, or any change in, any relevant law, rule, regulation, judgment, order, sanction, directive, designation or procedure of any governmental, administrative, legislative or judicial authority or power (including any tax law and any Sanction Rules as if applicable to the Issuer and each of its affiliates in relation to the Securities and/or any related Hedge Positions) ("applicable law"), or (ii) the promulgation of, or any change in, the formal or informal interpretation by a court, tribunal, governmental, administrative, legislative, regulatory or judicial authority or power with competent jurisdiction (including, without limitation, any taxing authority) or any relevant exchange or Relevant Clearing System of any applicable law or regulation or rule or requirement (including any tax law or rule or requirement), which has the effect (as determined by the Issuer in its discretion, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner) that:

- (a) its performance under the Notes or the relevant Guarantor's performance under the relevant Guarantee in whole or in part or its performance or that of the relevant Guarantor (if any) or any of its affiliates under any related Hedge Positions; or
- (b) the performance of any of its affiliates under the Notes had such affiliate been an issuer of the Notes or under any related Hedge Positions had such affiliate been a party to any such Hedge Positions,

Notice of any change in any of the Agents or in their Specified Offices shall promptly be given to the Noteholders.

All notifications, opinions, determinations, certificates, calculations, quotations and decisions given, expressed, made or obtained for the purposes of the Conditions by the Calculation Agent shall be made or obtained (as applicable) in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, and (save in the case of manifest or proven error) shall be final and binding on the Issuer and the Noteholders. No liability to any Person will attach to the Calculation Agent in connection with the exercise or non-exercise by it of its powers, duties and discretions for such purposes hereunder.

All calculation functions required of the Calculation Agent under the Conditions may be delegated to any such person as the Calculation Agent, in its discretion, acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, may decide.

Notwithstanding anything else in these General Note Conditions to the contrary, in the case of French Law Notes, any determination to be made by the Calculation Agent or the Issuer will be made in good faith and in a reasonable manner.

The Calculation Agent may, but need not, determine the appropriate adjustment by reference to the adjustment in respect of such Potential Adjustment Event made by an Options Exchange to options on the Shares traded on that Options Exchange."

8. Share Linked Condition 3.2 (Occurrence of an Extraordinary Event)

Share Linked Condition 3.2 (Occurrence of an Extraordinary Event) is amended by deleting the section in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

- (a) the Calculation Agent may determine the appropriate adjustment, if any, to be made to any one or more of the terms of the Share Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Share Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate to account for the Extraordinary Event in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Share Linked Securities and determine the effective date of that adjustment. The relevant adjustments may include, without limitation, adjustments to account for changes in volatility, expected dividends, stock loan rate or liquidity relevant to the Shares or to the Share Linked Securities. The Calculation Agent may (but need not) determine the appropriate adjustment by reference to the adjustment in respect of such Extraordinary Event made by any Options Exchange to options on the Shares traded on that Options Exchange; or
- (b) the Calculation Agent may determine to redeem the Share Linked Securities, in which case, the Issuer shall redeem all, but not some only, of the Share Linked Securities by giving notice to Holders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be. If the Share Linked Securities are so redeemed in whole, the Issuer will pay to each Holder in respect of each Share Linked Security held by such Holder an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early

Repayment Amount of such Share Linked Security, taking into account the Extraordinary Event, as determined by the Calculation Agent. Payments will be made in such manner as shall be notified to the Holders in accordance with General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be; or

- (c) the relevant Calculation Agent may determine to effect Share Substitution (as defined below), in which case, on or after the relevant Announcement Date, Merger Date or Tender Offer Date or the date of the Delisting, Insolvency, Nationalisation, or where the Share is a share of an Exchange Traded Fund, NAV Publication Suspension, as the case may be, the Issuer may (in addition to the consequences set out in paragraphs (a) to (b) above) require the Calculation Agent to adjust the Shares or Share Basket, as the case may be, to include shares selected by it (the "Substitute Shares") in place of the Shares (the "Affected Share(s)") which are affected by such Extraordinary Event, and such Substitute Shares and their issuer will be deemed to be "Shares" and a "Share Issuer" for the purposes of these Share Linked Conditions, respectively, and the Calculation Agent may determine to make such further adjustment, if any, to any one or more of the terms of the Share Linked Securities, including without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Share Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Share Linked Securities (together the "Share Substitution"). For the avoidance of doubt, such Substitute Shares may include Depositary Receipts and/or shares of Exchange Traded Funds. In this regard:
- (i) such substitution and the relevant adjustment to the terms of the Share Linked Securities will be deemed to be effective as of the date determined by the Calculation Agent (the "Substitution Date") which may, but need not, be the Announcement Date, Merger Date or Tender Offer Date or the date of the Delisting, Insolvency or Nationalisation or, where the Share is a share of an Exchange Traded Fund, as specified in the relevant Issue Terms, as is applicable, NAV Publication Suspension (as the case may be);
 - (ii) the weighting of each Substitute Share in the relevant Share Basket, if applicable, will be equal to the weighting of the relevant Affected Share, unless otherwise determined by the Calculation Agent; and
 - (iv) in order to be selected as a Substitute Share, each relevant share must be a share which:

If the relevant Issue Terms specify that "Index-Linked Derivatives Contract Provisions" shall be applicable:

If neither the Final Settlement Price nor the Daily Settlement Price is published on the Scheduled Reference Date or Averaging Reference Date, then the Securities may be calculated by reference to, or a formula based upon, the index level of the related Index and the relevant Index Linked Conditions, as described above, will apply.

Following the occurrence of an Index Modification in respect of an Index, the Calculation Agent shall (if "Calculation Agent Adjustment" is specified in the relevant Issue Terms) determine if such Index Modification has a material effect on the Index Linked Securities and, if so, may in its discretion take one of, or both of, or neither of, the following actions: (i) continue to calculate the relevant Index Level using the published level for such Index; and/or (ii) make the appropriate adjustments, if any, to any one or more of the terms of the Index Linked Securities, including, without limitation, any variable or term relevant to the settlement or payment under the Index Linked Securities, as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Index Linked Conditions.

- (b) "Index Substitution": The Calculation Agent may rebase the Index Linked Securities against another index or basket of indices, as applicable, selected by the Calculation Agent to be reasonably comparable to the relevant Index in order to preserve insofar as possible the original economic objective(s) and rationale of the Index Linked Securities, and, following such rebasing, the Calculation Agent will make such adjustment(s) that it determines to be appropriate, if any, to any variable, calculation methodology, valuation, settlement, payment terms or any other terms of the Index Linked Securities to account for such rebasing; or

- (b) the Calculation Agent determines that none of the actions set out in paragraphs (a), (b) or (c) above, as is applicable, would achieve a commercially reasonable result for any of the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or the Holders, on giving notice to Holders in accordance with General Instrument Condition 24 (Notices) or General Note Condition 22 (Notices), as the case may be, the Issuer shall redeem the Index Linked Securities in whole but not in part, each Index Linked Security being redeemed by payment of an amount equal to the Non-scheduled Early Repayment Amount of such Index Linked Security, as determined by the Calculation Agent. UNDERLYING ASSET CONDITIONS

INTRODUCTION TO THE SHARE LINKED CONDITIONS

The following introduction to, and overview of, the Share Linked Conditions is a description and overview only of the actual Share Linked Conditions set forth herein, and is intended to be a guide only to potential purchasers to facilitate a general understanding of such provisions. Accordingly, this overview must be read as an introduction only to the actual Share Linked Conditions and any decision to purchase Share Linked Securities should be based on a consideration of the Base Prospectus as a whole, including the actual Share Linked Conditions (as may be completed by the relevant Issue Terms).

Prospective purchasers of, and investors in, Securities should refer to the section entitled "Risk factors" on pages 20 to 126 of the Base Prospectus, which includes general risk factors in relation to the Securities and the Issuer and (if applicable) the relevant Guarantor, and specific risk factors relating to Share Linked Securities on pages 75 to 77.

Payments, Scheduled Trading Days and Disrupted Days

Payments (whether in respect of principal or interest and whether at maturity or otherwise) in respect of Share Linked Securities will be calculated by reference to the price of a single Share or the price of one or more Shares in a Share Basket or a formula based upon the price of one or more Shares at a specified time or times on one or more Reference Dates or Averaging Reference Dates (as set out in the Issue Terms).

However, it may not be possible, practical or desirable for the Calculation Agent to determine the price of a Share at a specified time on a Reference Date or Averaging Reference Date if such date:

- is not a Scheduled Trading Day, i.e. a day on which the Exchange (on which such Share trades), and the specified Related Exchanges (on which trading in futures or options contracts relating to such Share occurs), are scheduled to be open; or
- is a Disrupted Day, i.e. a Scheduled Trading Day on which the Exchange or any specified Related Exchange fail to open or are otherwise subject to a Market Disruption Event during such day.

Summary of Market Disruption Events

Market Disruption Events can be classified broadly as the occurrence or existence of the following events:

- (a) an Early Closure is an unannounced closure of (i) the Exchange or (ii) any specified Related Exchange;
- (b) an Exchange Disruption is an event (other than an Early Closure) that disrupts the ability of market participants effecting transactions in, or obtaining market values for, (i) the Shares on the Exchange or (ii) futures or options contracts relating to such Shares on any relevant Related Exchange;
- (c) a Trading Disruption is the suspension of, or limitation imposed on, trading by the Exchange relating to the Shares or by the specified Related Exchanges relating to the futures or options contracts relating to such Shares; and
- (d) any change in conditions or controls which makes it impracticable to determine the amount payable.

Potential Postponement of Reference Date or Averaging Reference Date

In the circumstances described above, the Reference Date or Averaging Reference Date may, or may not, be postponed until a day on which the price of the relevant Share is published or can otherwise be determined by the Calculation Agent, subject to a long-stop date (designated by reference to the term "Maximum Days of Disruption") by which a price must be determined for the purpose of calculating the payments in respect of the Share Linked Securities.

The occurrence of a Scheduled Trading Day or a Disrupted Day may differ in respect of two or more Shares in a Share Basket, and in such circumstances, the Reference Date or Averaging Reference Date for such Shares may remain different or may be postponed so that each Share in the Share Basket has the same Reference Date or Averaging Reference Date.

Overview of Consequences

The Share Linked Conditions define the circumstances in which the determination of a price of a Share or Shares may be postponed and stipulate how such price or prices should be determined by reference to Share Linked Securities that relate to a single Share or a Share Basket and Reference Dates or Averaging Reference Dates.

The following overviews set out the default consequence in respect of each type of Share Linked Security if the Scheduled Reference Date or Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, though such overviews are subject to, and must be read in conjunction with, the more detailed contents of the Share Linked Conditions.

Calculation Agent Determinations and Calculations

The Calculation Agent, which will be Goldman Sachs International (unless otherwise specified in the relevant Issue Terms), may be required to make certain determinations and calculations pursuant to the Share Linked Conditions relating to, among others, the occurrence of a Scheduled Trading Day or a Disrupted Day, the calculation of a Share Price, the occurrence, and materiality, of a Potential Adjustment Event, an Extraordinary Event or a Change in Law (such terms are described below), adjustments to the terms and conditions of Share Linked Securities following the occurrence of such events, including the composition of the Share Basket, and the calculation of early redemption amounts. In all circumstances, the Calculation Agent must make such determinations and calculations in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner.

Single Share and Reference Date

- (a) Unless specified otherwise, the Reference Date will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day, with a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (b) The Issue Terms may, however, specify that no adjustment should be made in the event of a Disrupted Day occurring on the Scheduled Reference Date and that the Calculation Agent shall determine the Share Price on the Scheduled Reference Date.

Single Share and Averaging Reference Date

There are four options that can be specified in the relevant Issue Terms:

- (a) Omission – the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is discarded from the valuation process, provided that there must be at least one Averaging Reference Date, upon which a Share Price can be determined, otherwise the sole Averaging Reference Date shall be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day following the final Scheduled Averaging Reference Date, with a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (b) Postponement – the Averaging Reference Date in respect of a Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day, with a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (c) Modified Postponement – the Averaging Reference Date in respect of a Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the first succeeding Valid Date, i.e. a Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day and is not another Averaging Reference Date, subject to a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.

- (d) No Adjustment – the Calculation Agent shall determine the Share Price on the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date.

The Issue Terms in respect of Share Linked Securities that are linked to a Share Basket will specify which of the following elections will be applicable.

Share Basket and Reference Dates – Individual Scheduled Trading Day and Individual Disrupted Day

- (a) If the Scheduled Reference Date for a Share is a Scheduled Trading Day and not a Disrupted Day, then the Scheduled Reference Date will be the Reference Date for such Share.
- (b) If the Scheduled Reference Date for a Share is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, then the Reference Date will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day, with a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price, provided that, if the Issue Terms specify that no adjustment should be made, then the Calculation Agent shall determine the Share Price on the Scheduled Reference Date.

Share Basket and Averaging Reference Dates – Individual Scheduled Trading Day and Individual Disrupted Day

If the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for any Share is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, then one of the following four options may be selected:

- (a) Omission – the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is discarded from the valuation process, provided that there must be at least one Averaging Reference Date, upon which each Share Price in the Share Basket can be determined: (i) if the final Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share is a Scheduled Trading Day and is not a Disrupted Day, then the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the Averaging Reference Date for such Share, and (ii) if the final Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, then the standard eight Scheduled Trading Day postponement provisions will apply to the final Scheduled Averaging Reference Date, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (b) Postponement – (i) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share is a Scheduled Trading Day and is not a Disrupted Day, then the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the Averaging Reference Date for such Share, and (ii) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, the Averaging Reference Date for such Share will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day, a long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (c) Modified Postponement – (i) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share is a Scheduled Trading Day and is not a Disrupted Day, then the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the Averaging Reference Date for such Share, and (ii) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, the Averaging Reference Date for such Share will be the first Valid Date, i.e. a Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day and is not another Averaging Reference Date, subject to a long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (d) No Adjustment – the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for a Share will be the Averaging Reference Date for such Share, and the Calculation Agent shall determine the Share Price on the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date.

Share Basket and Reference Dates – Common Scheduled Trading Day but Individual Disrupted Day

- (a) If the Scheduled Reference Date for each Share is a Scheduled Trading Day (the "Common Scheduled Trading Day") and not a Disrupted Day, then the Scheduled Reference Date will be the Reference Date for each Share.
- (b) (i) If the Scheduled Reference Date is a Common Scheduled Trading Day but is a Disrupted Day for one or more Shares, or (ii) if the Scheduled Reference Date is not a Common Scheduled Trading Day, in which case the Reference Date for each Share will be the first succeeding Common Scheduled Trading Day, provided that,
 - (A) if the Common Scheduled Trading Day for a Share is not a Disrupted Day, then the Common Scheduled Trading Day will be the Reference Date for such Share; and
 - (B) if the Common Scheduled Trading Day for a Share is a Disrupted Day, then the Reference Date for such Share will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day, with a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price, provided that, if the Issue Terms specify that no adjustment should be made, then the Calculation Agent shall determine the Share Price on the Scheduled Reference Date.

Share Basket and Averaging Reference Dates – Common Scheduled Trading Day but Individual Disrupted Day

If the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date for any Share is not a Scheduled Trading Day or is a Disrupted Day, then one of the following four options may be selected:

- (a) Omission – the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is discarded from the valuation process, provided that there must be at least one Averaging Reference Date, upon which each Share Price in the Share Basket can be determined: (i) if the final Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is a Scheduled Trading Day for each Share (the "Common Scheduled Trading Day") and not a Disrupted Day, then such Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the Averaging Reference Date for each Share, and (ii) if (A) the final Scheduled Reference Date is a Common Scheduled Trading Day but is a Disrupted Day for one or more Shares, or (B) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is not a Common Scheduled Trading Day, in which case the Averaging Reference Date for each Share will be the first succeeding Common Scheduled Trading Day, provided that:
 - (A) if such Common Scheduled Trading Day is not a Disrupted Day for a Share, then such Common Scheduled Trading Day will be the Averaging Reference Date for such Share; and
 - (B) if such Common Scheduled Trading Day is a Disrupted Day for a Share, then the Averaging Reference Date for such Share will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading Day that is not a Disrupted Day, with a standard long-stop date of eight Scheduled Trading Days, upon which the Calculation Agent will determine the Share Price.
- (b) Postponement – (i) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is a Scheduled Trading Day for each Share (the "Common Scheduled Trading Day") and not a Disrupted Day, then such Scheduled Averaging Reference Date will be the Averaging Reference Date for each Share, and (ii) if (A) the Scheduled Reference Date is a Common Scheduled Trading Day but is a Disrupted Day for one or more Shares, or (B) if the Scheduled Averaging Reference Date is not a Common Scheduled Trading Day, in which case the Averaging Reference Date for each Share will be the first succeeding Common Scheduled Trading Day, provided that:
 - (A) if such Common Scheduled Trading Day is not a Disrupted Day for a Share, then such Common Scheduled Trading Day will be the Averaging Reference Date for such Share; and
 - (B) if such Common Scheduled Trading Day is a Disrupted Day for a Share, then the Averaging Reference Date for such Share will be the first succeeding Scheduled Trading
